

Ex-UNC Star Lemonds Fulfilling Boyhood Dream

By RUSTY CARTER
DTH Sports Writer

The dream of every little leaguer is to be a Mickey Mantle, Sandy Koufax, Willie Mays, or just to play professional baseball anywhere. For Dave Lemonds, star pitcher for Carolina last year, part of his boyhood dream has come true.

He is not yet a Mantle, Koufax, or Mays but as a sophomore last spring Lemonds signed a pro contract with the Chicago Cubs. Since then he has played with the San Antonio Missions, a double A minor league farm team of the Cubs, and shut out the Houston Astros in four innings of the Texas League all-star game.

Lemonds, now in the off season, is back in school here and talked of his big league experience while watching the World Series in his room in Ehringhaus.

"I started with the Missions in June and was one of four starting pitchers who rotated," he said.

With a 5-4 record Lemonds was chosen to the Texas League all-stars in August. This gave him his first chance to meet a big league team—the Astros. He pitched the fourth through eighth innings of the game with Houston and turned in a sparkling performance. The lefthander allowed no hits and walked only one man.

"This was the best ball I've ever pitched," said Lemonds. "For one thing I wanted to do a good job and take every advantage of my chance to face a pro club."

The all-star game gave Lemonds a chance to show his stuff but it also presented its problems for the lefty—a sore arm.

"The all-star game itself didn't hurt me," he noted. "But after the game I tried to keep my regular starting turn with the Missions. Altogether it was too much for my arm," Lemonds said.

He was then flown to Chicago for medical treatment of the "tendonitis" that had developed. Lemonds was instructed not to pitch before September and just "take it easy."

"I didn't want to pitch with a sore arm because I didn't want one year to ruin what might be several years in pro ball," said Lemonds.

He did not try his arm again until fall practice at UNC. Lemonds began to work out with the varsity team in late September.

"I was really happy when I started throwing again," he said. "Everything is completely cleared up and it makes me feel much better."

Cured of the brief sore arm, Lemonds said he thinks his future with the Cubs is "pretty bright."

"There is going to be an opportunity for lots of guys to move up because of the expansion of the National League next year," he stated.

The star pitcher plans to keep in shape this fall and get out with the Carolina League out of Durham this spring.

"Playing with the Carolina League would help me stay in condition and if I do well, could help me move up next summer," he added.

Lemonds' future is somewhat clouded by the major league draft and his performance next spring, but his success so far has been outstanding.

Campus News Briefs Murder Trial Held

A murder trial will be held in the University of North Carolina Law School Courtroom at 2 p.m. Friday, Oct. 18, when the editor of the DAILY TAR HEEL is tried for the fatal shooting of the student body vice president.

Wayne Hurder of Champaign, Ill. is accused of shooting Charlie Mercer of Laurinburg in the center of campus before approximately 325 students.

It's all part of the annual Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity mock trial which gives law students a chance to participate in a courtroom situation and the rest of the campus a chance to see a trial. This marks the first time the trial has been held in the University's new Van Hecke-Wettach Law School Building.

The Honorable L.H. Thornberg, prominent Western North Carolina judicial figure, will preside.

The mock trial is the highlight of the law school's extra-curricular activities.

Officers of Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity include justice Bud Cockrell, Rocky Mount; vice justice Gerald E. Shaw, Sanford and second vice justice Charlie Edwards, Bladenboro.

before 1:30 p.m. at the information desk in the foyer of the new Law School building.

The activities are sponsored by the Student Bar Association.

For further information concerning these activities, contact Henry C. Babb Jr., Chairman, Alumni Day Committee, Student Bar Association, UNC Law School, Chapel Hill, N.C., 27514 or telephone 286-9066, Durham.

School of Nursing Gives Study Course

Forty-two professional nursing instructors from practical nursing programs in nine states will attend a week-long study course at the University of North Carolina School of Nursing here this month.

Prof. Neva Stevenson of Cincinnati, Ohio, consultant in Practical Nursing Education, will conduct the course, entitled "Devising Purposeful Clinical Learning Experiences."

Prof. Steven is a former director of the National League for Nursing, Department of Practical Nursing Programs.

Dr. Susanna L. Chase, new director of Continuing Education at the UNC School of Nursing, is in charge of the study course, to be held Oct. 28 to Nov. 1. It is financed by a grant from the Bureau of Health Manpower, Division of Nursing, U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Sixteen of the nursing instructors registered for the course are from North Carolina. Others are from New Jersey, Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, Maryland, Kentucky, Alabama and Virginia.

Omran Speaks Fifth in Series

"Malthus, Population and Epidemiology" is the topic for the fifth program in the weekly lecture series sponsored by the Carolina Population Center of the University of North Carolina here.

Dr. Abdel Omran, associate professor of epidemiology and member of the Center's staff, is speaker for the program, to be held Monday, Oct. 21, at 7 p.m. in the School of Public Health Auditorium.

The lecture is open to interested students, faculty and wives.

Geography Forum

"The Old World Through New Glasses, or Introductory College Geography Revisited" will be the topic of a Geography Forum at the University of North Carolina here on Monday, Oct. 21.

Prof. Robert B. McNee, chairman of the Geography Department of the University of Cincinnati, will be guest speaker. Prof. McNee is active in the Association of American Geographers, particularly in the Commission on College Geography.

The Forum will be held at 2 p.m. in Room 106, Nash Hall.

Alumni Visit for Law School Weekend

Law School Weekend will be held on the campus of the University of North Carolina here Friday and Saturday, Oct. 18 and 19.

Highlights of the two-day program will include the annual Law Alumni Banquet at 6:30 p.m. Friday at the Ranch House, the annual meeting of the Law Alumni Association at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, and the reception following the UNC-Florida football game Saturday.

For Saturday's game with Florida, the alumni will sit in a reserved section of Kenan Stadium on the Carolina side.

The new Van Hecke-Wettach Law School building will be open for tours Friday afternoon and Saturday with guides provided.

Those attending the banquet Friday night should go directly to the Ranch House on Airport Road (Highway 86) and receive their reservations there. Tickets for Saturday's game should be picked up
