

Bailey Cobbs runs buses for students

by Jessica Hanchar
Staff Writer

Student Transportation Commissioner Bailey Cobbs has the job of running the student bus system and working out bus problems with the Raleigh City Coach Lines.

As commissioner, he oversees the spending of about $46,000 a year.

"Student bus fees pay about $30,000 of the cost and the University subsidizes the other $16,000," he said.

The bus system will begin operating the first day of classes. Individual schedules will be available to students Wednesday.

The University guarantees the Raleigh City Coach Lines $300 a weekday and $80 a day on weekends.

Cobbs is looking into other methods to pay for the bus system.

"I'm looking for the University to increase its subsidy to the bus system so students can ride for only a nickel," he said. The present bus fee is a dime.

This plan, he said, was voted down in the Chancellor's Advisory Committee on Traffic and Safety. Cobbs is a student member of this student-faculty-administration committee.

Another idea he has is a free student bus service. Cost would be incorporated into room rent or some other student fee.

Cobbs worked with the Chapel Hill-Carrboro bus system last spring. The system was discontinued after six weeks of operation after the town subsidies ran out.

"There were more riders each week, but still not enough for the bus system to pay for itself," said the senior from Winston-Salem.

A referendum in both towns last May to further subsidize the bus system was soundly defeated in Carrboro and voted down by less than 10 votes in Chapel Hill.

Bailey Cobbs

As one of the two student members of the advisory committee to Chancellor J. Carlyle Sitterson, Cobbs discusses and helps solve parking and transportation problems on the campus. The other student member is Robert Wilson, advisor to Student Body President Joe Stallings on residence life.

Any student with ideas about a new bus system, complaints about the present one, or problems with parking regulations should get in touch with Cobbs in 316 Ehringhaus or Suite C, Student Union.

Bus schedule

South Campus to Wilson Library and Back
(bus stops across from Chase Cafeteria)

EVERY 5 MINUTES

EXACT fare of 10 cents will be required

South Campus to Wilson Library

7:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m.: Every 5 minutes

4:30 p.m. - 5:00 p.m.: Every 10 minutes

5:00 p.m. - 11:30 p.m.: To town via Wilson each 15 minute interval

Town Runs

12:00 noon - 5:00 p.m.: 15 minutes after each hour after 5:00 p.m.: Town run each 15 minutes via Wilson

Victory - Odum Village Run

1. Bus through village at 20-25 minutes after each hour

2. Bus through Manning Drive every trip

Saturday and Sunday runs

5:30 p.m. - 11:30 p.m. only

A trip to town via Wilson Library each 15 minute interval beginning at 5:30 p.m. Last run leaves South Campus at 11:15 p.m.

The University Bus System is operated and maintained by the Student Transportation Commission of Student Government in cooperation with the University Traffic and Safety Committee.

Champion debaters attempt new heights

by Pam Phillips
Staff Writer

The UNC debate team will begin the 1971-72 season with a new coach and several new recruits to go along with Joe Loveland and Joe McGuire, last year's award-winning debaters.

Robert Cox became the team's coach last spring, replacing E.C. Clark, who has now gone to become debate coach at the University of Alabama.

A graduate of the University of Richmond, Cox went to the College National Tournament during his undergraduate debating days and was named first National Speaker of the Year.

Cox has two big pluses this year—an adequate debate budget obtained last year after a hassle and the return of his two prize debaters, Loveland and McGuire.

Last year Loveland and McGuire compiled a record which is conceded to be "phenomenal" for any debate team.

As the winners of two national tournaments out of the major ten, the team was invited to the National where Loveland was named first speaker of the tournament and McGuire copped seventh speaker honors.

The team will be debating together again this year, going to major tournaments at Middle Tennessee State, MIT, Emory University, Wake Forest, Georgetown and South Carolina and/or Ohio State, all in the first semester.

Also on the roster is the annual Tar Heel Invitational Tournament, which was established last year. Forty-six debate teams representing 29 colleges and universities in 11 states attended last year.

The UNC team has been at work gathering research since July when they received this year's debate topic: "Resolved: That more stringent controls should be imposed upon government agencies gathering information on U.S. citizens." They held a debate retreat from August 21-25 in Mill's River.

Joe Loveland, a junior Morehead Scholar, graduated from High Point

Central High where he was a stellar debater. He has spent this summer as a North Carolina Fellow working for Senator McCloskey of Michigan.

Joe McGuire graduated from Lee Edwards High in Asheville. The senior Morehead scholar was president of the National Forensic League in high school. He speculates that the teams to beat this year will be UCLA, Harvard, Georgetown and Southern California.

The only female on this year's team is sophomore Kay Kernodle, who is from Williamsburg, Va. She graduated from James Blair High School and made very creditable showings at the Wake Forest and Shaw University novice tournaments. She was voted outstanding freshman debater last year.

Miss Kernodle speculates that this year "freshmen ought to do extremely well" and that "Joe and Joe will have another good year."

Hewitt Rose, a junior who graduated from the Millbrook school in Millbrook, N.Y., is another varsity debater. Speaking last year as a novice debater, he went to the South Carolina, Wake Forest, Shaw, Richmond and Pitt tournaments.

Three freshmen debaters have been added to the squad. Cole Campbell, a graduate of R.J. Reynolds High in Winston-Salem and a Morehead Scholar, will be debating in novice tournaments this year. In high school debate he placed as third debater in the nation at Nationals, and hopes to "learn a lot from the team."

