

BELLS, BELLS, bells, bells . . . and so on. That's what the poem says, anyway. And that's what GM is all about these days, with bellsy type Christmas decorations hanging all over the place. Maybe they're just trying to get everyone up for going home for Christmas. It shouldn't be hard. —DTH Photo by Mike McGowan

Seat Strap Safety Stressed

RALEIGH (AP) — The commander of the North Carolina

Highway Patrol said Monday "we know that seat belts would have almost certainly saved at least seven" of the 24 persons killed in weekend traffic accidents in the state.

"But those belts weren't fastened," said Col. Charles Speed, "and there is sorrow in seven more households as the result." He added that high speed, run-off-the-road accidents took 11 lives. Failure to yield the right-of-way was involved in five fatalities.

"It was a bitter and bloody weekend," Speed stated. "Past experience has taught us that December is perhaps the deadliest month of the year on our streets and highways. And from the weekend death toll, it seems that the present December may be no exception to that tragic rule."

HOORAY RAY

Tickets to Ray Charles' performance tonight at Greensboro Coliseum are not available at the Record Bar as was reported in Avon Privette's "Goings On" column last week. Plenty of tickets are available, however, at the gate for the 8:30 p.m. show.

Erhinghaus Decorates

Erhinghaus Residence College will begin Yuletide festivities on South Campus this week with a decorating party and a Christmas - A - Go - Go combo party.

The decorating party, sponsored by Erhinghaus, 3rd Floor Nurses' Dorm, and Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority, will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 Thursday night. All residents of South Campus are invited to sing Christmas carols and help decorate the main lobby and lounge.

The Christmas - A - Go - Go combo party, Saturday night, 8 to 12, will feature The Loved Ones (formerly the Shadows) singing their new record which will soon be released.

The party is free to all residents of Erhinghaus and is open to the rest of the campus at $1.00 per couple. College president, Allen Shepard, said the party would be informal, but that everyone attending was invited to celebrate the Christmas season by dressing up.

It has been rumored that a famous personality who makes worldwide appearances every December 25 will be present at the decorating party and the Christmas-A-Go-Go.

Student Directories

Student directories for the current academic year are now on sale at campus stores.

The directories sell for $.50 and include students' campus addresses and telephone numbers as well as their permanent addresses. Another section lists faculty and departmental telephone numbers on campus.

'Left Heel'

Due to a press not being available, the "Left Heel" was not published Nov. 28 or Dec. 5. Publication will resume Monday, Dec. 12.

Art Rescue

A $10,000 goal has been set by the campus Committee for the Rescue of Italian Art, to aid in the restoration of the priceless art treasures damaged in the recent Italian flood.

Bill Schwartz, who was named chairman of the student CRIA group at a meeting Wednesday, said yesterday that a booth will be set up in Y Court throughout the week from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and asked that each student contributes at least one dollar.

Roles Available

Director Mark Schoenberg has announced that roles for nine men and five women are available for the Carolina Playmakers fourth major production of the year, "The Three Sisters" by Anton Chekhov.

Tryouts will be held Thursday, Dec. 8 at 4:00 and 7:30 in Memorial Hall, with production dates set for March 1-6. The tryouts have been scheduled early since the University's Christmas vacation and semester break will interrupt the rehearsal period.

One of the most popular of Chekhov's plays, "The Three Sisters" was first presented in 1901 at the famed Moscow Art Theatre. It deals with the frustrations, hopes, jealousies and loves in a Russian household at the end of the last century.

All students, faculty, townspeople, and anyone within a commuting distance of Chapel Hill is invited to tryout.

Scripts are available for reading purposes at 307 Bynum Hall on campus.

Freshman Committees

Freshmen interested in joining class committees may do so by coming to RP Lounge 2, 2nd Floor Gm — 2-5 p.m. Mon., Wed., Thurs., and Friday of next week.

Committees are:

- (1) Comm. on Social Projects
- (2) Comm. on Finance
- (3) Freshman Curriculum Commission
- (4) Secretariat
- (5) Newsletter

UC Reforms Expected

Although few classes were meeting, protest leaders still marched just outside the campus booming through a bullhorn, "do not go to classes. Support the strike."

The strike committee handed out leaflets countering the Chancellor Heyns' message.

"I am opposed to the strike," Heyns said in his statement. "Protest is legitimate; sometimes it is imperative."

But he argued that disruptive tactics were incompatible with resolving conflicts in an academic community.
