

The Draft And You

Basic Training Is A Rough Road

VROOOOOM! — Pretty Tar Heel cheerleader Jane Dankworth has attracted a crowd of admirers as she sits astride the big new Honda Motorcycle that WCHL Radio station is giving away in cooperation with the Coca-Cola Company. If you're interested, the rules for the contest appear on the placard at Jane's back. If you're not interested in the contest, keep your eyes open anyway—you'll never know when you'll see Jane spinning up Cameron Avenue on the contest bike. That, in itself, is a grand prize.

Would you believe that "Beat State Weekend" has finally arrived? All the fun begins tonight with the opening of three great movies highlighted by the North Carolina premiere of the award winning "Doctor Zhivago" at the Center Theater in Durham. The acclaimed the Epics, there. If you happen to find yourself down Raleigh way, check out the Villagers at the Embers Club.

BIG NAMES
Next week packs a double shot of thrills. Thursday presents the dynamic duo of soul, the one and only Righteous Brothers along with Nino and April and a fantastic list of others in a Dorton Arena Spectacular. Saturday, the Four Tops will have things jumpin' at Carnichael. Incidentally, the first person to see or call me at 929-2834 and tell the title of the Tops' first big hit, will win a free ticket to their show.

FAIRS
On the fair scene, the Zebulon Five County fair opens next Tuesday. One of the highlights of the N. C. state fair in October, will be the fabulous "James Brown" and "His Show" by the Zebulon Five.

ALBUMS
Many groovy albums were released this summer. At the top of the scene are Chuck Jackson's "Tribute to Soul" and Billy Stewart's "Unbelievable!" If you dig jazz, you'll go for "Four and More" a la Miles Davis and "Latin Mann" featuring Herbie and the group. "The Beach Boy's Greatest Hits, Vol. 1" and The Medallions' "Double Shot of my Baby's Love" are two more best sellers. Best in soundtracks is Henry Mancini's "Arabesque."

DANCING
In case you get too high spirited Saturday and find yourself lost, look in any direction and you will find a swingin' combo party. UNC's One-Eyed Jacks will play in front of Graham Memorial immediately following the game. The renowned Magnificents, showstoppers everywhere, will also be providing post game entertainment via Ehringhaus. Chester Mayfield and his Casuals are on tab at the Scott College Social Room. Granville West hosts the Dynamic Prophets in their luxurious basement beginning at eight. The "Last-Night-I-Had A-Wonderful-Dream" Majors are featured in a Davie College Wing Ding at the Naval Armory. But Chase is the word, for Mighty Mo hosts the Daydreams along with

Fifth of a Series

By ELTON FAY
Associated Press Writer
Over there, in a cramped down and dusty field, is a company of recruits, formed in two ranks. Midway along the double row is a six-foot high platform, atop it a man. He wears a peaked, wide-brim campaign hat, the hallmark of the drill sergeant. He is starting you off in basic training—the "essential fundamentals" of military life and operation.

The recruit, whatever service he is in, is going to wonder about some of the things, like saluting, the military calls essential.

It is something you probably will get used to, but never like.

First you learn to march and to fight with basic weapons and with hands—and feet. In this day of jeeps, trucks, armored personnel carriers, helicopters and transport planes, why this marching stuff? And since about half of all men in military service are unlikely ever to engage in actual combat, why the use of arms?

MOVE ON FOOT
Viet Nam has demonstrated that men still must move on foot after they have been airlifted into a battle zone. And back in home bases, marching in formation preserves organization and keeps a group from becoming a shuffling mob.

In about the second or third week of training, you go into the basic combat phase.

On the drill field, they show you how to outlive your enemy. It is rough but can make the difference between becoming an old veteran or a new casualty.

BASIC WEAPON
In training, a man's basic weapon is the M14 rifle. You spend hours and days learning how to service and use the M14. You move on through the manual of arms and into when to fire at what kinds of targets in daylight and darkness.

The M14, like military rifles for more than two centuries, is fitted with the bayonet mount. You learn the rudiments of bayonet work in the first hours of drill field training, the thrust toward the enemy's chest and throat, the best way to pull the bayonet out swiftly to meet attack from another enemy.

There are other hours of hand-to-hand combat training. Like weaponry, hand-to-hand combat has undergone changes. Along with learning to kick or use the butt of the rifle against the groin, hand-to-hand combat now includes some of the techniques of karate and judo. You learn also about another handy weapon, the grenade.

EXPERIENCE
An increasing number of drill instructors are fresh back from Viet Nam. They speak and teach from experience.

The sergeant up on the platform calls a 10-minute break. He puts his hand on his hips, looks over the two ranks, tells them:

"Most of you look pretty good, but you've got a lot more to do."

Assistant drill instructors work with individuals who don't seem to catch on quickly.

Like back home in school, there is an examination time at the end of the eight weeks—"combat proficiency test." It embraces 14 subjects—weapon use, guard duty, advancing against dug-in enemy, operating under gas attack conditions, first aid — and 22 questions on general military subjects.

You have been taught what to do under atomic attack: the rudiments of tactical intelligence; the code of conduct (give your captors only your name, rank and serial number and answer no questions which he can use in his operations or as blackmail against your family back home). You have received some lectures and viewed some training film on counter-insurgency (helping a local population while winning it away from the enemy and over to your side)

If you flunk, you may have to go through one or more subjects. But you probably won't flunk. At Fort Dix instructors estimate that out of a group of 220 recruits only four or five won't pass.

When you graduate, you are assigned to advanced combat training, to combat units or to technical training and technical units.
Tomorrow — we'll tell you about pay benefits.

This is your chance, Student #7026941. Drink Sprite and be somebody.

Take heart. Take a dime. Then take a bottle of Sprite from the nearest pop machine. Suddenly it's in your hand. Cold. Biting. Tart and tingling. You cackle fiendishly and rub your hands together. (You should; they're probably chilled to the bone by now.) You tear off to a corner, alone, but within earshot of your fellows.

SPRITE. SO TART AND TINGLING. WE JUST COULDN'T KEEP IT QUIET.
