

The Viking Prince

By OWEN DAVIS
DTH Sports Writer

Bob Hume comes from the waterfront town of Memphis, Tenn. He does not, however, bear any marks of activity on the docks with the local strongboys. Rather Hume resembles a refined Viking prince with his light hair, nice looks, and firm build of 6'11", 205 pounds.

Hume, starting tight end and a tri-captain for Carolina, is a product of Memphis' Central High. In high school, he played end for three years and was a top pass receiver.

He received several offers to play football for different colleges but he said, "I liked the campus and people so much I decided to come here."

Tight end has not always been Hume's position at Carolina. "My sophomore year I was a wide end and last year I played flanker," he said. "I like playing tight end. Last year I did not feel like I was a part of the team when I was way out from everything at flanker."

"Now I feel like more a part of the team and I can help more while I am blocking. I usually am blocking the defensive tackle or end except when I do downfield blocking."

The Kentucky game was a letdown for Carolina fans and Hume was particularly displeased about it.

"I didn't do well at all and no one else did either. We made an awful lot of mistakes. I put the blame on us, not the coaches, because we had been well-coached."

"We forgot assignments sometimes and just missed them other times. It seems like a group of people in college could remember what to do but we did not seem able to remember much."

"State has a real fine team," Hume commented. "They were good last year and have everybody back. They played a good game against Michigan State. We will just have to play better than we did against Kentucky."

Having played against some of the best teams in the nation in his three-year stint here, Hume has seen many top stars and memorable games.

"The names I remember the most since I have been here are Remi Prudhomme, Pat Screen and Joe Labruzzo of LSU." Prudhomme was a linebacker and Screen and Labruzzo were quarterback and halfback on the team which beat UNC, 20-3, in 1964. "Georgia had a tackle named Ray Rissmiller who was real good and so was Bob Matheson of Duke."

"The Duke game of last year was my best game even though we got stomped. I caught nine passes, and that's the most I have ever caught in one game."

Hume said the most exciting game he has ever been in was last year's Clemson game which Carolina won 17-13. The game ended with Clemson on the Tar Heels' six-inch line.

The 14-3 victory over Ohio State last year will always be remembered in Carolina football history. Hume said, "That was the happiest I have ever been after a game."

Hume is also a starter on the baseball squad and plays left field. He hopes to use his baseball ability in the future and said he would like to try professional baseball if given the opportunity.

A history major, Hume does not know what the future holds for him. "I will probably be a draftee next year," he said. With his appearance, maybe he will be sent to Norway.

For Some, The Basketball Season Never Really Ends

Bob Lewis swishes a long jumper, Mark Mirken sets a screen, Larry Miller blocks a shot, Tom Gauntlett hauls down a rebound, Dick Grubar dribbles the ball and Jim Bostick makes a sharp pass.

This is the scene in Carmichael Auditorium each afternoon from two to four o'clock. The Tar Heel varsity basketball players have been participating in informal, voluntary workouts in preparation for October 15, when practice officially begins.

The workouts consist of many 10-point games of three on three. One such contest might pit Lewis, Mirken and Bostick against Miller, Gauntlett and Grubar. The way these guys hustle, scramble and harass one another on the court, you would never know that these games have little meaning. The players just like competition and don't know how to "put out" less than 100%.

Off the court you wouldn't find better friends than Gauntlett and Lewis. But in a basketball game that's a different situation altogether. Gauntlett shoots, Lewis rebounds, Gauntlett steals the ball and then Lewis blocks his shot. They may be roommates, but they sure take their basketball seriously. They both want to win, they both want to improve and they both love basketball, so when these two opponents square off, you can bet the game will be a spirited one.

These workouts mean different things to the players and the coach.

"All of the varsity prospects," said Coach Dean Smith, "are taking part in these pre-season practices. This is a good sign of their attitude. It's not imposed on them by coaches. They realize that the others would get far ahead if they weren't out there."

"These practices help your individual moves, picks and man to man defense," Gauntlett said. About Bob Lewis he further stated, "He's great. You would think after three years that I would know his moves, but every day Louie shows me something new."

Lewis said, "You have to play all the time to keep your game in shape. Some of us run wind sprints and some don't. It's up to the individual. These workouts help us keep our fine skills and condition our legs at the same time."

Grubar, a sophomore guard, said, "These practices have given me a chance to play with the veterans. They're good ball players and they sort of adapt to you. There's a good chance for game conditions, like shooting a jumper with someone right on top of you."

Bostick, another sophomore, reiterated Grubar's statements. "I have a chance to become accustomed to the rest of the players before the 15th and also to keep my game in good shape."

