Greek, Roman Artifact Sale Set For Ackland Art Center

An exhibition and benefit sale of Greek and Roman antiquities and coins will be held at the Ackland Art Center today through next Friday during regular museum hours (10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Tuesday - Saturday; 2-6 p.m. Sunday). Sponsored by the N.C. Society of the Archaeological Institute of America, the exhibition contains a number of items ranging in value from $5 to more than $1,000. Represented are Greek and Roman coins, Anatolian seal stones, terracotta figures, Greek vases, Roman glass and other items.

According to Mrs. Henry R. Immerwahr, secretary of the N. C. Society, Professor William Willis of the Duke University Classics Department, arranged with Hesperia Art in Philadelphia, Pa., for shipment of the antiquities. The exhibition was held at Duke University last week and UNC has obtained new objects from the Hesperia Center for its exhibition.

"This is an excellent opportunity for area citizens to see original works and acquire pieces at moderate prices," Mrs. Immerwahr said. "The money acquired will be added to the Institute's Endowment Fund."

In the least expensive $5 - $10 group are a number of late Roman to early Christian oil lamps as well as some coins. Ranging from $20 - $100 are more expensive coins teracotta and bronze statuettes from Syria (1000 B.C.) Anatolian seal stones from the second millennium (2000 - 1000 B.C.) Greek terracotta statuette heads, small Greek vases and Roman glass.

Among the most expensive items are Greek vases which can be attributed to individual painters and items of Roman bronze including a helmet. Also included are two Luristan Bronze bridle bits from Persia (9th century B.C.)

Officers of the N. C. Society of the Archaeological Institute of America are Dr. J. Penrose Harland, president; Dr. Sidney Markman of Duke, vice president - Admiral Ralph Earl of Durham, second vice president; and Mrs. Immerwahr, secretary.

UNC coordinator of the exhibition is Dr. John Schnorrenberg of the Art Department.

THESE ITEMS ARE FEATURED in the Antiquities Exhibition being held in the Ackland Art Center through next Friday. On the front row from the left is a Luristan Bronze (bridle bit) (1000 B.C.). In the center are two late Roman oil lamps and some silver coins (drachmos) with the head of Alexander the Great and some silver tetradrachms with portrait heads of Alexander's successors. The back row from left contains a Greek Klix (Cup) with Gorgon head, a Greek red figured Klix with athletes (the most expensive item in the exhibition) and a bronze Roman helmet.

Taxi Service

Raleigh - Durham Aviation, Inc., announced today they will offer a passenger and freight air charter service, RD Air-Taxi.

Service representatives will be at the company's counter in Raleigh - Durham Airport from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. After hours, flights may be arranged by calling the company's main office on the airfield.

Air - Taxi representative Charles Olivers says the service handles all baggage, reservations and connections for direct flights to any point in North America.
