

BACKSTAGE AT PLAYMAKERS may be just about anything, simply depending on what play is running. But after rehearsals and everything else connected with the production of a play are over, the stage becomes a new entity, populated only by the static life of the props. And the props do seem to have life—or at least a mood—of their own. In this case, the mood is lonely. A table, a newspaper, a flower arrangement, a cup, and an empty stage.

Teachers Quit In Florida

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — About half of Florida's 61,314 teachers quit Monday in a dispute over education finances but most schools tried to remain open, searching desperately for substitutes and volunteers. "The atmosphere is anything but conducive to learning," said a spokesman at a Tampa high school where students tossed firecrackers and chased each other through the halls. Nearly all the regular staff had failed to show up for classes at the school, the spokesman said, and 18 substitutes were unable to keep order.

'Religion & Utopia' Discussion Tonight

"Religion and Utopia" will be the topic of a talk Tuesday night at Professor Thomas Monar at 7:30 in Gerrard Hall.

Molnar's lecture, presented by the Intercollegiate Studies Institute, will be a critical examination of much of contemporary philosophical and religious thought. It will involve the ideas of such men as Martin Buber, Paul Tillich and Teilhard de Chardin.

While a student at the University of Brussels during the German occupation Molnar was arrested by the Nazis for his membership in a secret study group and similar "subversive" organizations. Following the war, he came to the United States and earned a doctorate from Columbia University.

He is currently Professor of French and World Literature at Brooklyn College and Professor of History at Long Island University.

Dr. Molnar is a member of the Foreign Press Association and has had articles published in "Review of Politics," "Commonweal," "Modern Age" and "National Review," as well as French, German, Spanish and South American magazines. His is the New York correspondent for the Paris weekly "La Nation Francaise," and one of the editors of the Catholic monthly "Triumph" magazine.

Independent Minds Find Adventure In The Old Book Corner at the Intimate

Many schools said they would open Tuesday with substitute teachers, but Phil Constans Jr., executive secretary of the Florida Education Association (FEA), predicted most would have to close down soon.

The teachers were under a court injunction prohibiting the walkout, but Constans said "if it takes us going to jail, we're not only willing to do it, we're glad to do it."

The teachers are protesting the $254.5 million education budget rushed through by a special legislative session. They claim it is inadequate to finance the state's school needs.

Duputy state School Superintendent John Seay agreed that many schools may have to close, particularly in big cities where from 50 to 80 per cent of the teachers have signed resignations.

Government officials said they knew of no steps underway to take action against teachers or FEA leaders under the court injunction.

Volkswagen introduces the automatic stick shift.

After lo these many years our humble little bug has gone automatic. Gone is the clutch. Gone is the wifely whine, "It's cute, but I can't drive it." Gone is an era of Volkswagendom. Sniff. And in its place? A Volkswagen you can drive all over town without shifting. Only on the highway do you shift. Once. (This is an economy move. Which, after all, is still the name of the game.) But you do have a choice in the matter—you can drive it the easy way (described above). Or you can start out in low and take it through the gears like a regular stick shift. The automatic stick shift is an option: you pay a little more. But you do a little less.
