Carolina To See College Bowl

Area residents will be able to watch Carolina's visit to the College Bowl Sunday night at 5:30 over WTVD Channel 11 in Durham.

The half hour contest between UNC and North Central College (Naperville, Ill.) will be aired live from New York through arrangements with the N. Y. advertising agency and General Electric, the show sponsor.

The show will be seen in North Carolina over the following other television stations: WITN-TV, Washington; and WCCB-TV, Charlotte.

Members of the University of North Carolina's Bowl team are Mary Ellen Lane, junior, Chapel Hill; Craig M. Bradley, senior, Wingate; David S. Harris, senior, Snow Hill; and Sam S. Long II, senior, Charlotte. First alternate is Don R. Lyman, senior, Miami Shores, Fla., and second alternate is Joseph C. Belden, junior, Port Washington, N. Y.

The six members have an average College Entrance Examination Board score of 1,400 and a projected quality point average of 3.3. According to Dr. Charles Wright, Bowl team coach, "They're good B students with many varied interests, including sports and popular culture. They have quick responses and a healthy sense of competition and I think we have a very good chance of winning."

The College Bowl is an intercollegiate game based on quick recall of facts. Each college presents a team of four "Varsity Scholars" who are asked questions drawn from a variety of subjects including American and European History, American, English and European Literature, philosophy, science, music and art, and languages.

A winning team may return to defend against the next challenger until it reaches the maximum of five wins. Each victory earns for the school a scholarship grant of $1,500 from General Electric. Five-game winners receive an additional $1,500 grant, making the total $9,000 plus a silver achievement bowl for the school. Gimbel Department Stores add another $1,500 grant.

'The Mountains Don't Care'

City, resting and recuperating. On the 25th they begin their ascent of the third highest mountain in North America, Orizaba, a symmetrical volcano pointing gracefully 18,900 feet through the Mexican sky.

The climb to Orizaba's summit was unhampered by winds, the day being clear enough to enable the three who reached the summit to see several hundred miles to the Gulf of Mexico to the east.

"It seemed as if the air was void of all oxygen," remarked John Thorne. "And I'm the kind of guy who gets sick on ferris wheels," he added as he trudged upwards to 18,000 feet above sea level.

Thorne climbed with Judy Hickman, the Co-Chairman of the UNC-G outing club who happened to be climbing the mountain the same day. Thorne reached the summit at 1:30 p.m., while the two Owen brothers had already climbed to the top by 11:30 earlier that morning. Coming down, the party experienced a "While-out" where the clouds rolled in, making it impossible to distinguish where the snow stopped and the clouds began.

However, the clouds parted long enough to permit the climbers to see their way for a few seconds, and they plodded down to safety.

The journey to and from Mexico was completed in a re-outfitted 1960 VW bus. The boys drove the 2600 miles non-stop for 60 hours driving time each way.

"Man, it's good to be home—and to be clean again!" admitted one of the returned team members.

No Conspiracy Involved In Oswald Death, Ruby Claimed

the hospital was for a lie detector test which he hoped would prove once and for all that there was no conspiracy. But polygraph experts and doctors said the advanced state of his cancer and the drugs used for treating it would make such a test meaningless.

Ruby was taken to the hospital on Dec. 9 after jail doctors had treated him for about three weeks for a severe cold. The hospital announced an admission diagnosis of pneumonia and listed Ruby in serious condition. Some 24 hours later, doctors said he had cancer.

Extensive examination showed the malignancy had invaded his pancreas, lungs and lymph glands—and was so widespread that its source could not be determined. Doctors said this meant that surgery and ray treatment were impossible and that all they could do was try, without any real hope, to arrest the cancer with chemicals.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals last November ordered a second trial for Ruby in a different city. The court said Criminal Dist. Judge Joe B. Brown of Dallas erred in not ordering the first trial moved from Dallas and in admitting police testimony about what Ruby did and said after too much time had passed for this to be considered part of the crime itself.

Judge Louis Holland of Montague, who had taken over the case, ordered the second trial held in Wichita Falls, 135 miles northwest of Dallas, and indicated it would be set for February or March.

But from the time the cancer diagnosis was announced it was evident that Ruby would never be able to stand trial again.

In his first trial, Defense Attorney Melvin Belli introduced voluminous testimony by psychologists and psychiatrists and electric tracings of Ruby's brain waves—all intended to prove that Ruby suffered from a rare ailment known as psychomotor epilepsy, that brief attacks could be brought on by overpowering emotion and that in these spells he acted as if he were functioning rationally but actually was in a fugue state or blackout—behaving as an automaton.

The defense contended it was in such a blacked-out state that Ruby killed Oswald. PSYCHIATRISTS PRESENTED

The prosecution presented psychiatrists who contended that Ruby knew exactly what he was doing and what it meant.

At the time of the shooting, Ruby was 52, a squat, husky man who acted as his own bouncer and might unpredictably throw a patron out of his joint for looking, "at the girls wrong" or might, like a Damon Runyon character, turn around and "give you the shirt off his back."

He usually carried a pistol, friends said, probably because he also carried large sums of money. But nobody had ever known him to use the pistol until he killed Oswald with it.

Ruby said the chance that brought him face to face with Oswald was a decision to make an illegal left turn.

He was on his way to the downtown Western Union office a block west of the police station, to send a money order loan to one of his strippers who needed $25 to pay her rent.

As he passed the police station, he decided to make an illegal left turn across Main Street into a parking lot, he said, and as he returned to his car he decided to see what the crowd was doing in the jail basement.

It was then early 11:20 a.m., and Oswald's transfer, Ruby recalled, was "supposed to be" at 10 o'clock.

In a recording made secretly in his hospital room, according to Gertz, who headed Ruby's final legal staff, Ruby said: "The ironic part of this is, hadn't I made an illegal turn behind the bus to the parking lot, had I gone the way I was supposed to go straight down Main St., I'd of never, I would never have met this fate because the difference in meeting this fate was 30 seconds one way or the other."

SEALS OSWALD'S LIPS

Ruby fired the fatal shot at 11:20 a.m., sealed Oswald's lips, cut off the world from a chance to examine the accused assassin in court, intensified rumors of a conspiracy—and became the first murderer in history to commit his crime before a nationwide television audience of millions. No crime in all history was ever viewed by so many people.

Born March 25, 1811, in the Maxwell Street slum of Chicago, Ruby was the sixth of nine children of an immigrant Polish carpenter, Joe Rubenstein, and his wife, Fannie.

His real name was Jake Rubenstein.

His sister, Eva, nicknamed him "Sparky" because of his quick temper and the way he fought to win at anything—street games or brawls with the tough Italian kids up the street.

Even when he was 10, said brother Earl, "he was always getting into fights and winning 'em."

His parents split up when Ruby was 12 and he was placed in a foster home.

He dropped out of high school at 16 and worked at odd jobs like scalping tickets to sports events.

In 1933, he moved to San Francisco and sold newspaper subscriptions door to door.
