Lawyer money reinstated by SL; WCAR loses vote

by Woody Doster
Staff Writer

A $15,000 proposed appropriation for a Student Government lawyer was reinstated in the 1971-72 budget by Student Legislature (SL) Thursday night. The bill to free campus radio station WCAR from Publications Board and Student Activities Office control was defeated by a tie vote of 17-17. WCAR's station manager Jon Marcus said he would consult with WCAR Board of Directors before making a statement about the SL action. In action on the student lawyer appropriation, an amendment was introduced by legislator Landon Shuff to reduce the appropriation from $15,000 to $9,000, which will be discussed after the entire budget has been considered one time.

Rep. George Blackburn said the cut is necessary because "SL may find itself $75,000 short."

"The present budget doesn't make provision for the loss of graduate student funds," he noted.

Rep. Gerry Cohen protested that the cut caused by the graduate students' exit would be around $11,000.

"The Graduate and Professional Student Federation could be required to pay their share of the Carolina Union and The Daily Tar Heel's printing costs," Cohen claimed.

Blackburn did not agree with the idea a student government lawyer would improve relations between Student Government and Administration.

"All of Student Government's power derives from the Administration," he noted. "A lawyer isn't going to find any hidden power of Student Government."

Student Body Treasurer Guil Waddell argued that the Administration "would listen to a lawyer where they wouldn't listen to students."

"The Administration has been on the offensive this year concerning policy changes," he said. "The idea of hiring a lawyer is sound."

In other action, SL cut $2,000 from the proposed appropriation of the Carolina Symposium.

Miss Claiborne Jones, co-chairman of the Interim Committee, said the Symposium may "ask Legislature to reconsider the appropriation."

"All of our money except the Student Government appropriation and a small amount of Administration money is uncertain," she said.

She added that last year much of the Symposium's money came from foundations and departments holding federal grants, which could not be counted on for the 1971-72 year.

"Last year's topic, 'Man and His Environment,' was extremely relevant at the time," Miss Jones said. "However, it's just luck the topic became relevant at that time."

"We had hoped to develop 'The Mind of the South' fully in terms of cultural activities, speeches and discussions with experts on the South," she explained.

"If SL doesn't reconsider and we can't find satisfactory outside financing," Miss Jones continued, "we won't be able to do justice to such a complex topic or to the student body."

An amendment to delete the money from the SL budget appropriated for The Daily Tar Heel was defeated by a 17-14 margin.

The amendment was offered by Rep. Joe Beard, who called for the deletion of the DTH's monies because "almost 87 per cent of the student body gave their mandate when they voted for the new editor, whose platform called for the financial independence of the Tar Heel."

The paper asked for $51,000 in the current budget but that total has been cut to $43,000.

For $67,200

GPSF approves budget

by Evans Witt
Staff Writer

The Senate of the Graduate and Professional Student Federation (GPSF) approved a $67,200 campus organization funding budget Thursday night.

The body also formalized a set of by-laws for their legislative division.

The budget of the newly formed graduate student association provides for the allocation of an estimated $67,200 income expected to accrue from graduate student fees in the 1971-72 academic year.

The three major items in the budget are allocations for the Carolina Union, The Daily Tar Heel and individual departments which compose the federation.

The Carolina Union's allocation, one of the mandatory ones specified in the federation's constitution, was for $25,440.

Principle allocations to the departmental organizations totaled $20,273. The amount for this appropriation is set by the bylaws at 50 per cent of the income of the GPSF after mandatory expenditures have been deducted.

The Daily Tar Heel received an allocation of $1,214.

Ralph Steuer, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee of the GPSF, emphasized the provisional nature of the budget.

"At this stage our government is still provisional," Steuer said. "We are not yet recognized by the Administration as a student government."

"It's not a formal document because we don't have the money yet... it's just a general structure to show to the Administration," he added.

Steuer emphasized the conditional nature of the DTH appropriation but said the money for the DTH was judged on a per capita basis.

"The $1,214 figure is not a final one," he said. "It could be $1,400 or it could be $900."

The remainder of the projected income of the GPSF goes for operating expenses, capital expenditures and other miscellaneous expenditures.

An electric typewriter, an electric adding machine, file cabinet and other office supplies will be purchased with an $885 allocation.

Other operating expenses for the federation, including postage and stationery supplies, secretarial services, printing costs and telephone expenses total $1,740.

Costs for the bookkeeping of the GPSF are estimated at $2,824, giving a total operating cost of $4,564.

The Carolina Symposium is allotted $1,967 while the Chapel Hill Draft Counseling Service is to be given $300 for its work.

The projected income for the GPSF was estimated by projecting a total of 4,800 fee-paying graduate students, next year, each paying $14 per year student fees.

Lack of student funding draws Sitterson's regrets

by Lana Starnes
Staff Writer

Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson expressed his regret Friday at the unlikelihood of several campus organizations receiving financial support from Student Legislature.

Sitterson spoke before a Faculty Council meeting along with Student Body President Joe Stallings and Walter Baggett, president of the newly-formed Graduate and Professional Student Federation (GPSF).

Sitterson said that financing extracurricular, non-academic though educational activities through appropriated funds is not promising.

Sitterson said that the organizations had been given financial assistance through the Chancellor's Discretionary Fund.

