

Agreement Clears Way For Ban Hearing

Attorneys for both sides in the Speaker Ban suit filed a stipulation on points on which they agree in U. S. District Court in Greensboro Monday, clearing the way for the case to be heard.

The 34-page stipulation consisted mostly of documents and papers and both sides said they agreed that they were prepared by the persons who said they prepared them.

On August 25, attorneys for both sides will appear before Chief Judge Edwin M. Stanley for "further discussion of all matters pertinent to a hearing of the case on its merits."

A date for hearing of the case by a three-judge court is expected to be set at that time.

Eleven UNC students headed by former Student Body President Paul Dickson and DAILY TAR HEEL Editor Ernie McCrary filed the suit last March. The suit asks that the amended Speaker Ban Law be declared unconstitutional.

Two controversial speakers — Frank Wilkinson and Herbert Aptheker — also signed the suit with the students. Wilkinson and Aptheker were barred from speaking on campus under provisions of the 1963 law, amended by a special session of the General Assembly in 1965.

The suit is against Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson, Consolidated University President William C. Friday and Gov. Dan Moore.

Aptheker is the director of the American Institute for Marxist Studies. Wilkinson is executive director of the National Committee to Abolish the House Un-American Activities Committee.

The law, as it passed originally, forbade known Communists and persons who had pleaded the Fifth Amendment in loyalty cases from speaking on campus.

In November of last year the law was amended to place the authority for regulation of speakers in the hands of the trustees and then into the hands of the administrators.

Playmakers Open Tonight

The Carolina Playmakers will present their 211th bill of original one-act plays at 7:30 P.M. tonight and tomorrow night in the Playmaker Theatre on the Chapel Hill campus.

The plays, written during the first summer session, are "Fly Away Home" by Becky Engle, "Heaven Only Knows" by Betty Setzer, and "Yankee Stew" by Gene Corpening. They are being directed by Barry Startz, Alice Yeaman, and Alex Nislick, respectively.

Following the performance of each play, a discussion will be held between the author and the audience under the chairmanship of Frank Durham, visiting Professor of Dramatic Art from the University of South Carolina.

Admission is free.

GI Checks Mailed

The first checks under the GI Bill education program, more than 16,000 of them, were mailed out last month by the Veterans Administration to veterans attending summer schools throughout the nation.

The first payments were for the month of June and most of them were received by July 20.

According to W. R. Phillips, manager of the Winston-Salem VA Regional Office, payments will be made only after the VA receives the certificates of attendance from the veteran, or from the schools.

In addition, Phillips warns students enrolling under the GI Bill in the fall that it will take about two months for the first check to arrive.

Former Student Jumps Bail

A former University graduate student who had been charged with illegal possession of narcotics has skipped bond.

James H. Cannon, 33, of 109 Carr St., Carrboro, failed to appear for trial Tuesday in Orange County Superior Court, and is being sought by the Orange County Sheriffs Department.

Cannon's case went before a grand jury in Hillsborough Monday which returned a true bill of indictment. When Cannon failed to appear for his trial at 10:30 Tuesday morning, Superior Court Judge Hamilton H. Hobgood ordered a capias, the arrest and presentation of Cannon in court.

Barry Winston, Cannon's attorney said Tuesday that he hadn't seen Cannon and had no idea where he was.

Officials searched for Cannon all Tuesday without finding him. Cannon's wife and three children were still at home in Carrboro, according to Orange County Chief Deputy A. C. Maddry.

Three Coeds Guilty Of Code Violations

Coeds Tried

Three Carolina Coeds were tried before the Women's Council for two kinds of campus code violations within the past week, Mary Bruce Batte, Attorney General for Women, reported Wednesday.

One coed was charged with bringing alcoholic beverages into her dormitory. She was found guilty and given an official reprimand.

Another coed, charged with staying out all night in the Chapel Hill area, was found guilty and given a definite suspension for one semester.

A third coed was charged with returning to her dorm two hours late, found guilty and penalized with 10 nights of campusment.

Alcoa Grants

The Alcoa Foundation has announced an initial grant of $2,250 to the University for the purpose of establishing three scholarships in the amount of $750 each. These have been awarded to students who will be entering freshmen this fall intending to major in the liberal arts or business administration. The check was presented to the University by Mr. W. B. Russell, Manager of the Aluminum Company of America Works at Badin, N. C., and

Mr. A. N. Doty of the Company's Pittsburgh offices.

The Alcoa Foundation intends to continue to support these scholarships in the years to come, and the University plans to include these scholarships in the years to come, among its distinguished awards to be made to students with financial need, with at least one of the awards being made to a student from Stanley County or the surrounding area in which Alcoa has extensive operations.

New Division

A new Division of Education and Research in Community Medical Care has been established at the University School of Medicine here to more effectively plan and coordinate the increasing activities in community medicine.

Dr. W. Reece Berryhill, professor of medicine and dean emeritus, has been appointed director of the division and Dr. Carl B. Lyle, assistant professor of medicine will serve as assistant director.

Dr. Isaac M. Taylor, dean of the medical school, said in his announcement of the new division, "As we define the role of the new division in the medical school and as its work develops, coordination with the Medical Program under the heart disease, cancer and stroke legislation will be important."
