

Computer Takes Up Needle, Thread To Sew Your Suits

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A computer system that may be the tailor of the future was on display Wednesday at the Merchandise Mart in Charlotte.

This IBM 1130 system would never stick you with pins and all your suits would be cut the same size.

and — provided you don't change sizes between suits — always produces a precise fit.

READY TO WEAR

Since most people buy their clothes ready to wear instead of from tailors, the International Business Machines Corp. plans to put the computer to a more practical purpose. It will attempt to standardize clothing sizes for men and women.

Even in this modern age a size 40 suit or a size 8 dress in one shop may be uncomfortably larger or smaller in another shop. IBM officials say this is due to manufacturers making too many variations in the sizes.

CUT PATTERN

Robert D. White of Chicago, Apparel and Textile Marketing representative of IBM's Data Processing Division, contends that much of the difficulty is caused by the pattern being cut from the average size in men's suits, 40 regular and the other sizes being graded from that. By the time an extreme size is reached — say a 32 or 54 — the grading of each suit may vary considerably.

This, White declares, is because the grading is accomplished by people. With a machine, the grading is not based on a man's temperament, and like IBM says: don't change sizes between suits and their trusty computer is capable of churning out a precise fit.

TYPICAL DAY — This is not such an unusual scene around Chapel Hill these days. It seems that into every day a little rain must fall. But, you have to admit, if you have to live through a rainy day, it's nice to have some one to live through it with you — DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

Kids Discuss Problems

Sex, LSD Hit Camp Camp

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Summer camp, 1966! Swimming, hiking, boating, of course. But at Camp Gualala this year traditional activities took a back seat to discussions of sex, LSD, marijuana, mixed marriage, and racial bigotry.

The YMCA camp located in the beautiful redwood country of Northern California was lent to a group of Berkeley high school students seeking a serious camp for people of various races and backgrounds.

COLLEGE RUN

Fifty-four youths attended for one week under the direction of counselors from the University of California and San Francisco State College.

Movies were viewed, professors and a priest heard, a mock trial conducted, and endless conversations were held by the students attempting to come to terms with complex society. One returned student recalls "the atmosphere of freedom" at the camp.

SEX TALK

These comments, for example, were made in a group discussion of sex lead by a young married couple, both graduate students:

"What we've got to work for is to have people marry for love in this society," said one boy.

"Marriage doesn't have to be perfect. Perhaps the continuing search for perfection in marriage is damaging," another boy suggested.

Not far away, a similar group was discussing drugs. Questions such as "Is marijuana addicting?" were asked. One teenager commented:

"Perhaps if you legalized it (marijuana) people would be more apt not to use it. Anything that's illegal kids may do because they're not supposed to." One afternoon, a mock trial of a draft-dodger was conducted.
