JULIE CHRISTIE is anxiously awaiting the second meeting on careers for senior women to be held Tuesday night.

Faith, Scholarship FOCUS Subjects

Four UNC and Duke professors, including a department chairman and a Kenan professor, will participate in a panel discussion Sunday night, sponsored by FOCUS '67.

The topic of this discussion, to be held at 8:00 in the Dey Hall faculty lounge, will be "Christian Faith and Scholarship: the Problem of Synthesis."

The panel will include Professor Clifford P. Lyons from the UNC English department, Professor Frank W. Hanft from the School of Law here, Dr. James D. Mallory, a psychiatrist at Duke.

Each panel member will speak from his own experience on the reconciliation of these two apparently separate realms; each man is a highly respected scholar in his field, as well as a committed Christian.

Dr. Lyons, who received his Ph.D. in 1932 from Johns Hopkins University, was a professor and department head at the University of Florida before coming to UNC in 1946 where he has been a professor, a department head, the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, and since 1961 a Kenan professor of English. For twenty years he was also Associate Editor of English Literary History.

Dr. Hanft has taught at UNC since receiving his S.J.D. degree from Harvard in 1931. He is the author of numerous articles on both law and Christianity, and has published two books: "You Can Believe: A Lawyer's Brief for Christianity," & "Christianity and the Living Law."

A native of Chapel Hill, Dr. Brooks received his Ph.D. from Harvard in 1956 and spent nine years as a computer architect for IBM (he is the "father" of the Systems 360 computer, their latest and best development) before coming to UNC in 1965, where since 1966 he has been chairman of the Information Sciences Department. He is the co-author of a book, "Automatic Data Processing."

Under-equipped? Not at all. The average foreign car requires very little in the way of tools to keep it in top fighting trim. Periodically, of course, we do get some unusual cases, but we manage to take them in stride. The little buggy pictured above, for instance, belongs to an eccentric Scot who claimed he lost 'a penny in the gear box. Believe it or not, we could make change.
