UNC microbiologist reports on research

A live vaccine which may provide a key to pneumonia and bronchitis prevention has been developed at the UNC Infectious Disease Division, a UNC microbiologist reported Tuesday in Minneapolis.

"Live vaccine, not killed vaccine as previously believed may be the answer to prevention of pneumonia and certain respiratory infections like bronchitis," Dr. Wallace A. Clyde said.

"We have found evidence using animals that respiratory tract infection caused by live vaccine produces a greater degree of protection than does injection of killed vaccine," he said.

Dr. Clyde, associate professor of pediatrics and bacteriology, made these remarks before the 71st annual meeting of the American Society for Microbiology.

"At least half of all pneumonia occurring in adolescence and young adulthood is caused by mycoplasma pneumoniae. These organisms are among the smallest, free-living parasites and are distinct from both bacteria and viruses.

"The infections were rarely fatal are important causes of lost work and school time among civilians and lost duty time in the Armed Forces," Dr. Clyde commented.

Several experimental killed vaccines have been developed and tested in man with limited success. Injections of these products have prevented only about half of the infections in field trials and some have shown adverse effects.

independent of the circulating antibodies which killed vaccines produce. Live vaccine stimulates protection mechanisms in the respiration system similar to the resistance that follows natural disease," he explained.

In Dr. Clyde's research, live mycoplasma vaccine was placed in the nose of hamsters.

This infection lasted up to six weeks, but did not produce pneumonia or any other evidence of disease. In addition there were no antibodies measured in the blood of infected animals which normally are produced by injection of killed vaccines.

"Despite these findings, live vaccine-infected animals became over 1,000 times more resistant to pneumonia than normal animals when exposed to a strong strain of mycoplasma pneumoniae.

"The lack of adverse reaction to live vaccine infection in animals and the resistance to experimental disease which resulted imply that live vaccine may be useful for prevention of the natural disease in man," Dr. Clyde concluded.

Dr. Clyde will also participate today in a panel on selected topics in mycoplasmaology.

Degree seekers plan meeting

An important orientation meeting for all degree candidates will be held in Great Hall Tuesday, May 11, at 4 p.m.

News around the campus

King-size waterbed offered as door prize

A king-size waterbed will be a door prize at the lemonade party sponsored by the pledge class of Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity May 12. Proceeds will go toward rebuilding the fraternity's house.

Pledges will begin selling tickets in dorms and on campus this week. Tickets are 25 cents. The winner does not have to be present at the drawing.

The waterbed is donated by Waterbeds Unlimited.

Noted educator, writer to speak May 12

Esther M. Westervelt, noted educator and writer, will speak at 8 p.m. in Carroll Hall Wednesday, May 12.

Her speech, sponsored by the Association of Women Students (AWS), will concern the identity and the place of the women in American society.

Dr. Westervelt received her B.A. degree from Vassar College and her M.A. and Ed.D. degrees from Columbia University. For eight years she taught courses in guidance and student personnel administration at Teacher's College of Columbia, resigning as adjunct associate professor in 1969.

In 1966 Dr. Westervelt became director of the New York State Guidance Center for Women, a state university pilot project. She is currently conducting research connected with this project.

Dr. Westervelt's research and writing concern women's roles, the development of sex differences, counseling girls and women and utilization of anthropological theory and research in guidance and student personnel administration. Her articles have appeared in many books and journals.

German department offers Norwegian, Dutch

The UNC Department of Germanic Languages, expanding its curriculum "to appeal to those who want wider choice in their language studies," is offering introductory courses in Norwegian and Dutch next fall.

A Norwegian course, emphasizing the spoken language and the post-World War II literature, has been offered before, but it is now being expanded to include introductions to Danish and Swedish, languages closely related to Norwegian.

Dutch has been taught only once before, and is now being reinstated as a course with two native speakers as professors.

13 future therapists to be honored here

Thirteen future physical therapists will be honored Friday at UNC's Division of Physical Therapy 13th annual program of recognition for graduating seniors.

Featured speaker for the program, at 8 p.m. in Carrington Hall, is Barbara C. White, chairman of the Department of Physical Therapy and director of service of the College of Health Related Professions at the University of Florida, Gainesville. Her presentation is entitled, "Relevance."

Student entries asked for Spooner film contest

Students are invited to enter their films for the annual John A. Spooner award valued at $200.

The award is open to any regularly enrolled student at the University for the purpose of encouraging young film makers. It was established by the St. Anthony Educational Foundation as a memorial to the late John A. Spooner, a University alumnus and a member of St. Anthony Hall.

Criteria for selection include originality of concept, execution and aesthetic and artistic excellence in a film of not less than 10 minutes duration, silent or sound, black and white or color, 8 mm. or 16 mm.

The film must have been made between May 20, 1970 and May 20, 1971. Films can be submitted to Prof. Earl Wynn, 205-A Swain Hall, before May 20.

Taurus
April 20-May 20

Schlitz Malt Liquor. Our sign is Taurus, the Bull. Can you handle us?

Tremendous strength, power, reliability, dependable good taste. That's what Taurus is known for. Schlitz Malt Liquor, too. Venus, the ruling planet, makes Taurus sociable, fond of fun, and able to inspire friendship in others. Maybe you and the Bull should get together. Maybe you'd hit it off. But maybe not. It depends on your sign. Because Taurus has a powerful mean streak. There's a helluva fire in the Bull. So check your stars. They'll tell you straight if you're the kind of person who can meet Schlitz Malt Liquor head-on.

Nobody makes malt liquor like Schlitz. Nobody.
