

Tar Heels Begin Quest Of ACC Crown Tonight

By PETE GAMMONS
Asst. Sports Editor

After closing out the regular season with seven straight victories, the Tar Heels tonight begin their quest of their first ACC Tournament Championship since 1957.

But standing in the way tonight will be Wake Forest (11-14) which for five consecutive years has reached the finals.

The Deacons are fighting the same type of slump that the Tar Heels experienced at the end of last year, having lost six of their last eight games, but there is an adage in Winston-Salem that Bones McKinney always reaches the finals, and they will be out to prove it. The game will start at 9 p.m.

UNC lost seven of its last eight games in 1964, but rebounded against South Carolina in the tourney opener before losing to

Face Slumping Deacons In First Game

Duke. In three previous meetings with the Deacons they have won only once, 61-59 in the semifinals in 1957, en route to the national championship. Two years ago the Deacs knocked the Tar Heels out in the semifinals 56-55.

UNC Coach Dean Smith said he has been pleased with the steady improvement of the team recently. Although he points to Duke as the favorite, he realizes that a lot of people think Carolina is going to win.

Probably the biggest reason for this is Billy Cunningham. In the last seven games he has hit on 55.8 per cent of his floor shots, 73.8 per cent of his free throws and has averaged 28.4 points a game. In doing this he has upped his average to 25.9 with 14.6 rebounds per game, both league-leading figures. But his defense and passing have been major factors in the team's skien.

A second major factor has been the play of junior guard Johnny Yokley. A reserve for over half the season, he came off the bench to spark the victory over NYU and has started ever since. His work last Saturday on All-ACC Bob Varga, limiting him to 13 points, as well as on Wake's Bob Leonard and NYU's

Mal Graham shows him to be one of the most tenacious defensive backcourtmen in the ACC. In addition to his defensive work he hit for 17 points against Clemson, 10 against NYU and nine against both Virginia and Duke.

The Deacons will try to stop Bob Lewis, who scored 35 against them in Chapel Hill. Voted to the second All-ACC team, the 6-3 sophomore is averaging 20.8 points and 8.1 rebounds a game.

Joining Lewis in the frontcourt will be Ray Respass, who burst out of a mid-season slump and has become one of the top clutch players on the team, while defensive ace Tom Gauntlett will be at the other guard position.

Despite first team all-star and a second teamer the Deacons have been floundering. Bob Leonard, the conference's top guard, and Ronnie Watts have both played well but the rest of the team has been erratic.

Guard John Anderson has started for most of the season. McKinney had a good starting forecourt for half the season in sophomore Jim Boshart and Richard Herring, but they have been cold in the second half and reserves Jim Altengarten and Clark Pool, averaging 3.9 and 3.0 points a game, have started.

They slaughtered UNC 107-85 in Winston-Salem and with McKinney's tournament record the Tar Heels cannot be looking ahead to the winner of the Duke-South Carolina game.

But some consolation for having to play Wake in the opening round is that the three times the top-seeded team hasn't won the fourth-seeded club took all the marbles.

The Daily Tar Heel

Founded Feb. 23, 1893

CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, THURSDAY, MARCH 4, 1965

Volume 72, Number 104

Opposes McCrary

Pratt Seeks DTH Editorship

Di-Phi Condemns Gag Law

By JOHN GREENBACHER
DTH Staff Writer

The Di-Phi Senate unanimously voted to condemn the Speaker Ban Law after a special debate during inauguration ceremonies Tuesday night.

This was the second such action which the Di-Phi has taken against the Speaker Ban in two years.

A resolution calling for a test case, to be sponsored by the Senate, which would point out the "ambiguities in the law" was introduced in Tuesday's session, and will be discussed and voted on at the next session.

During the debate, Will Bullard pointed out that three speakers in the assembly had broken the Gag Law by publicly advocating the overthrow of a section of the North Carolina Constitution.