Although these practice sessions began in the middle of September, basketball for Lewis, Gauntlett, Grubar and Bostick began a long time before. Besides a regular job, these varsity members worked out and played basketball on their own all summer. For some people the basketball season is never really over.

"It's always been my goal to coach and to come back to Carolina in some capacity," he said.

Mueller is assisted by four members of the 1963 UNC Gator Bowl squad. Gene Sigmon is handling the defense, Joe Robinson the defensive backs, Jim Alderman the offensive line and John Atherton the offensive backs. Mueller praised this group for doing a good job in passing on their experience to the frosh.

The Tar Babies have 29 players on scholarship this year and 45 boys on the team altogether, including three more from Hamilton, Ontario, Canada. Varsity performers Mark Mazza and Dick Wesolowski from last year's freshman team are also from Hamilton.

The starting lineup is pretty well set for the State game. Ken Price, a good thrower and roll-out runner from Erwin, is the starting quarterback. The halfbacks will be Doug David from Atlanta, Ga., and Sauliu Zemaitis

Orioles Clinch Pennant

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles clinched the American League Pennant today with a 6-1 victory over the Kansas City Athletics.

The Orioles' 95th victory of the season, combined with Detroit's 5-3 loss to California in the opener of a doubleheader, eliminated the second-place Tigers from pennant contention.

The Orioles, managed by Hank Bauer, have held first place since June 14. Outfielder Frank Robinson, acquired in a pre-season trade with Cincinnati of the National League, has led the team's attack. He leads the League in home runs, runs batted in and batting average, and contributed two doubles and a single to the Orioles' pennant-clinching victory. Pitcher Jim Palmer tossed a five-hitter.

Fred Mueller - Old Name In A Brand New Job

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

A new coach will lead a new crop of Carolina freshman football players against the N. C. State freshmen in Riddick Stadium in Raleigh at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Fred Mueller has assumed the duties as freshman football coach this year. The Iserlin, N. J., native played guard for three years at UNC, the first under Jim Tatum and the last two under Jim Hickery. He played on the team that slaughtered Duke, 50-0, and included such boys as Rip Hawkins, Jack Cummings, Al Goldstein and John Schroeder.

Mueller graduated in 1961 and was an assistant coach for two years at Edison High School in Miami, Fla. The head coach there was and still is, Haywood Fowld, a tackle from the Charlie Justice UNC teams. Mueller returned to Chapel Hill in 1963 to work on his M. A. in physical education and he helped George Barclay coach the freshmen that year. He went to Montclair State College in New Jersey for two years and came back again here to replace Barclay, who moved up to help the varsity.

from Ontario. Roger Lowder of Albemarle is the fullback. "Zemaitis is our best running back," Mueller said, "and one of the best pass receivers. Price is a good quarterback. I'd like to play him and Mike Garry (Finleyville, Pa.) about equally."

Steve Burdulis, a good blocker, will open at center. He's 6'2" from Kearney, N. J. At the guards will be Bob Hanna (6', 190 from McKessport, Pa.) and George Stephens (6', 215 from Atlanta). The tackles are John Winkler (6'3 1/2", 220 from Boone) and Jim Saganiec (6'1", 235 from Garfield, N. J.). The ends are manned by Bill Maddox (6'4", 225 from Manlius, N.Y.) and John Piasecky (6'2", 200 from Alexandria, Va.)

"Burdulis and Maddox are our best boys in the line," the coach said. "Both are real good blockers and Maddox is a good receiver."

John Tripp (6'1", 220 from Hampstead, Long Island, N. Y.) will anchor the defense at middle guard. The tackles are Greg Colbert (6'4", 230 from Wadsworth, Ohio) and Henry Turner (6'3", 215 from Burlington), and the ends are Tom Cantrell (6'3", 210 from Havre de Grace, Md.) and Steve Fuller (6'3", 210 from Greenville).

At the linebackers will be (6'1", 215 from Colonia, N.J.). The secondary will have Ralph Antonello of Carteret, N. J., Sam Cook of Charlotte, Doug David, and Dave Jackson of Jacksonville, Fla.

"Tripp, Cantrell and Fuller are the best on defense," Mueller said, "and Jackson looks good in the secondary. He has the good speed necessary for a defensive back."

In overall strength, Mueller is pleased with the squad and says it has good size in the line and good speed everywhere. He will play his best 11 boys at each position. Some, like Burdulis, will go both ways. Non-starters who will see a lot of action side back, Bob Farmer and Dick Working, halfbacks, and linebacker John Kimberly.
