

Swimmers Face Unbeaten Terps

By PERRY McCARTY
DTH Sports Writer

Maryland's unbeaten Terrapins invade Bowman Gray Pool tonight for a showdown with UNC's Blue Dolphins. Last year at College Park, the Tar Heels spoiled the Terps' chances for a perfect season and went on to share the ACC crown via a 48-47 win.

Coach Bill Campbell and his charges will be out to settle last year's chagrin tonight. While the format is much the same as a year ago, there are several significant changes.

Dual meet records have no bearing on the conference crown this year. The Championship is determined solely by the ACC Championship Meet next weekend at College Park. Yet the Dolphins desperately need the momentum of a victory over the Terps to carry them into the Championship competition.

Both Florida State U. and N.C. State have shaded Carolina in earlier meets. So the pressure is squarely on Maryland to become the first unbeaten team in their school's history. The Dolphins also have the all-important home pool advantage.

Coach Pat Earey feels that his troops are "in good condition both physically and emotionally and as ready as they will ever be. This is the first meet we have pointed to since the holidays and we should make our best showing of the season."

It will take just that to come close to sending Coach Campbell and his crew away on the short end. Not only have the Terps posted faster times in nearly every event, but they have tremendous depth to back up their strong front line.

Don Dunphey and Raul Rebeliard along with sophomore sprinter Phil Denkevitz and freestyler Steve Nullmeyer will spark the visitors. No doubt, the outcome will hinge on several very close races with seconds and thirds making the final difference.

Diving will be especially important. Here UNC's hopes ride on senior Dave Moody and Guy Smith.

Pete Worthen will renew his sprint rivalry with Denkevitz. Worthen won both 50 and 100 freestyle sprints in last year's Freshman Invitational Meet, after losing to Denkevitz during the season.

Both teams are sure to go for the seven points in the opening medley relay. Jack Hayden, Rick Forum, Fred Lipp, and Davis Roberts have been more than adequate all season long. They will have to combine for their best effort yet to edge the Terp quartet.

Senior co-captain Harrison Merrill, along with John Sheldon, will face Nullmeyer in the distance freestyle events. Coach Earey has received good mileage from his sophomores to date and will again be counting on Steve Hildenbrand, Allen McDonald, Tommy Adams, Strud Norfleet, Jim Bernuth as well as Hayden and Worthen.

Seniors Chip Smith, Scot Smiley, Roberts, Merrill, and Moody will be gunning for their third win over the Terps.

With the conference championships a week away, both teams have enough at stake to pull out all stops and go-for-broke to win. The momentum of a victory and the impetus of fast times are vital psychological advantages that will be at stake tonight at eight.

SOPHOMORE DANNY TALBOTT takes a cut during baseball practice yesterday. Although it is still the middle of February, the Tar Heels are busily preparing for their season's opener. Talbott, who played center field for the Frosh, is moving to first base this year, as Coach Walter Rabb juggles his lineup in hopes of repeating last year's 14-0 conference record.

ACC Race Enters Final Week

With the ACC race entering its final week, some interesting battles are shaping up for seedings in the conference tournament.

The Tar Heels' victory over State Wednesday has brought about a three-way battle for second place. If the Tar Heels win their last four conference encounters, they are assured of at least a tie for the second.

Going into this weekend's games, State and Maryland are tied for second with a 7-4 conference mark while the Tar Heels are a half game behind at 6-4.

Thanks to a perfect 8-0 week, my guessing percentage jumped to .885 with 23 correct and only three misses.

CAROLINA vs. SOUTH CAROLINA at Charlotte—In the opening game of the North-South doubleheader, the Tar Heels shouldn't have too much trouble winning their fourth straight. The Gamecocks can rebound—but that's about all. Carolina, by 26.

CAROLINA vs. CLEMSON at Charlotte—The Tar Heels make it two in a row over their Southern neighbors. Carolina, by 8.

STATE vs. CLEMSON at Charlotte—The Tigers' sophomores have come on strong, but State should win a close one. State by 6.

STATE vs. SOUTH CAROLINA at Charlotte—The Wolfpack completes a sweep for the Tar Heel state. State, by 19.

DUKE vs. NOTRE DAME at Chicago—The Blue Devils try to uphold the ACC's prestige in the Midwest. They will. Duke, by 11.

MARYLAND at NAVY—The Terps could make life rough for the Midshipmen and their star Billy Radcliffe. Maryland, by 7.

TEMPLE at WAKE FOREST—The Owls aren't playing in the Palestra this time, and the Deacons are due to break their slump. Wake, by 5.

VIRGINIA at CAROLINA—The Cavaliers gave the Tar Heels a scare at Charlottesville, but it should be a rout at Woollen Gym as the Heels tune up for Duke. Carolina, by 31.

DUKE at MARYLAND—The Terps have their eyes on second place, and the Blue Devils may be in for a shock. It could be a major upset. Maryland, by 5.

Tar Babies Lose To State

N. C. State's freshman basketball team pulled away in the second overtime to defeat the Tar Babies, 99-93, Wednesday night.

In a wild game which saw 10 players, five on each squad, disqualified with excessive fouls, the Tar Babies kept battling back to finally tie the game 75-75 in regulation time.

The Tar Babies had a chance to win in regulation time and then again in the first overtime, but both times missed their final shot. In the first overtime, a 45-foot desperation toss by Jim Frye bounced around the basket before finally falling off.

It was the first victory for the Wolflets in three games with the Carolina frosh this season.

State's Alex Cheek hit on a jump shot with 15 seconds left to send the game into a second overtime after the Tar Babies had led most of the period.

STATE—Douglass 26, Ward 8, Mavredes 16, Kretzer 19, Leith 13, Cheek 14, Lawson 2, Lawton 1. UNC—Miller 27, Fletcher 26, Gribble 14, Shackelford 13, Campbell 2, Frye 2, Cooper 9.

Surging Heels Meet USC In Doubleheader Opener

The annual North-South doubleheader tonight pits the resurgent Tar Heels against Frank McGuire's South Carolina Gamecocks and N.C. State against Clemson.

The UNC-USC clash will start at 7:30 with the other game following.

Tomorrow the two North Carolina teams will switch opponents with the Tar Heels meeting Clemson after State faces South Carolina.

There is nothing McGuire would like better than to beat his old school, especially since the Gamecocks have been having problems this year.

With a 6-11 season mark and 2-8 in the ACC, the Roosters are a game ahead of last place Virginia. They have been hurt badly by the loss of star sophomore forward Gary Gregor and guard Jerry Croke due to academic difficulties.

Since their departure, 6-9 center Jim Fox has emerged as the big star and as the ACC's top rebounder with more than 15 a game.

John Schroeder (6-6) and Al Helping out Fox are forwards

Salvadori (6-9) and guards Jim Finnegan and Earl Lovelace.

For the Tar Heels both games are crucial if they are to stay in the race for second place and the right to stay out of Duke's bracket in the tournament. Last year UNC edged USC 84-81 but lost to Clemson 97-90 in double overtime at the Queen City doubleheader.

If Billy Cunningham is to win his third straight conference rebounding crown he will have to overtake Fox this weekend. Two big games in Charlottesville could give his All-American chances a big boost.

After this weekend the Tar Heels have only two league games left with Virginia Tuesday and Duke next Saturday in Woollen Gym.
