

ACC teams can play Gamecocks in 1971

GREENSBORO (UPI)—Atlantic Coast Conference officials Monday eliminated an ACC rule that would have prevented member schools from competing against South Carolina after it withdraws from the conference in August.

Athletic directors and faculty chairmen of the eight ACC schools were called to Monday's special meeting to discuss problems created by the withdrawal of USC, which was announced last week.

Dr. Ralph Fadum, president of the conference, said it was "suggested" to ACC schools that their 1971 football contracts with South Carolina be fulfilled "with the understanding that South Carolina will not play any player not eligible by ACC standards."

South Carolina decided to drop out of the conference after failing in a battle to eliminate an ACC rule which said that in addition to meeting NCAA eligibility requirements, high school prospects must also score 800 or above on their college board exams.

South Carolina has been recruiting freshmen football prospects for next season who meet NCAA requirements, but have ignored the "800 rule."

Asked if South Carolina had agreed to the provision for 1971 football contracts Fadum said, "This was their suggestion."

Fadum said "action was taken to make it possible for the members of the conference to schedule intercollegiate athletic contests with the University of South Carolina."

The action came in a unanimous vote to eliminate a section of the conference bylaws which prohibits ACC teams from playing independent schools in the ACC territory which have lower academic requirements.

Fadum said the officials discussed scheduling in basketball and other sports, but indicated it would be up to the individual schools to decide whether they wished to continue to schedule South Carolina.

Authoritative sources indicated at least some of the ACC schools intend to drop South Carolina from their basketball schedule.

Fadum said the meeting was conducted "in a spirit of good will" and that the conference members voted to accept South Carolina's resignation "with profound regret."

None of the individual athletic directors commented after the meeting.

Fadum said the conference had no inquiries from other schools concerning the vacancy and he believes the other seven members "would be content to go along just as we are for the time being."

Women umpires? very interesting

Women umpires in baseball? Closed-circuit television coverage of the Super Bowl? The Hackensack Giants of the National Football League? Strange as it may seem, all three of the above possibilities have been considered in the past few weeks, and if they've been overlooked in the newspapers it's only because of the even crazier things going on in professional basketball.

The woman who wants to be baseball's first distaff umpire is Bernice Gira, a New York City housewife who's been trying to break into the majors for several years now. Even when she won a suit brought before the New York State Human Rights Commission, baseball never took her seriously.

Bowie Kuhn has stopped laughing, though, since Mrs. Gira announced a couple of weeks ago that she was filing a $25 million damages suit against organized baseball. She's even lined up a Congressman, Mario Biaggi, to help her prepare a brief.

So far, however, commented the New York Daily News, Mrs. Gira "still can't get to first base—or, behind home plate."

The idea of closed circuit television coverage of football generally, and the Super Bowl in particular, has been revived by the Ali-Frazier fight.

"We'll do the Super Bowl within five years and it'll gross $48 million," predicted E. William Henry, former Federal Communications Commission chief whose company handled the closed circuit connections for the fight.

Heels face Davidson after State rainout

by Dan Collins

The baseball game between Carolina and N.C. State scheduled Tuesday never came off as rain prevented the action. The ACC contest has been rescheduled for Wednesday, April 14 at Doak Field in Raleigh.

In Carolina's season opener the Tar Heels defeated the Wolfpack in Raleigh, 7 to 4 in a non-conference game. Leftfielder Jack Gillis homered in the contest and was the big gun all day as he ended with 4 RBI's.

Since that initial meeting, however, State has been strong and now owns an 11-5 overall record. Three of the victories have been conference games while no ACC team has been able to defeat the Wolfpack in conference play.

The Tar Heels, who won four of their first five games slumped over spring break and are now 5-8. Seven of the Tar Heels' losses came on the disappointing Florida road trip.

Coach Rabb's charges will be looking to better their record Thursday when they go on the road to play the Davidson Wildcats. Freshman Fred Gianiny, who owns a 1-0 record, is scheduled to start the game.

The team will get back into conference action Saturday as they travel to the Palmetto State to take on the Tigers of Clemson. It will be the Tar Heels' second conference game as the only other was a 6-2 loss to South Carolina.

Despite the Tar Heels' losing record they have been hitting the ball well. The team's average is a strong .284.

Ron Cox leads all hitters in percentage with a .360 average in nine games. Jack Gillis has also had a good year at the plate and he is tied with outfielder Doug Lanham for most hits at 16 and has accounted for 13 RBI's, another team high.

Tar Heel-Hoosier match rescheduled for 9 a.m.

by Bruce Gurganus
Sports Writer

There is an old adage in the sporting world that goes something like this, "You win some, you lose some, and some get rained out."

Yesterday the undefeated Carolina tennis team was rained out of their scheduled match against the University of Indiana.

Weather permitting, the match will be made up this morning at 10:00. Since the Hoosiers have matches this afternoon against Duke and tomorrow against N.C. State, no afternoon make-up will be possible.

Following the make-up match with Indiana the Tar Heels, now 10-0, will swing south for the weekend to battle South Carolina and Clemson.

The match with South Carolina will be the first conference match of the season for Coach Don Skakle's charges.

This first out-of-town contest on Friday afternoon will also be the Tar Heels' first match of the year on hard courts.

This match should offer valuable experience since the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament will be held on the USC courts.

Saturday's confrontation with the tough Clemson Tigers could be the sternest test of the season for the UNC netters.

Clemson, runner-up last season to the Tar Heels, has all its starters back from that fine team. Led by foreign stars Safraz Rahim and Nicky Kelaidis from Pakistan and Greece respectively, the Tigers are a disappointing 6-3 for the season.

The three losses include two at the hands of the University of Miami.

Gridders resume drills

Carolina's varsity footballers resumed spring practice this week following the holiday break.

Drills will continue until May 1 when the annual Blue-White game will be staged in Kenan Stadium.

Coach Bill Dooley has excused senior members of the team from early drills.

Much emphasis in the spring work will be put on the offensive line where the Tar Heels lost every starter from 1970. Bud Moore, former Alabama star, has taken over the offensive line coaching duties at UNC and it will be his responsibility to develop young talent.

All-America Don McCauley, first round draft pick of the Baltimore Colts, still has not signed a contract. "I expect to sign in the next three weeks," he said.

Crew logs 3rd at Miami

After spending their vacation practicing in the warm Florida sunshine, the Carolina crew Saturday competed in the fourth Miami Intercollegiate Rowing Regatta.

The Tar Heels finished third in their morning heat and fourth in a consolation race in the afternoon.

A strong Cambridge crew captured the event after defeating Oxford by ten lengths the previous weekend.

Brown, UNC, Jacksonville, Florida

Tech and Rollins all finished ahead of last year's winner, Columbia. Winning time was 6:13.5.

Since crew is a club sport and without a coach at Carolina, the Tar Heels had their hands full against Brown and Cambridge.

Carolina's next race is April 17 against Virginia in Charlottesville. The following day the Tar Heels host the Citadel and Virginia Commonwealth at University Lake.
