Court Dismisses Complaint; Elections Scheduled Today

By HARRY BRYAN
DTH Staff Writer

The run-off for student body president will be held as scheduled today after the case of Mike Cozza vs. the Elections Board was dismissed by a unanimous vote of the Student Supreme Court Sunday afternoon.

In the run-off will be Alan Albright, University Party candidate, and Student Party candidate Bob Wilson.

Albright polled the most votes in last Tuesday's election but did not gain a majority of the vote. He took 47 percent while Wilson tallied 26 percent. The remainder of the vote was spread over four independent candidates.

Minor Mickel, chairman of the Elections Board, announced Monday afternoon the NSA referendum will not be on today's ballot because the petition for the referendum has not yet been validated.

The NSA referendum will be held April 22, along with the Black Court referendum.

In the elections trial Sunday, the Supreme Court allowed the Election Board's motion for a dismissal on the grounds that the case was decided last week in the case of Kelly vs. Mickel.

The plaintiff in the Cozza vs. Elections Board case was DTH staff writer Mike Cozza, student body presidential candidate Timothy Knowlton and several others. They moved that the elections of last Tuesday for student body president be invalidated on the grounds they were unfair to both the candidates and the students.

The defense moved that the case be dismissed because the issue had already been decided in the case of Kelly vs. Mickel in which presidential candidate John Kelly attempted to get the elections postponed because of an unconstitutional election law.

The law in question allows each candidate to spend $50 in the campaign plus an extra $200 of party funds for party candidates.

A portion of the Supreme Court's statement read, "This court cannot logically invalidate an election which we last week allowed to be held under identical attendant circumstances. We hold that this body is, as a matter of policy, very reluctant to enjoin or invalidate an election without a showing of fraud and prejudice."

Justices voting were Franklin Freeman, Tom Benton and Bo Bishop. Chief Justice George Kirchbaum was not present.

Miss Mickel also announced the polling places for today's elections. All dorm residents will vote in their own dorms with the exception of Alexander residents, who will vote in Lewis, and Winston residents, who will vote in Connor.

Men living in district three will vote at the Seattlebutt, and men in districts one, three and four, plus off campus women and sorority women will vote in Y-Court. Law students may vote in the Law Building.

She said students are still needed to count votes tonight in rooms 207 and 209 in the Student Union building beginning at 7 o'clock.

A running tally of the vote will be kept in the Student Union lounge.

Albright Seeks Added Involvement By Students

Alan Albright, candidate for student body president, called yesterday for a Faculty-Student Council.

"When consideration is already being given to having students serve on the Board of Trustees, wisdom would dictate that such participatory management should exist throughout the University," Albright said.

"The time has come for a fundamental overhaul of the Faculty Council, the basic decision-making body of the University in which students are totally without representation.

"While students currently are suffered to sit on certain faculty committees, they are too far removed from the councils where University policy is established.

"Students and faculty have too long been isolated from each other when basic decisions have been made which have affected the University community as a whole. Students must be involved to have an effective voice in the decisions which concern them.

"This means more than the mere addition of students to existing committees. It means the establishment of new bodies to include students, such as an all-University Faculty-Student Council instead of just the Faculty Council and a Student-Faculty Administrative Board of Student Affairs with a direct link to the Chancellor.

"Decisions in the University go through a complex process. Both undergraduates and graduate students must be involved in that process if they are to have an effective voice in those decisions.

"The Office of Student Affairs administers a number of programs and policies that directly affect the lives of students.

"Therefore students should participate in the formulation of these policies through a Board of Student Affairs charged with such a responsibility.

"Students likewise should be involved in an all-University body that renders decisions of concern to all.

"If we are to be one community and act as a united campus in dealing with the challenges that come from without," said Albright, "then we must govern ourselves internally as one community with an effective voice for all."

Curriculum Study Slated

By MIKE COZZA
DTH Staff Writer

The recently formed Academic Development Committee (ADC) will hold an open meeting tonight for students to express their views on educational reform. The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the Great Hall of the Carolina Union.

The ADC is an ad hoc group which plans to take specific recommendations to the Merzbacher Committee on curriculum revision. It was formed last week by Roger Thompson, Joel Polin and Kirk Otey. Thompson is a member of the Merzbacher Committee and former chairman of the Experimental College.

"The Merzbacher Committee is composed of 12 faculty members and four students," Otey told the DTH Monday. "So far students have not been able to present them with a well thought-out, complete program for reform."

Tonight's meeting will be an attempt to formulate such a program, Otey said.

"We have to let the faculty members on the Merzbacher committee know we're human beings who have the right to make some of the decisions about our curriculum," Otey said. "As it looks now, the faculty thinks we're human computers to be programmed to operate in whatever manner the faculty chooses."

Otey cited opposition to pass-fail, opposition to expanded independent study, and the high emphasis placed on grades as an indication of the faculty's lack of understanding.

"We want anyone with creative or innovative ideas to come to the meeting," he said. "We're going to talk about pass-fail, semester credit for social or political work, foreign language requirements, the Phys. Ed. program and more independent study."

Otey said the Merzbacher

Committee had come a long way in their discussion of such issues, "but they have to go a long way further to free students from receiving a force-fed education."

The proposals which come from the ADC meeting will be presented to the Merzbacher Committee's open meeting

April 16. Otey said there would be considerable discussion at that meeting of exactly what a student is.

The Merzbacher Committee will eventually submit its own proposals to a committee of the Faculty Council which will decide what curriculum revisions, if any, will be made.

ISC Plans Activities

For International Week

By TOM GOODING
DTH Staff Writer

International dinners, picnics, sports, seminars, and drama will lead the list of activities planned by the International Student Center for this year's International Week.