Want Section Stricken
All three had admitted during a questioning period that they would like to see stricken the section of the constitution which forbids inter-racial marriage.

"I know of at least one Marxist-Leninist who has been active on this campus who is not prevented from speaking by the law," Bullard said. "He has never pleaded the Fifth Amendment, is not a member of the Communist Party, and has never publicly called for the overthrow of our government," he said.

"You will find that most Marxists are not covered by this law," Bullard cited the "detrimental effect" which the law has had on the University, including the refusal of several distinguished scientists to speak here and refusal by international physics and chemistry conferences to hold sessions here.

"More Harm Than Good"
David Wilborn told the body that the bill was against all democratic precepts as defined by America's founders, and said it would do more harm than good.

"If we cannot refute the ideas which a communist would present us with, then we will be rendered unable to truly suppress communism," he said.

Chuck Neely attacked the State Legislature for not using legislative restraint in the bill's passage. "This bill was rammed through the State Legislature," he said.

"If you pass laws against the speaking privileges of Communists, then you can do the same against those of fascists," he said. "Soon it may get to the point when Republicans won't be allowed to speak."

"The United States congress is currently composed of a democratic majority so strong that they could deny the speaking privileges of the republicans," he said. "They haven't done this because of legislative restraint."

In his inaugural address, president Baxter Linney called on the societies not to rest on their traditions alone, but to actively work for the betterment of the organization.

Corps Tests Today

Placement tests for Peace Corps volunteers will be given today at noon, 4 and 7 p.m. in Gardner 8. Applicants must submit a completed questionnaire at time of test.

Questionnaires can be obtained from the information booths at Lenoir Hall and Y-Court.

A movie entitled "A Mission of Discovery" will be shown tonight at 7 at Carroll Hall to prospective applicants.

Norwood Pratt—Hat's In The Ring

Legislators Pass Road Bond Issue

RALEIGH (AP) — The General Assembly completed action Wednesday on an administration proposal calling for a $300 million bond issue for highway construction.

There was no discussion as the

Spearman To Address SL Tonight

Student Legislature will meet at 7:30 p.m. tonight to hear a special address by Student Body President Bob Spearman and to consider several important pieces of legislation.

The body will consider legislation on the controversial campus radio system, now a major political campaign issue.

Bills protecting the discriminatory rights of fraternities and sororities and investigating the possibility of establishing a campus co-op will be voted on.

When Mariam Makeba sang "Where Shall I Go," a folksong of her native South Africa, it had a special significance. Miss Makeba was banned from returning to the country of her birth for her outspoken views on South African affairs. Any criticism of the government is illegal there.

Since the Union of South Africa was granted independence from the British Commonwealth, the government has been dominated by white descendants of original Dutch settlers. The native tribes have no representation even though they comprise 90 per cent of the population. They are not allowed to vote.

Laws have been passed confining them to certain areas of the country and they must carry passports to travel from one section to another.

Plight of the People

At a reception after Tuesday night's performance here, she talked in a soft whispering voice of the plight of her people.

"We people of South Africa have no friends. The U.N. has passed resolutions for economic boycotts of our country but no one has followed it. Fifty per cent of the world's gold and 75 per cent of the world's diamonds are still coming out of South Africa. The Western countries are our allies but until they

Seeks Post Alone

Norwood Pratt, a junior from Winston-Salem, announced yesterday that he will seek the editorship of The Daily Tar Heel in the spring election. He is the second to announce for the position.

Both he and his opponent, Ernie McCrary, are seeking the office alone.

Carolina Quarterly
Pratt has served as associate editor of The Carolina Quarterly this year. He has also been associate editor of The Brooklyn Graphic and has had articles published in The Chapel Hill Weekly, Oxford Opinion, a campus magazine at Oxford University; Welt der Arbeit, Hamburg, Germany; The Explorer, Columbia, S.C.; and Paris Jazz, a magazine for English-speaking people in Paris.

