

Face Tough Terps And WVU

Matmen Head Into 'Firey Furnace'

By RON SHINN
Special to The Daily Tar Heel

"Everyone knows you only get tempered steel by going into the firey furnace, and that's exactly what we're doing this weekend."

With that Dr. Sam Barnes—University of North Carolina's English professor turned wrestling coach—describes the coming weekend which has his team pitted against Maryland Friday night and West Virginia Saturday night. Both are on the road.

"Nobody but Carolina would schedule Maryland and West Virginia on successive days," Barnes says. "That's not bravery... but bravado." A new look will prevail over the Tar Heels this weekend with the addition of nine freshman wrestlers on the varsity roster.

Both opponents are having fine seasons. West Virginia, under first year coach George Nedeff, has been impressive. Maryland is 4-3 with losses to national powers Penn State and Lehigh. The always powerful Terps can throw six defending ACC champs into the fray. North Carolina is expected to use several veterans in the two matches. Bill Horn will see action at 123 pounds, Craig Miller at 130 pounds, co-captain John Stacey at 137 pounds, Keith Lyons at 145 pounds, Dick Urquhart at 152 pounds, Paul Ogburn at 160 pounds and Fred Preister at 177 pounds or heavyweight. Some newcomers who may see action are Barry Pierce at 123 pounds, Curtis Weaver at 145 pounds, Jim Stephenson at 152 pounds, Fred Ball at 167 pounds and Knox Tate at heavyweight.

Undefeated Trackmen Host Big Seven Meet

The North Carolina trackmen will be out to keep their unblemished record intact this weekend when they host the Big Seven Meet.

The Tar Heels have dual meet wins over South Carolina and Clemson and a four team victory over Wake Forest, N.C. State, and South Carolina already to their credit.

UNC's opponents Saturday will be Duke, N.C. State, Wake Forest, Davidson, N.C. College, and East Carolina. The scoring will be on a 5-3-2-1 basis to determine the overall team winner.

The field events will begin on Friday evening at 7:30. Rick Wilson of UNC who is undefeated this season in the pole vault, and the Tar Heel's Tony Blanchard, who missed the school record in the shot put last week by an eighth of an inch, should be stand out performers in the field events. The runnings events will get underway Saturday at 1:30. Duke's Jeff Howser should be outstanding in the hurdles. UNC will look to Mike Williams in the 1,000-yard run, Ken Helms in the mile and Truett Goodwin in the two mile for leading performances. This meet will provide the ACC entrants with a warmup for next week's ACC Indoor Games at Chapel Hill.
