"UNC writers honored recently for outstanding work are Paulette Bates, who is in honors in creative writing here, and Max Steele, prize-winning author who is one of her instructors in the department here.

Steele, Miss Bates Win Writing Awards

A board of national judges consisting of Ralph Ellison, Louis Kronenberger and William Styron selected the winners from their submitted entries.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Bates of Rt. 9, Paris Mountain, Greenville, S.C., Miss Bates is in English writing honors in the University. She plans to attend graduate school in creative writing.

Max Steele, noted novelist, short story writer and director of the University of North Carolina English Department's Creative Writing Program, has won his second O. Henry Award.

His prize-winning story, "Color the Daydream Yellow," is included in Doubleday's Prize Stories 1969: The O. Henry Awards.

The sensitive story of a young man's emotional conflict between the realities of his daydreams, experiences and memories, also appeared last fall in Quarterly Review of Literature.

Steele, who has been called "one of the first top-level practitioners in short story form," has been published in The New Yorker, Esquire, Harpers, The Atlantic, Southwest Review and Mademoiselle. He is advisory editor to The Paris Review.

He has published a short story collection, Where She Brushed Her Hair, and has written one novel, Debby, for which he won the Harper Brothers' $10,000 prize in 1950.

Steele possesses "extraordinary skill as a story teller," according to his contemporary George Plimpton. "This skill is tempered with insight and perception and no small touch of daring as well—a lively and enthralling combination."

Used Quality Paperbacks—38¢

Chum, as you might have guessed by now, we have used Quality Paperbacks running out of our ears.

They aren't all dull and text-like. THE GREAT GATSBY is a lively novel, and so is LOOK HOMEWARD ANGEL. So are dozens of other books on the shelf.

Here's a chance to set aside some good summer reading at a merciful price.

Thomas Wolfe Award Winners Announced

Awards for the Thomas Wolfe Creative Writing Contest were presented at the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity house Tuesday at 5:00 p.m.

First place went to John Agar for his "The Missing Link." Agar received $1000 and a trophy for his story.

Tom Lominac took second place with his story, "One Man Band." He won a $40 gift certificate from the Intimate Book Store.

The third place award, a $25 gift certificate from the Hub Ltd., went to Richard Smith for "My Father's Pompano." Lee Baker won fourth place and a $15 gift certificate from Wentworth and Sloan Jewelers for his story, "The Young Alchemist."

Judges for the contest were Edwin Stirling, George Lensing, Daphne Athus, Wallace Kaufman and Tom Stumpf, all English professors at UNC.

The Thomas Wolfe Creative Writing Contest is sponsored annually by Pi Kappa Phi fraternity in memory of the late novelist Thomas Wolfe, who was a student at UNC and a member of Pi Kappa Phi from 1918 to 1920.

Entries can be picked up in 115 Bingham Hall on Wednesday, May 14, and Thursday, May 15.

Student Named To IPA

Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson Hart, a graduate student at UNC, has been named a member of the International Platform Association (IPA), a literary organization that promotes literature and education.

Distinguished members of the IPA include former Presidents Lyndon Johnson, John Kennedy and Harry Truman. David Brinkly, Abigail Van Buren and Earl Wilson are members, and Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson and William Jennings Bryan also belonged to the association.

The main purpose of the IPA, Mrs. Hart said, is to improve the American Platform, especially in regard to assembly programs for school children.

Mrs. Hart did her undergraduate work at Benedict College in Columbia, S.C., where she graduated magna cum laude. She has also studied at Seton Hall University in South Orange, N.J., and at the University of Missouri. She expects to receive her M.A. in English from UNC in June.

Mrs. Hart currently resides in Columbia, S.C., where her husband teaches high school mathematics.
