July music festival set

The first annual Roanoke Island summer music festival will be held July 3 and 4 and feature North Carolina talent, according to Rod Waldorf, one of the concert promoters.

The festival will star Catbird, a blues-oriented rock group; Decater Jones; Low Rent District, a hard rock group; and Cindy Gooch, a blues vocalist. The Blue Grass Experience may also appear.

The multiple concerts, scheduled for 2-8 p.m., will cost $2 per person per day.

Waldorf stressed the festival "is not and is not intended to be a rock festival."

The concerts are being held during daylight hours and will not last overnight, although campgrounds are open nearby. Music at night would interfere with Lost Colony activities on the island.

The festival is being produced by Woodland Enterprises and Cat's Cradle, a club in Chapel Hill, in conjunction with the Roanoke Island Historical Park.

Promoters of the festival include Waldorf, his father Doug Waldorf of the Woodland Enterprises and Larry Reynolds of the Cat's Cradle.

The site of the festival is the north end of the island adjoining the Roanoke Indian Country Camp Ground and the Roanoke Island Historical Park. On Route 64 between Fort Raleigh and Umstead Bridge, the location covers 20 acres of land rented from the museum-park.

Alonzo weds in hospital

Alonzo G. Squires was married Wednesday morning—in N.C. Memorial Hospital.

Squires, director of motor vehicle registration and traffic, married Miss Geranium Honneycutt of Salemburg.

The wedding had been planned for Wednesday afternoon in Mebane but, just hours before the ceremony, Squires fell and broke his hip. Surgery was planned, but Squires refused to go into the operating room until after his wedding.

The University administrator, who has one of the toughest jobs on campus despite his blindness, said he had known Miss Honneycutt for ten years, but "I never started any serious plowing until a year and a half ago.

"Being married," he said, "is an addition and helps one to be more complete in all areas. I hope I will be more creative in my job after marriage."

Squires was unavailable for comment after his marriage—he was in surgery.

UNC baseball tonight

The UNC baseball team will play a doubleheader tonight at 6 p.m. against league favorite Louisburg.

The game will be played in Cary Boshamer Stadium.

The team presently has a record of 2-3 with the two wins coming against Campbell and the losses to Campbell, East Carolina and UNC-Wilmington.

This weekend Carolina will travel to play East Carolina on Saturday and UNC-Wilmington on Sunday.