Tom Dillard, a graduate of High Point Central and another Morehead Scholar, chose Carolina because he "likes to debate." He was captain of his school's debate squad and he was in the finals at six major high school tournaments.

Charlie Bond, another freshman, went to the nationals in high school where he went six rounds in competition before he was eliminated.

Veterans returning to the squad include the Kennedy twins Havey and Harold, and Maurice Ayers who will be debating on the varsity circuit this fall.

What's new?

Read The Daily Tar Heel.

upstairs over Harry's
Franklin St. Chapel
Hill -

ROTC to study peace as well as war

by Susan Miller
Staff Writer

University Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) departments have instigated a new curriculum which changes major control over the programs from the military to civilians.

Captain Vincent J. Anania, chairman of the Department of Naval Sciences, said the new curriculum in Peace, War, and Defense gives major control to the University instead of to the military. He said one of the major gripes about campus ROTC programs in the past has concerned the University's lack of authority in the military-run programs.

The new curriculum will begin this September for the first time, under the direction of civilian E. Maynard Adams.

The Curriculum in Peace, War and Defense, called by Capt. Anania the "most exciting new adventure ever devised by a faculty group," resulted from consideration of a two-year study by a faculty committee. The committee was headed by George V. Taylor, acting chairman of the history department.

The purpose of the Taylor committee was to strengthen the effectiveness of ROTC programs on campus, to allow more freedom to the midshipmen and cadets and to permit other students to take courses on the problems of war, the captain said.

The curriculum devised as a result of the committee's study, said Capt. Anania, is geared away from the vocational aspect of the training.

The aim of the curriculum is to make the student fully aware of the implications of war through study of the sociological, political, psychological, moral and ethical aspects.

Capt. Anania cited the University as being the first in the world to take the leading role in treating war and militarism as a social problem to be studied along with other aspects of education. Many institutes of higher learning will follow UNC's lead, he asserted.

Capt. Anania said both the Navy and the Department of Defense are "excited" about the peace, war and defense curriculum.

Not only are courses in the new curriculum open to Air Force and Naval ROTC students, the captain noted, they are open to any student for degree credit.

The curriculum itself is composed of more than 50 courses from many departments of the University. Some of the courses are new; some are revised old courses.

Under the new program, both the Department of Aerospace Studies, chaired by Lt. Col. Wesley W. Egan, and the Department of Naval Science are requiring four courses taught by the military and four civilian-taught courses.

The Naval ROTC specified the four civilian-taught courses for the midshipmen. Air Force ROTC has specified one of the four civilian-taught courses and is leaving the choice for the other three up to the cadets.

The Curriculum in Peace, War and Defense, interdisciplinary in nature, offers courses such as History 77, Political Science 149 and Philosophy 68.

ROTC and AFROTC are educational programs in cooperation with the University. Their primary missions, according to Major David K. Jackson of the aerospace studies department, is to train career-oriented officers for the United States Air Force and Navy.

The University's programs are done in conjunction with approximately 170 colleges and universities across the country.

About 100 students are enrolled in the AFROTC; between 250 and 300 students are in NROTC. NROTC was begun around 1942, while AFROTC was begun around 1948.

Scholarships are available in both programs. Tuition, fees and books are paid for, plus the scholar is given $50 a month for four years.

Major Jackson said a major benefit from the ROTC program is a good starting salary and guaranteed promotions.

Students enrolled in the ROTC programs have varied majors in the College of Arts and Sciences.

DTH Classifieds

Part-time typists needed immediately, day or evening work. Student Graphics, basement of the Student Union.

Young mother would like to keep one or two children, any age, in her home. Equipment furnished. References. Call 967-5997.

Female Grad Student Romance Languages wants to share apartment—walking distance from campus — $50 per month, contact: 933-2141. URGENT!

FREE KITTENS (Five Male, one Female) born July 19, litter trained, healthy. 942-7237

PITTSBORO— 2 furnished rooms, running water in room, air conditioned, bath, all utilities furnished including phone for 3 or 4 people or couples, quiet, private home. 942-3646.

'65 VW Squareback $850. Will bargain. Good condition; Call Len at 967-6335 after 6.

SALES MARKETING OPPORTUNITY. PART-TIME AND CAREER OPENINGS. CHALLENGING AND SOPHISTICATED EMPLOYMENT WITH HIGH INCOME REWARDS. BRING RESUME AND APPLY IN PERSON TO: 404 NML BUILDING, UNIVERSITY SQUARE, CHAPEL HILL

AUTHENTIC AFRICAN BATIK & Fabrics, Earrings and Exotic Ebony Carvings: Danshiki and summer pants. AFRICAN SHOP, CCB & ZOOM Building, North Columbia Street entrance, open 'til 6.

ECKANKAR—Ancient Science of Soul Travel — Path to God Realization — discussion group meets alternate Thursday nights. Write: Eckankar, Box 953, Chapel Hill for more information

1969 Honda CB 350, good condition, new paint job and new tires and accessories. One owner, helmet included. Call Kerr after 6 at 967-5461

Schwinn 5-Speed bicycle, Brand New, excellent condition, Priced To Sell, Call 933-3631

if you want to buy, or sell, or rent, etc.

use dth classifieds

$1.00 for the first 25 words and $.5 for each additional word—
ALL CLASSIFIEDS MUST BE PRE-PAID—Come by the DTH office any day, Monday through Friday, between 1 and 2:30.

would you like to work for a newspaper — in the business end?

male or female

come by the dth and see the business manager—between 10:30 and 12:30 Monday or 1:30 until 4:30
Monday through Friday.