The fund over the past two years was never less than $5,000 but never more than $10,000.

He suggested that a search be made to find other ways to finance such activities.

Monies from the Discretionary Fund have been given to the Conference on International Studies, University Women's Club, Glee Club, Carolina Choir, Project Uplift, consultation for the Student Health Service and many other campus activities.

Stallings stated his willingness to work with the faculty and administration and emphasized that he would be dealing with them as a representative of students.

Stallings spoke in particular on campus black-white relations.

"I feel we're fortunate at this time because the black leadership has expressed interest in working with established channels, however, Student Government, faculty and administrators must show black students that they are willing to allow participation.

"If positive action is not taken now a crisis situation is likely to develop," he said.

Baggett related the events that led to the formation of the Graduate and Professional Students' Federation and the present concern with its separation from the undergraduate student government.

Annual reports by the Athletics and Student Discipline Committees at the Council's meeting were given.

Dr. J.R. Leutze gave a report on the Status of Minorities and the Disadvantaged Committee.

Dr. Leutze said some progress has been made in the area of black-white relations on campus.

The Black Student Movement, he said, is an organization that nearly represents the majority of black students on campus and is now in need of funds.

Leutze further urged the University to take action in this area at present when there is no crisis at hand and an atmosphere of relative calm exists.

A recommendation in the Fraternities and Sororities annual report to disband the committee was accepted by the council.

Controversy arose with the presentation of a report by the Committee on Student Involvement in University Structures. A motion to adjourn was passed leaving the committee report to be considered at the next council meeting.

Fox posts bond

John William Fox, Jr., a young mayoral candidate who was arrested and charged with possession of narcotics Wednesday night, was released on $1,500 bond Friday morning from Hillsborough Jail.

A preliminary hearing has been set for 9:30 a.m. Wednesday in Orange District Court in Hillsborough.

Fox, 26, of 31 Barclay Rd., was taken to Chapel Hill Police Station after his arrest Wednesday and transferred to Hillsborough Thursday afternoon.

Bond was originally set at $5,000, but was lowered to $1,500 at the request of Fox's attorney.

Capt. C.E. Durham, of the Chapel Hill Police Department, said a quantity of marijuana was found upstairs and a quantity of hashish and marijuana was found downstairs in Fox's two-story house where he lived with several other persons.

Weather

TODAY: clear and partly cloudy; temperatures in the upper 70's; 10 per cent chance of precipitation.

SUNDAY: continued warm temperatures, 20 per cent chance of precipitation.

Lilienthal offers solution to Mideast crisis

by Pam Phillips
Staff Writer

Alfred M. Lilienthal, noted Jewish speaker on Middle Eastern affairs, urged Thursday night the formation of a bi-national state in Palestine rather than the existing Zionist state.

The Lilienthal speech was sponsored by the International Student Center as part of their International Festival including films, speakers and dinners.

Speaking before a large audience in Hill Hall, the pro-Arab speaker questioned the moral rights of the Jews' presence in Israel.

He emphasized the "property rights" of the Arabs, previous land-holders, and denounced means by which Arabs were "divorced" from their property.

Lilienthal quashed what he termed the "myth-information" the American public has been receiving from the media regarding the conflict.

He said the media was "playing cowboys and Indians" and concluded "the American public refuses to believe there are two sides to a very complex problem."

Lilienthal listed the overshadowing Vietnamese War and the "ancient enmity" between Arabs and Jews as intensifying the tendency towards misinformation.

The pro-Arab speaker cited various justifications used for the relocation of the Jews, the most notable being the right of birth.

Jewish tradition holds that the Jews were descended from the 12 tribes of Israel, thus Israel is their homeland.

Lilienthal maintains ten of these tribes disappeared altogether and one-half of the remaining tribes never returned from Babylon.

The tribes left, according to Lilienthal, intermarried until not their blood cannot be called exclusively Jewish.

In addition, he emphasized that Judaism has been a tremendous converting force in the world. Many of the followers of the religion are not of Jewish blood.

The main activists in establishing a Jewish national state in Palestine, Lilienthal said, are the Zionists.

Zionism was started in the late 19th century where Teodor Herzl witnessed the persecution of Alfred Dreyfus by anti-Semites. He formulated a treatise which has been used as the basis for Zionism ever since.

The main difference between Judaism and Zionism is that Judaism is a religious faith and Zionism is a political movement, not restricted to Jews only, according to Lilienthal.

Lilienthal traced the history of the Zionist struggle from Herzl to the Balfour Declaration in which Britain sanctioned the formation of "a Jewish national home in Palestine."

He then related the events from World War I to World War II and ultimately the events following World War II in which the Jewish nation emerged.

In these events, Lilienthal questioned the motives of the new Jewish state. He said he does not see the reason for the dominance of a minority group.

Attributing much pro-Israeli sentiment in the U.S. to "Christian guilt," Lilienthal listed alternatives that the Middle East Perspective, a group of which he is the head, have enclosed in a letter to President Nixon.

The group claims there are two distinct sides to the issue and ask Nixon to adopt a uniform, evenhanded policy towards the Middle East.

The International Student Center and the Carolina Forum presented Dr. Lilienthal as part of their International Festival which will include films, speakers and dinners.
