

Playmakers receive awards at annual 'Capers' ceremony

by Bruce Mann
Feature Writer

Thomas Wayne Smith, a graduate student in the UNC Dramatic Arts Department, received the coveted Shubert Fellowship Award in Playwriting and UNC professor Walter Spearman received the Carolina Playmakers Alumna Award at "Capers," the Dramatic Arts Department annual awards ceremony, Saturday night in Playmakers Theatre.

Each year "Capers" caps off the season by honoring students and alumni for their quality contributions of the theatre and specifically to the department's productions.

The top student honor, the $2,500 Shubert Fellowship Award given by the Shubert Foundation of New York to encourage a promising graduate student playwright, was awarded to Thomas Smith. Already he has written a three-act play, and his one-act play, "My Terra Cotta Baby," will premiere this Thursday night at Playmakers Theatre. Smith is one of a select number of recipients of the award in the United States.

Professor Walter Spearman, winner of the Alumna Award, is a former Playmaker himself, having acted in such productions as "You Can't Take It with You," and "Amen to a Mantis." In addition, he has written an original play, authored the historical book, "The Carolina Playmakers: The First Fifty Years," published by the UNC Press, and reviewed many Playmakers' productions for the local press. "Capers" also feature the presentation of other special awards, including: The Roland Holt Cup in Playwriting (an award to the playwright of the best original play performed during the season), which was awarded to Louis Black for "Feast"; the Carolina Playmakers Master Awards, which honored Homer Foil and Malcolm Groome for their outstanding acting through the past seasons and Glenn Dun for his lighting contributions; and a special award to the Jesse J. Moorhead Angel Flight for their ushering services.

The Carolina Playmakers Mask Awards, which recognize distinguished service in all phases of production, were awarded to the following Playmakers: Samuel Allen, Nancie Allen, Deborah Bloodworth, Thomas Cherry, J. Kathryn Conway, Donald Dalton, Mitchell Douglas, Richard Downing, Liss

Galloway, Fay Hauser, and Clifford Hoffman.

Also, Mary George Jester, Mary Key, Thomas Kindle, Authur Leonard Lefler, Jr., Shirley Mannon, Mary McCroskey Moore, Sharon Muir, David Nard, Ronald Osborne, Thomas Smith, and Thomas Westcott.

The purpose of "Capers" was not only to give awards, however. The first hour, under the direction of the dramatic Arts students, was spent in lampooning, and generally making fun of the Department's personalities and the various productions of the past year.

Between the opening, chanting Greek choros and the rousing musical finale, there were take-offs on "The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail," "The Knack," "The Boy Friend," and "Woyzeck." And there were also friendly satiric jabs at "Much Ado About Nothing," "Summertime," and "Slow Dance on the Killing Ground."

Nostalgia show premieres

by Howie Carr
Feature Writer

A new nostalgia program debuts on television tonight and the whole week seems to have a nostalgic air—if only because almost all the programs are reruns.

The new show, "It Was A Very Good Year," will occupy the 8:30-9:00 slot on ABC (Channels 5 and 8), replacing the ill-fated "Reel Game." By following "Let's Make A Deal" and the "Newlywed Game," "Very Good Year" will probably seem better than it really is, but during rerun season the viewer has to settle for small blessings.

The year examined tonight is 1945, and clips include Henry Fonda reminiscing about his Navy career, the return of the troops, the Frank Sinatra phenomenon, and the death of Franklin Roosevelt.

Channel 28 has a pretty good late movie tonight in "She Wore A Yellow Ribbon," a 1949 John Ford-John Wayne release. The plot's weakness is made up for by the performances of Wayne and Victor McLaglen as a pair of worn-out old Indian fighters.

The Kraft Music Hall rebroadcasts "The Kopykats" Wednesday night at 9 on Channel 28. The kopykats include seven impressionists mimicking everybody from Andy Devine to Sabu.

For the die-hard football fans, Channel 8 brings back "NFL Action," a 30-minute summer replacement that premieres Wednesday night at 10:30. The opening show will relash the 1971 Super Bowl.

All the talk shows are on the road this week, with Johnny Carson in Hollywood, Merv Griffin in Las Vegas and Dick Cavett in London. Unfortunately, the moral of the story seems to be that guests outside of New York can be just as boring as Fun City's own.

Cavett's only promising guest this week is Enoch Powell, the Conservative m.p. who has stirred up trouble by demanding that the British government send all non-white Commonwealth immigrants home. He'll be on Friday night.

Channel 28's Tuff Theater has another Bogie movie scheduled for Friday night. It's a 1938 picture called "Racket Busters," and the plot concerns a district attorney trying to break up a mob bent on controlling the trucking business.

Daytime television is usually pretty wretched, but this afternoon there's a movie on Channel 8's Dialing For Dollars Movie that all Young Republicans should see.

"Bedtime for Bonzo" is a 1951 comedy starring the governor of the Golden State, Ronald Reagan, as a young professor (at Berkeley?) who "attempts to win the dean's daughter through the antics of his baby chimpanzee."

Novelist discussed

German novelist and Nobel Prize winner Thomas Mann will be discussed by Dr. Oskar Seidlin of Ohio State University at 8 p.m. tonight in the Dey Hall Faculty Lounge.

"The Lofty Game of Numbers: The Peepers Episode of Mann's novel 'The Magic Mountain,'" is the title of the talk, open to the public. Best known for his "History of German Literature" in the College Outline Series, Professor Seidlin is the author of numerous articles and books on 19th and 20th Century German Literature. A native German, he received his Ph.D. in Switzerland.

Where is this bust?

Have you seen this bust around campus?

It's of University President Joseph Caldwell, who became the first President of UNC in 1804. He died in 1835, and was buried in January.

In November, 1835, a group of students decided it would be nice to have a bust made of President Caldwell for the University, so they had him dug up and a plaster cast made of his face. This cast was used by the sculptor in making the bust.

The bust is probably still around campus somewhere, and is being sought by William S. Powell, Curator of the North Carolina Collection in Wilson Library. Anyone who knows the whereabouts of this sculpture is asked to notify Powell.

Powell is preparing a Pictorial History of the University and would like to report the location of the original sculpture.

Campus activities calendar

Heeb 33, "Topics in Human Sexuality," will meet at 6 p.m. tonight in the main auditorium of the School of Public Health. Attendance is mandatory.

Dorothy Silver and dancers will give a lecture demonstration on the history of dance this afternoon at 3 p.m. in Graham Memorial Lounge.

Alpha Epsilon Delta will hold its final meeting of the year tonight at 7 p.m. in room 106 of the Basic Medical Sciences Building. All members are urged to attend and vote for the recipient of the Hedgepeth Award, which is annually awarded to the chapter's outstanding member.

Applications are now being received for the 1971-72 ISC Ghanaian Exchange. One UNC student will spend one academic year with partial credit at the English-speaking University of Ghana at Accra. Interested applicants should pick up applications at the ISC office in Carr Building. Applications should be returned by 5 p.m. Thursday, May 13. Interviews will be held at the ISC Friday, May 14, at 3 p.m.

Several places are still open on the 1971 European Music and Art Tour directed by Prof. Joel Carter of the UNC Music Department. By air and private motorcade for 37 days to the Music Festivals and major art galleries of Western Union. Academic credit available. Back on campus in time for second-summer session. Contact Dr. Carter immediately at 933-1044 or 942-3327. Interviews by phone at 528-8801.

Plans are being made to begin organizing unions for students, faculty and non-academic employees on campus next fall. Persons of any of the three categories who are interested in making contacts with trade unions or other organizing groups this summer or helping in other ways, please call 929-4556 or 942-4677.
