

'Space Age' In At Planetarium

By MICHAEL EDWARDS of The Daily Tar Heel Staff

The "Space Age" is "In!" In fact, right here in Chapel Hill.

The place, the Morehead Planetarium.

One of the University's most widely acclaimed buildings houses what is probably the largest resource of information concerning the space age and its related fields in this area.

Duke professors. It was a study of the flight patterns of birds at night. The experiment is trying to determine whether the birds use the stars as a navigational aid or not.

"These are just a few of the many things we can offer," Knapp added. "We would like to see more students get interested. Because of better advertising in the past few years, as well as the effect of Sputnik I, we have had an increase in the number of visitors.

Just last summer the Planetarium served some 25,000 people and during its 18 year history more than 1.75 million people have passed through its doors.

Guitar Recital Will Renew Recital Series

Classic guitar recitalist Bryan Webb will perform at Carolina's first 1967-68 Tuesday Evening Series Concert at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Hill Music Hall.

Currently Artist-in-Residence at North Carolina State University at Raleigh, Webb is a graduate of Southwestern College and has done music graduate study at Fresno State College and Stanford University.

He has performed throughout the United States and in Europe and Japan on concert stage, radio and television during the past 12 years. Most of his classical guitar training was acquired in Europe, while he studied in Spain, England, France and Italy.

According to the New York Times, because of Webb's broad academic and musical background, he "represents an uncommon breed of classic guitar recitalist."

In ceremonies marking the 200th anniversary of the birth of Andrew Jackson, Webb was invited to play for President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson at Jackson's home, The Hermitage.

The Tuesday Evening Series is sponsored weekly by the Music Department and will bring to the campus a wide variety of vocal and instrumental soloists and ensembles this year. Each performance is open to the public without charge.

INFANT ST. JOHN FROM A HOLY FAMILY. a chalk print by Raphael, is part of the collection to be shown at Ackland Art Center starting October 8.

Ackland Plans New Exhibition

An exhibition devoted to master drawings under the sponsorship of the Samuel H. Kress Foundation, "15th and 16th Century European Drawings," will be on view at Ackland Art Center from October 8 through October 29, 1967. The exhibition is circulating under the auspices of The American Federation of Arts.

Fifty drawings have been selected by A. Hyatt Mayor, former Curator of Prints, The Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. Mr. Mayor wrote the introduction to the handsome catalog accompanying the exhibition, which completely illustrates the 50 drawings, says:

"There is no precedent for the richness and variety of artistic personalities who emerged from 1400 to 1600. The breakup of the Middle Ages released men's imagination as never before.

Painters in France, Burgundy and Italy knew enough about each other's work to be stimulated, but not enough to be overwhelmed. The first giant personalities of drawing emerged in Jan van Eyck, Mantegna, Leonardo, Durer, Michelangelo, Raphael—the first inescapable draftsman.

These pacemakers explored the possibilities of the drawing media that their example made classic — silverpoint, charcoal, red chalk, and ink used with a reed pen, quill or brush.

The style of drawing underwent a tremendous development in the period covered in the exhibition. The earliest drawing included is "Abraham's Dream and Sacrifice" by an anonymous Austrian of about 1430-1450, which, especially in the drapery of the figures, is still Gothic. Contrasting this drawing with the "St. Jerome" by Palma Giovane executed about one hundred and fifty years later, the styles of the early and High Renaissance had already been developed and finalized and Mannerism and Baroque were the contemporary styles at about 1600.

We've just unpacked a nice fat shipment of them, and we haven't seen anything so lovely since we dropped a box of eggs on our mama's pink linoleum.
