

UPI, AP Rank UNC No. 2

For the second consecutive week, the University of North Carolina Tar Heels were ranked as the second best team in the nation by both national wire services.

Both United Press International and the Associated Press moved the Tar Heels into the number two slot while the team was idle during examinations.

Louisville which had held the second best position for a number of weeks moved down one ranking after losing its second game.

UCLA remained the unanimous choice for first place, being the only large-college team with no losses. The North Carolina Tar Heels have suffered only one loss, at the hands of Princeton, currently ranked sixth, early in January.

The Tar Heels defeat of the unranked Virginia Cavaliers 103 to 76 Saturday gave the team a 13-1 record.

Both polls included only games played through Saturday, January 28.

As had been the case in previous weeks, voting was close for most positions, and again there were cases where a few points made the difference of one or two rankings.

No team with more than three losses managed to get into the top ten.

Duke University, which gave the Tar Heels some of their toughest competition to date, ranked in 20th place on the UPI poll with only 8 points.

Tar Babies In First Defeat With Poor Shooting, Errors

By OWEN DAVIS
DTH Sports Writer

The Tar Babies' ten-game winning streak came to a halt Monday night in Raleigh when the State frosh won in an upset 87-68. The normally sure-shooting UNC freshmen could not find the range from the field and also were guilty of repeated floor mistakes.

UNC's record now stands at 10-1.

Carolina, which had hit over 50 per cent of its field goal attempts in all but two previous contests, managed a weak 38.7 mark from the outside. In contrast, State was accurate on 53 per cent of its shots and in a big second-half surge connected at a 60 per cent clip.

Both teams were ragged in their floor play. UNC made 28 floor miscues to State's 25. State, however, turned the Tar Babies' errors into points while Carolina did not capitalize on its breaks.

A second-period scoring onslaught by State spelled the difference. Carolina trailed only 35-32 at halftime but the Wolflets poured in 52 in the second half while UNC put in only 36.

Tom Smith led the late surge with 23 points, 21 of which came in the last half. Dale Abernethy followed close behind for the Raleigh crew with 22 points and Nelson Isley fired in 15 from long range. Abernethy carried the Wolflet scoring load in the opening half as he scored 14 in the first-half and also hauled in 10 rebounds for the game.

For the Tar Babies, Jim Delaney scored 21 points followed by Charlie Scott with 17 and 11 rebounds.

Coach Larry Brown best explained the loss by saying, "The ball just wouldn't go in the basket."

Carolina had numerous opportunities to forge ahead but poor shooting and sloppy ball-handling always prevented a hot streak.

State took the lead from the outset and the Tar Babies only led briefly. UNC managed to get a 16-10 advantage but behind Abernethy's hot shooting, the Wolflets quickly bounced back to go on top, 20-18. Carolina never held the lead again.

With 2:17 left in the first half, State extended the margin to 33-24. Delaney and Eddie Fogler, UNC's quick, ball-hawking guards, then went to work. Several steals later, the Tar Babies trailed by only three points and the half ended at 35-32.

Taking advantage of defensive lapses, State broke Smith into the clear on numerous occasions and the big center also picked up many loose balls and converted them to points.

The Wolflets whittled out a 56-46 lead with 10:24 remaining and then Carolina made its last gasp before slowly deflating. With Delaney and Scott doing most of the scoring, the Tar Babies rang up eight straight points to close within two points at 56-54.

Vann Williford then made the big play of the game for State as he made a layup and then converted a foul shot on a three-point play to pull the Wolflets ahead, 59-54, with 8:24 left.

Last Saturday evening in Carmichael Auditorium the opinion of the students in Chapel Hill was voiced on the subject of two men. A football coach was cheered and an athletic director was booed. Both reactions were virtually unanimous.

When Bill Dooley approached the microphone the capacity crowd greeted him with a standing ovation. It was pleasantly obvious that the crowd supported the man who is now their head football coach.

It was right that Dooley was cheered. He is cleaning and rebuilding a football program that all but collapsed this fall. He has hired good, young assistants to help him. He has removed all of Hickey's staff with the one exception of Fred Mueller, the freshman coach.

But perhaps even more important, the athletes who will play for him both like and respect their new coach.

But Chuck Erickson was booed when he introduced Dooley. When the coach mentioned Erickson in his speech there were more boos.

The reaction to the head of Carolina's athletic program was not only incredibly rude to him personally, it also shockingly displayed the ignorance of the student body.

In sports, as in most everything else, memories are short. Once Jim Hickey was carried on the shoulders of football players after sixty minutes of football in the Gator Bowl. Once Hickey and Erickson were the most popular men in Chapel Hill.

Now Hickey is gone, and now Erickson is booed by people who came to Carmichael to watch the nation's number two basketball team.

There'll be another half time ceremony in the Auditorium this Saturday. The Carmichael Cup will be presented by the ACC to the University of North Carolina.

The Cup means that Carolina last year had the outstanding athletic program in the conference. Soccer, cross country, tennis, track, and baseball teams are all wrapped up in that piece of silver. All placed high in conference standings, and one was ranked fourth in the nation.

The Cup is a tribute to, more than anyone, Charles P. Erickson. He built the program and he is responsible for it.

"But people ignore the cup and what it means. All they think about is seven losses suffered on football fields this fall.

Someday Dooley will build a fine football team. When that happens the boos will stop.

Last year, thousands of lawyers, bankers, accountants, engineers, doctors and businessmen went back to college.

And not just for the football games.

We'd like to clear up what appears to be a misunderstanding. It is somewhat popular on campus to decry a business career on the grounds that you stop learning once you start working for Cliché Nuts & Bolts.

That idea is groundless. We can't speak for Cliché, but we can for ourselves—Western Electric, the manufacturing and supply unit of the Bell System. 6 out of 10 college graduates who have joined us over the past 10 years, for example, have continued their higher education.

How're these for openers: W.E.'s Tuition Refund Plan lets employees pursue degrees while working for us. Over 6 thousand have attended schools in 41 states under this plan. We refund more than $1 million in tuition costs to employees a year.

To name another program: advanced engineering study, under the direction of Lehigh University, is conducted at our Engineering Research Center in Princeton, N. J. Selected employees are sent there from all over the country for a year's concentrated study leading to a master's degree.

You get the idea. We're for more learning in our business. After all, Western Electric doesn't make buggy whips. We make advanced communications equipment. And the Bell telephone network will need even more sophisticated devices by the time your fifth reunion rolls around. The state of the art, never static, is where the action is.

At Western Electric, what's happening is the excitement and satisfaction of continued doing and learning. If this happens to appeal to you, no matter what degree you're aiming for, check us out. And grab a piece of the action.
