

ZBT planning book on course evaluation

A course evaluation booklet which will attempt to include all undergraduate courses is being planned by Zeta Beta Tau (ZBT) fraternity, a spokesman said Monday.

The fraternity hopes to have the evaluation completed before pre-registration for the spring semester, said Tom Pace, coordinator of the project. He said both instructors and students will receive questionnaires and the student responses will be tallied by computer.

The instructor's responses, part of which will be in paragraph form, will be evaluated by members of the fraternity, Pace said.

Pace said the questionnaires for the course evaluation are being reviewed by a faculty committee, which will make suggestions. ZBT is presently waiting for administration approval for the project, he said.

A small scale version of a course evaluation booklet was prepared for fall, 1968, Pace said, but that booklet covered only a few courses while the new study will be much more comprehensive.

Pace said Student Body President Joe Stallings supports the project and the fraternity hopes to receive financial assistance for the project from both Student Government and the University Administration.

The purpose of the booklet, Pace said, would be to acquaint students with the styles and methods of various professors.

The evaluation will include information on the frequency and type of exams, attendance requirements, average class size and methods of presentation, Pace said.

Pace said the project first started at the end of last year. At least two months would be required to compile and publish the booklet after the evaluation sheets have been completed, he said.

The fraternity hopes to distribute the evaluation sheets in each class through the various departments, Pace said. He said, ZBT is waiting for the administration's approval on the method of distribution.

Aldermen okay walker's bridge

by Norman Black
Staff Writer

The Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen approved the construction of a pedestrian bridge spanning Rosemary Street.

The pedestrian bridge, which would connect parking facilities with the commercial buildings on Rosemary and Franklin Streets, will be built by the North Carolina National Bank after Jan. 1, 1972.

The topic was considered by the aldermen Monday because construction on the bridge's foundations must begin this week.

Final approval of the project could not be given, however, because a new state law granting the town control and regulation of air space does not go into effect until January 1.

The resolution was passed with the further stipulation that a minimum of 134 of the proposed 244 new parking spaces be made available for public use.

Alderman Jim Wallace voted in favor of the resolution, but was of the opinion a larger issue was involved.

"We have raised the question of providing public property for private use, and we are now allowing a private company to use public air space," Wallace said.

Alderman George Coxhead did not think the two questions were related.

"What else would we use this public air space for," Coxhead asked.

Wallace responded by saying he had raised the point only because the question would be raised later with regard to the current street vending controversy.

In other business, the Alderman voted to advertise and accept bids for the remodeling of the town Court Room.

Construction is expected to begin by the first of November, with a completion date set for the end of January.

The board also appointed Mrs. Eleanor Lunde, Mrs. Ruth Hill and Leonard White to a committee which will consider and select works for display in the Municipal Building.

Frat rush begins today

Formal rush for the 28 social fraternities on campus opens tonight and will continue Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Fraternities will open their houses for formal rush from 7 to 10 p.m. tonight and from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday.

All interested male students, with the exception of first-semester freshmen, are invited to participate, said Inter-Fraternity Council rush chairman, Bill Griffin.

Griffin said fraternity life is "a living experience unmatched by any other on campus."

Fraternity life includes convenient dining and living facilities, participation in intramurals, the Campus Chest campus-wide drive for charity, the blood drive, and creative and varied social life, Griffin said.

"IFC promises many new and varied activities this year, including a lecture series beginning Oct. 21," he said.

Griffin encouraged those who do not intend to pledge to go through rush in order to "make a decision for yourself about fraternities and meet a lot of new faces."

"A new attitude is apparent in most fraternities, and we want the students not only to know it, but to feel it," he said.

"We can't help but change because the members are so different every year," Griffin added. "We are desperately trying to open the door that is between the fraternity system and the campus in general."

"The face-lifting of many of the houses, or the attempt to make them more physically convenient, points out the fact that fraternities are here to stay."