1-Week, planned for April

16, is intended to "further international awareness," according to Casey Jones, chairman of the 1-Week committee.

"The week will include many activities that are designed to appeal to a variety of student interest."

First scheduled activity for the week is an international dinner, a buffet affair featuring exotic foods from France, Pakistan, India, England, Peru, Egypt, Thailand, China and other countries.

The dinner will be followed by entertainment including Canadian and Pakistani folk songs, Thai dancers and an Indian presentation.

An international dance titled "Reincarnation Dance" in which students are to "come as you were in previous life" will be held on Saturday, April 12, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Great Hall of the Student Union.

The Rhythm Masters will provide music. There will be a $1.50 charge for both the dance and the dinner. Tickets for both can be purchased at the ISC office in Carr dormitory.

Current plans call for the busing of girls from UNC-G to provide dates for the dance. However, Jones said, "It is not currently known how many will be brought over. That will depend on how many dates we can obtain for them."

Even the loss of registration has not been enough motive for some students to follow regulations. Squires said his department has had to result to towing some autos for parking in the wrong zones.

"We didn't want to do this," Squires said, "but the students were constantly ignoring the regular parking tickets which carry a fine of $1. They pay more attention to the zone signs when it costs them $10 to get their car back."

"There is relatively no University profit in towing but it seems to be the only thing that the students really

Traffic Director Offers Hints For UNC Student Car-Owners

By DALE TALBERT
Special to the DTH

If you are one of the 8000 people who has a car on campus, Alonzo Squires, Director of UNC's Traffic Department can save you time and money.

"This department collected over $2000 in fines and late registration fees last year and I don't want to see a repeat performance," said Squires. "Most of these fines could have been avoided if the students had just come to me before they brought their cars on campus."

Squires said he is very sympathetic towards the student's parking problems at UNC. "I can see both sides of any story and I am interested in seeing the students get a fair shake.

"An automobile may not yet be a necessity but it is fast approaching that stage. This department does not want to take away anyone's driving privileges. But the students are forcing us to do it by ignoring the basic traffic regulations," Squires said.

He said the main problem causing suspension of autos' registration is the continuous parking in improper zones.

"Maybe students don't realize that when an automobile accumulates three or more violations it is subject to lose its registration privileges and may be sent home."

"This might sound like a harsh regulation but students can easily avoid losing their car

Sorority Honorary Taps New Members

Hellenas, the campus Greek honorary, tapped 29 women on Monday, March 24. Hellenas was organized to "honor outstanding service by sorority women to the sorority system through the Panhellenic system or individual sororities."

The following women were inducted:

Miss Eleanor Swope Alford, a junior from Nashville, Tenn., is one of Kappa Alpha Theta's most active and indispensable members. She was honored for her outstanding work as social chairman, her unquestionable dedication, loyalty and deep concern for the sorority system.

Miss Harriet Ann Beam of

Charlotte, is one who has given tirelessly to Kappa Kappa Gamma and the entire sorority system at UNC. She has proven herself an outstanding sorority member through her efforts as a rush counselor, treasurer and a marshal.

Miss Rose Lindsay Boswell, a junior from Cincinnati, Ohio, has been efficient and tactful in handling the many details of her job as house manager with Chi Omega.

She has been nominated by her sisters because of her hard work, warmth, understanding and genuine concern for everyone.

Miss Mary Beth Bragg, a junior from Hialeah, Fla., was chosen from Phi Mu sorority because of her outstanding efforts as president of her pledge class.

Her enthusiasm pulled the class together into an active and vital part of the house; she has proven herself an asset to the Greek system.

Miss Wylene Righton, Commander of Atlanta, Ga., has completely devoted herself to Chi Omega and its existence within the sorority and fraternity system at Carolina.

Never lacking enthusiasm for any activities of the sorority, she has volunteered and worked hard on many of the small jobs that few would undertake.

Miss June Surratt Cowan of Jacksonville, Fla., is a junior and represents a real focal point of Delta Delta Delta because of her hard work on the little tasks that so often go unnoticed. Her enthusiasm as WAA representative has proven her an asset to the Greek system.

Miss Mary Flynn of Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas, was chosen as a junior member of Kappa Delta because of her continuous record as an industrious and diligent member of the house.

Her outstanding contributions as treasurer have made her one of the most valuable members of Kappa Delta.

Miss Sharon Sue Griffith of Atlanta, Ga., has proved herself one of the best and most dependable leaders of Alpha Delta Pi. She was nominated for her efforts as dining room manager, housemanager and pledge class treasurer.

Miss Patricia Ann Hollander of Richmond, Va., was chosen from Phi Mu Sorority because of her cheerfulness, enthusiasm and dedication to the sorority system.

Her tireless efforts as rush chairman and work on various house projects has shown her to be an outstanding Greek.

Miss Katherine Leland Hutton of Nashville, Tenn., has served Pi Beta Phi and the sorority system as a whole by her diligent service to the Panhellenic Council.

She has set an example for the entire Greek system through her efforts to help make it an integral part of campus life.

Miss Linda Carol Kee of Charlotte was nominated because of her tireless work with the Panhellenic Court. She has gone far beyond the required duties of her office striving to improve the judicial system. She has also been an enthusiastic contributor within Alpha Delta Pi.

Miss Anne Murray Martin of Nashville, Tenn., through her quiet command of situations has gained the genuine respect of the entire sorority. Serving as Pi Beta Phi's rush chairman

Buses Cease Runs

The campus transit system will terminate operation for the duration of the Easter holiday break tonight with buses departing for final runs at 9 o'clock from the usual points of departure. Bus service will resume following the vacation on the first day of classes.