He also served as a speech writer for a congressman in Washington. He is married.

States Responsibility
In a prepared statement, Pratt said, "The Daily Tar Heel's first responsibility is to keep the students informed about the University community to which they belong."

"Its foremost challenge is to be interesting. 'If student news and opinions are actively and intelligently solicited and reported, the DTH can be an exciting and useful instrument for making the University responsive to individual student needs."

"As editor I will see to it that opposing views are expressed on the editorial page with the help of an experienced staff and a wide knowledge of the University. I will produce a DTH dedicated to questioning and inquiring, and not simply waiting for the usual and expected."

Pratt describes himself as politically "indefinable."

"It depends on the issues," he said.

BROWN TICKETS
Tickets for Tuesday's James Brown concert are on sale from noon to 1 p.m. each day this week at Graham Memorial Information Desk and Y-Court. The Men's Residence Council, sponsor of the event, said there are 200 tickets left.

Folksinger Miriam Makeba Says:

South Africans Have No Friends

By TOM CLARK
DTH Staff Writer

When Mariam Makeba sang "Where Shall I Go," a folksong of her native South Africa, it had a special significance.

Miss Makeba was banned from returning to the country of her birth for her outspoken views on South African affairs. Any criticism of the government is illegal there.

Since the Union of South Africa was granted independence from the British Commonwealth, the government has been dominated by white descendants of original Dutch settlers. The native tribes have no representation even though they comprise 90 per cent of the population. They are not allowed to vote.

Laws have been passed confining them to certain areas of the country and they must carry passports to travel from one section to another.

Plight of the People

At a reception after Tuesday night's performance here, she talked in a soft whispering voice of the plight of her people.

"We people of South Africa have no friends. The U.N. has passed resolutions for economic boycotts of our country but no one has followed it. Fifty per cent of the world's gold and 75 per cent of the world's diamonds are still coming out of South Africa. The Western countries are our allies but until they comply, it will do no good."

American Investment Vital

She cited American investment as especially important in sustaining the government. "Even Coca-Cola now has a large plant in South Africa."

"When we're under, no one cares. When the Afrikaans (as the whites are called) are killing my people, no one cares. But as soon as we resort to violence against the undemocratic forms of our government, we are labeled black savages."

She referred to the Sharpeville massacre in 1960 in which government troops shot men, women and children in an effort to quell a possible riot.

Since then, a ban has been imposed on arms shipments to supply the government but apparently the move came too late as South Africa now has its own arsenal to support its troops.

"90-Day Law"

Particularly offensive to the natives, she said, is the so-called "90-Day Law" which permits the government to imprison anyone for 90 days without trial or having to show cause.

"My brother is in jail now, under the 90-day detention. When his 90 days were up, he was released and he walked about 100 yards and was arrested again," she said. There are an estimated two and a half million political prisoners now in jail.

THE UMBRELLA is just a safety measure employed by coed Alexas Smith as she takes advantage of a sunny study break on the grass in front of Graham Memorial. But the way the weather switches from day to day it may be a good idea. Forecast for today is continued warm with chance of showers in the afternoon.—Photo by Jock Lauterer.

Morehead Awards Given To 67 Boys

A record number of 67 boys was presented Morehead Awards here Tuesday.

The trustees of the John Motley Morehead Foundation voted this year to increase the value of the existing awards by $125 per year, effective Sept. 1. The awards will now be worth $5,800 each to North Carolina residents for four years of study and $7,500 each to out-of-state students.

The 1965 scholars were chosen from North Carolina high schools and from 16 private preparatory schools. The current awards bring to 542 the total number of Morehead Awards presented since the program was initiated 14 years ago. At present, there are 168 Morehead scholars studying at UNC.

For the first time since the Morehead Awards were established in 1951, John Motley Morehead was not present to personally make the presentations. The 94-year-old UNC alumnus and benefactor died in January at his home in Rye, N.Y. The 1965 awards were presented by Hugh G. Chatham of Elkin, vice-chairman of the Foundation's Board of Trustees.

