

Fort Bragg Incident Military Questions Students

By BRYAN CUMMING
DTH Staff Writer

A Daily Tar Heel reporter and a member of United Anti-War Mobilization Front (UAWMF) were interrogated Friday afternoon by agents from the Criminal Investigation Division (CID), a military agency, in connection with the Ft. Bragg serviceman who appeared on campus Nov. 12.

The UAWMF sponsored an anti-war table and discussion forum with a soldier from Ft. Bragg. A news article by J.D. Wilkinson, reporting 150 students had attended the forum, appeared in the DTH Nov. 12.

Wilkinson was called to the University News Bureau at 1 p.m. Friday to speak with two CID agents about the article, the UAWMF, and Wilkinson's political opinions.

The two CID agents later visited the home of Charles Mann at 426 Whitehead Circle, for a similar discussion.

After Wilkinson arrived at the News Bureau, the two agents identified themselves and acted "very polite and friendly," according to Wilkinson.

The agent who conducted most of the interview first complimented his news article. He then asked Wilkinson about the article of Nov. 12.

Wilkinson told the agent that he had been present at the UAWMF table, but that the Ft. Bragg soldier had not spoken to him personally.

The CID agent asked about membership and leaders of UAWMF and whether he thought UAWMF was a "communist front organization." He replied no, adding wryly "I don't think so."

The agent also asked if Wilkinson had been to Ft. Bragg for "that demonstration" referring to the incident of Nov. 16, when 12 students had been arrested. Wilkinson had not been there.

The agents started a discussion of freedom of speech for military personnel, saying that soldiers have the same rights as civilians. When Wilkinson mentioned the two Ft. Bragg GI's who had been court-martialed, the agents denied any knowledge of the incident.

After the interview with Wilkinson, the CID agents proceeded to the home of Charles Mann, for an interview of about one hour.

The agents who interviewed Mann expressed interest in the case of the soldier who had visited UNC on Nov. 12.

According to Mann, the agents were trying to classify the soldier's visit as a "demonstration" which is illegal while in uniform.

Mann had been at the UAWMF table where the Ft. Bragg serviceman had talked to students. There were anti-war leaflets on the table, but they were not distributed.

The agents informed Mann that he had been filmed on Nov. 12 and that the Navy jacket he had worn was illegal. Mann purchased the jacket at the PTA Thrift Shop.

The agents asked Mann if UAWMF was a "communist front" organization, and discussed political opinions with Mann. Among the questions asked were "have you ever been to Vietnam?"

A possible charge to be brought against the serviceman is seeking publicity for anti-war activity while in uniform.

According to Mann, the agents criticized the Daily Tar Heel for its editorial views.

Mann is one of the students who was arrested at Ft. Bragg Nov. 16. He says that their cars to Ft. Bragg were followed by CID agents.

Referendum On Code Called For

A petition with over 1500 students signatures calling for a referendum to abolish the off-campus restrictions of the Campus Code will be presented to Student Government President Ken Day in the event no action is taken on the issue at Student Legislature Monday.

The petition was circulated in every male residence college except Granville by a newly formed group calling itself the Northeast Campus Judicial Committee.

Committee chairman David Wynn of Norfolk, Va. said:

"I'm confident that something will be done on Monday, but if there isn't we're going to present our petition to Student Government President Ken Day within two or three days after Monday."

Wynn also said that his group talked with SSOC leader Sam Austell earlier in the week about the possibilities of coordinating the activities of the two organizations.

Wynn said they reached a "general agreement" by which his group will examine future issues and work jointly with SSOC providing the problem dealt with is reasonable.

Other members of the Northeast Judicial Committee are vice-chairman Rafael Perez, Dick Holsworth, John Geyer and Tommy Atkinson.

Talent Search Hosts Seniors

Some 57 Negro high school seniors will be guest of the University during National Achievement Weekend, Nov. 22-25.

The project is sponsored by the Carolina Talent Search for the 1968 National Achievement candidates from North Carolina.

The University administration is financing the entire weekend including transportation. The men will be housed in James and the women in Parker and Nurses dorms.

The students are expected to arrive in Chapel Hill beginning Friday afternoon. They will participate in the campus weekend activities as well as discussion groups on such topics as "The Black Student at Carolina," "The College Experience," and a general meeting on academics, admissions and financial aid policies.

Each student will have the opportunity to visit specific classes in any area he wishes. In addition, two professors from each field of study will hold special sessions on academic fields of interest.

Interviews, if desired, will be held Monday morning with directors of admissions and financial aid, Richard Cashwell and William Geer.

The Carolina Talent Search was organized last year by Phil Clay specifically to recruit black students to this university. It is mainly concerned with visiting high schools across the state.

The groups has currently planned a program of specific concentration on a few schools, although students from all over the state will be interviewed. Housing and linen will be provided for all students visiting the campus, however, they will provide their own transportation.

"We're trying to give these students a broad picture of what UNC is like and encourage them to come here," said Joe Shedd, co-chairman of the Carolina Talent Search.

"We're encouraged that members of the University are finally recognizing their responsibility in seeking our students who normally wouldn't have access to information about the University.

Brookhouse are all instructors at UNC.

Lipsitz, a political science professor, is the author of a book of poetry entitled COLD WATER which was published in 1967. He was the subject of a recent TIME MAGAZINE article, and he was included in a new anthology of young American poets.

Charles Wright is an instructor of English and creative writing. He is the author of EARLY RISING, a book of poems which was published a month ago. He has also been published in such magazines as THE KENYON REVIEW, HARPER'S, and SATURDAY REVIEW.

Christopher Brookhouse is also an English professor at UNC. He has had poems published in HARPER'S, CAROLINA QUARTERLY, LILLABULERO, LAUREL REVIEW, and SOUTHERN REVIEW. A book of his poems is being planned and should be published in the near future.
