

Mercer Proposes Suite Revamping

Mercer also hopes to have one or two upperclassmen in every suite. This would decrease stress among lower classmen he said.

The experimental system would also cut down on stress by creating an atmosphere that "enables an individual to feel more comfortable," and which would "encourage cooperation among individuals," according to Mercer.

Having a study room would also cut down on roommate friction, he said, and provide a better study habits.

The social rooms could be decorated "as the individuals so desire," Mercer explained.

Mercer is presently president of the State Student Legislature, a member of the State Affairs Committee, and a former member of the campus Affairs Committee.

The Steve Baron Quartet sets up in GM with the help of the GM staff. The quartet will be playing all week downstairs in Graham Memorial.

Vietnam, Foreign Policy Will Be Seminar Topic

"Vietnam and Foreign Policy" will be the topic of the first public seminar in a series entitled "Profiles for the Future" sponsored by the Newcomer's Division of the University's Woman's Club here this fall.

Prof. Robert J. Gwyn of the Department of Radio, Television and Motion Pictures, will initiate the series Thursday, at 8 p.m. in Murphey Hall auditorium. The public is invited to participate in the study.

Suggested readings are How the United States Got Involved in Vietnam by Robert Scheer, and Ramparts' "Viet Nam Primer."

Gwyn has done news editing, broadcasting, announcing, writing for educational television and radio, production, television advertising, continuity writing and supervision since 1943. He taught in these fields at Southern Illinois University, the University of Illinois and Ball State University before coming to UNC in 1966.

He holds the B. F. A. degree in broadcasting and the M. A. in sociology from the University of Texas and the Ph. D. in communications from the University of Illinois. His Ph. D. dissertation was entitled "Public Witness and the Press."

Gwyn is serving as clerk in the local Society of Friends and helped organize the silent vigil on Viet Nam held here each Wednesday at noon. He is a member of the Peace Committee of the Southeastern United States Chapter of the American Friends Service Committee located in High Point.

Model UN Sets Plan Meet Today

An organizational meeting for any student interested in helping organize the Model United Nations to be held March 6-10 here will be held in Roland Parker Lounge today at 4 p.m.

Sponsored by the Council on International Relations and U. N. Affairs, the regional conference will include four-man delegations representing schools from Massachusetts down the Atlantic seaboard to Florida, including Kentucky and Tennessee.

Invitations have been extended to 500 universities and colleges and also the law school, political science department, Di-Phi Senate, and Carolina Political Union.

"We need organizational workers now," said Jane-Pro-ty, speaking of the large amount of clerical and other work to be done. She feels that this additional experience will prove valuable to students who hope to serve as delegates later.

Political, economic, social and humanitarian committee meetings will occupy the first two days with a combo party and banquet scheduled for the final day.

Innovations for this year's convention include the replacement of a unitary General Assembly by two bodies acting separately on the same issues.

Bill Schwartz, a veteran of four model sessions since 1962 and former president of the CPU, hopes to avoid the superficiality of mere role-playing. Both he and Morgan feel careful planning can accomplish this.

The convention will be financed by registration fees of $14 for off-campus delegates and $10 for those representing a campus organization. Former host schools for the past two years have been East Carolina and Duke.

Panel To Discuss Coed Role Tonight

"The Coed's Role on the University Campus Today"—an issue that women student leaders have wrestled with for nearly six months—will be thrown to a four-member panel tonight at 7 in Carroll Hall.

Freshmen women have special signout permission to attend the discussion, Women's Residence Council announced Monday.

"We want to hear opinions from Carolina men and faculty members, too, get as many views as possible on the coed's problems on campus and in society in general," said Sharon Rose, WRC chairman.

Dr. Anne Scott, representing the career woman's view, Dr. Sam Hill, faculty; Dean of Women Katherine Carmichael, administration; and Mary King, student view, will scrutinize issues of coeds' responsibilities and privileges. A period of open questioning will follow the panel session.

UNC Greeks Start UNICEF Projects

"Trick or treat for UNICEF" will be the password as the Greeks of Carolina start work on a new service project.

The IFC and Panhellenic Council are cooperating with each other and the community to try to produce $6,000 for the United Nations organization.

What will be one of the biggest UNICEF drives in North Carolina will begin Halloween, Oct. 31, and last until Dec. 18.

The 24 fraternities and eight sororities will form into eight groups—each in charge for one of the eight weeks of the fund drive. They will sponsor bazaars, movies and other money-raising projects.

Jack Rand, chairman of the IFC activities committee, said, "We wanted a big service project like this to really help the community and lift the fraternity image."

Experimental Class 11 Mexican Students On Frats Postponed Here For Conference

The first meeting of the Experimental College course "Fraternity as Part of the Educational Experience" has been postponed until Oct. 24.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the Sigma Nu house. All registered students and those interested in participating in the course should attend.

Kremer To Present Organ Recital Tonight

Dr. Rudolph Kremer will present an organ concert tonight at 8 p.m. in Hill Hall.

The program will feature Romantic organ music, chosen specifically to suit the nature of the Hill Auditorium instrument.

Kremer is professor of music and Chairman of Instruction in Organ in the Department of Music. Before receiving his appointment at UNC in 1964 he held a similar position at Cornell University in Ithaca, N. Y.

A native of St. Louis, Kremer received his undergraduate training at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia. He pursued his graduate study at the Academy of Music in Vienna,