Norman A. Cooke of Charlotte, industrialist and vice-chairman of the Duke Endowment, has been elected chairman of the foundation's Board of Trustees, replacing Morehead.

Award winners are: Charles H. Anderson Jr. of Signal Mountain, Tenn.; Baylor School; Stephen H. Armstrong of Washington, Taft School; Charles M. Benner Culver, Ind.; Culver Military Academy;

John B. Bennett Jr., Brevard High School; David M. Bevacqua, W. G. Enloe High School; Elmer L. Bishop III, Lee H. Edwards High School; George T. Boggs of Greenville, Del., Taft School; James S. Bostick, Atlanta, Ga., Westminster Schools; Robert E. Braxton, East Mecklenburg High School; John G. Callan, Manhasset, N.Y., Choate School; Richard A. Carter, Elkhart, Ind., Groton School; Franklin St. Clair Clark Jr., Fayetteville High School; Terence M. Considine, Valley Center, Calif., Groton School; Randolph B. Cooke, Wilkes Central High School.

Also, Robert A. Crane, Myers Park High School; James E. Cutting, Annapolis, Md., St. Albans School; John H. Davis, Winston-Salem, Woodberry Forest; Stanley D. Davis, Chattanooga, Tenn., McCallie School; John E. Diez, Syracuse, N.Y., Deerfield Academy; Joseph A. Duckworth, Charlotte, Woodberry Forest; Noel Dunivant Jr., Whiteville High School; Robert B. Eadie, Charlotte, Virginia Episcopal School; Todd H. Everett, Caracas, Venezuela, Phillips Academy; Edward G. Fickinger, Lima, Ohio, Deerfield Academy; Terence N. Funness, Enka High School; Terry R. Garner, Newport, West Carteret High School; David C. Garvin, Greensboro Page Senior High.

Also, Alexander S. Goodfellow Jr., Bethesda, Md., St. Albans School; David A. Grimes, Greensboro Grimsley Senior High; Walter L. Hadden, Durham High School; William B. Hawfield Jr., Myers Park High School; Thomas B. Heys Jr., Chattanooga, Tenn., McCallie School; Joseph L. Holliday, Chattanooga, Tenn., Baylor School; Daniel R. Johnston, Elizabeth City High School; Vidar J. Jorgensen, Shelby Senior High School; Ronald W. Joyner, Troutman High School; Robert R. Koebitz, Greenville, J. H. Rose High School.

Also, George W. Krichbaum Jr., Lee H. Edwards High School; Donald T. Lassiter, Eure, Gates County High School; Philip M. Laughlin, Scarsdale, N.Y., Choate School; William U. Lee, Garner Senior High School; Thomas W. McCaslin, South Mecklenburg High School; Charles A. McLaughlin Jr., East Southern Pines High School; Everard K. Meade III, New York City, Phillips Academy; Ted R. Murphy, Hickory, Claremont Central High School; Thomas L. Murphy Jr., Salisbury Boyden High School; James W. Newlin, W. M. Williams High School.

Also, Jennings G. Pressly, Greenville, S. C., Christ School for Boys; Thomas J. Rhodes, Williamston, Episcopal High School; William K. Rollins, Hobbsville, Chowan High School; William M. Rowe III, New Hanover

(Continued on page 3)

Late News Briefs

From DTH Associated Press Wires

THE HOUSE PASSED and sent to President Johnson yesterday his $1.1-billion program of aid for highways and other projects designed to improve job opportunities and income in the economically depressed Appalachia area.

This first major legislation to be passed by this session of Congress was approved by a 257-165 roll call of the House, which last year let a similar bill die.

Repeated Republican attempts to slice off parts of the program or add more areas were beaten off in two days of debate and the bill was approved in exactly the form the Senate passed it Feb. 1. Sixteen amendments offered were rejected overwhelmingly, most by voice vote.

Voting for the bill were 232 Democrats and 25 Republicans. Voting against it were 56 Democrats and 109 Republicans.

The proposal was the product of study begun by President John F. Kennedy shortly after he took office in 1961. He had been impressed by the economic plight of West Virginia during his presidential campaign. Johnson adopted the idea and pushed it vigorously.

The bill, which now requires only Johnson's signature to become law, authorizes a five-year program of aid for 360 counties in 11 states extending from northern Pennsylvania to northern Alabama. They include all of West Virginia and parts of Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia.

Provision is made for possible addition of 13 New York counties later.

Funds necessary to put the program into effect must be provided by separate legislation.

A U.S. AIR FORCE jet mission struck secret targets Wednesday in a followup to the widely publicized U.S.-South Vietnamese attack Tuesday on military installations in Communist North Viet Nam.

The Ho Chi Minh trail through eastern Laos—a Viet Cong supply line raided sporadically throughout the winter—was believed to have been hit by more than 30 F100 and F105 fighter-bombers.

The supersonic squadrons took off unheralded with heavy loads of explosives from Da Nang Air Base, 380 miles northeast of Saigon, and sped back later with bomb bays empty to a landing lacking in fanfare.

U.S. authorities declined to disclose the objectives, but said no new strike had been made against North Viet Nam. It was not even made plain whether the raiders returned.

Compared with other operations in the Vietnamese war, the lid on news of the Laotian phase always has been relatively tight.

MAJ. GEN. NGUYEN VAN THIEU replaced ousted strongman Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh Wednesday as the top officer of the nation's 25-man armed forces council. But he has only a fraction of the power Khanh wielded.

The council announced the election of Thieu as Secretary-General, and said it had decided not to name a new chairman, the post Khanh held while he was also commander-in-chief of the armed forces.

Maj. Gen. Tran Van Minh retains his job as acting commander of the armed forces. Thieu also holds the post of armed forces minister in the civilian cabinet of Prime Minister Phan Huy Quat.

DR. MARTIN LUTHER KING JR. led hundreds of Negroes Wednesday on a three-mile march to bury a Negro laborer whom King had described as "a martyr in the crusade for human dignity and freedom."

The procession to the graveside followed two funeral services, the first at nearby Selma, for 26-year-old Jimmie Lee Jackson who was wounded fatally by gunfire when police and state troopers broke up a Negro march here Feb. 18.

A misty rain was falling during the services in the red brick Zion Methodist church facing the courthouse square in this small West Alabama town.

A few white spectators watched from the porch of the small city hall, across the intersection from the church. A few city policemen were on hand but there was no trouble as hundreds of Negroes who could not get inside the building massed in front of the church and sang "freedom songs." Inside, the old wooden pews were jammed and the aisles packed.

REP. PAUL R. ROBERSON of Martin said Wednesday he was "perfectly serious" about a measure to keep "neckers" off North Carolina highways.

Roberson said a lot of people "smile and brush it off" when his bill is mentioned. He said without a smile "a lot of our violations result" from highway necking.

The measure would make it a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $50 or thirty days in jail to steer or operate a motor vehicle on a public road while embracing a companion or while the operator's arm is resting on the seat behind or around a companion.

Roberson said the bill was a highway safety measure aimed not especially at teenagers, but at persons "who think they're grown—25 to 35."

If couples are bent on necking, Roberson said, they should get off the highways.

A BILL TO repeal the provision for life imprisonment upon recommendation of the jury in capital cases was introduced Wednesday by State Sen. Tom White of Lenoir.

The measure would affect the sentencing of those found guilty of first degree murder, arson, rape and first degree burglary—North Carolina's four capital crimes.

Under a 1949 law, a jury's recommendation of life imprisonment is binding in cases where the death penalty is otherwise mandatory. Under White's bill, the sentence would be a sentence of death upon conviction in all capital cases.