Miami's 29-10 victory demoralizes Deacons

by Al Thomas Sports Writer

For coach Cal Stoll and his Wake Forest Deacons, it was demoralizing.

For the Atlantic Coast Conference, it was an embarrassment.

The Deacons, picked fourth by a national magazine and picked as the class of the ACC by conference coaches, were overwhelmed by a strong and talented Miami squad 29 to 10 in Winston-Salem Saturday night.

The Deacons entered the game undefeated in two outings and complaining that the wire services' polls had mistakenly overlooked them in last week's ratings.

They left the game heart-broken, having been solidly knocked off their self-made pedestal.

The Hurricanes easily won the statistics' battle as well, compiling 280 yards rushing and 187 yards passing to Wake's 117 yards rushing and 20 yards passing. Only once could the celebrated veer offense with quarterback Larry Russell at the helm mount a sustained drive against Miami's 4-3 alignment.

Two other ACC teams entered Saturday's battles undefeated, and both emerged with even longer winning streaks.

Carolina used a fourth quarter scoring blitz to stave off a threatening Maryland rally which dominated the third quarter.

Carolina appeared well on its way to another shut-out win when suddenly the 1971 Tar Heels began looking a lot like the Tar Heels of the middle and late '60's — complete with fumbles and a vulnerable pass defense.

As quickly as the Tar Heels entered the slump, however, they recovered and went on to their first conference win of the year.

The Duke Blue Devils were in a similar position Saturday in Charlottesville, Virginia. The Blue Devils were defeated in their first two outings and were rated easy winners over the winless Cavaliers.

Virginia had different ideas. The Cavaliers fought gamely, collecting 22 first downs to Duke's 14; 130 yards passing to Duke's 61; and 141 yards rushing to Duke's 222.

The Cavaliers just couldn't hang on to the ball, though, allowing Duke to capitalize on three fumbles and two pass interceptions.

Elsewhere in the ACC, State and Clemson kept their winless records intact.

The Wolfpack was completely outclassed by the now-independent South Carolina Gamecocks, picking up 57 yards rushing and 128 passing. Of course, that is somewhat better than State's showing against Maryland the week before when the Terrapins allowed only 12 net yards on the ground.

The score: South Carolina 24, State 0. For new State coach Al Michaels, it was another long weekend.

Clemson did little better, losing to powerful Georgia 28-0. The Tigers did put up a better fight, however, limiting the offense-minded Bulldogs to only three first downs during the initial half.

Booters kick Belmont Abbey

by David Zucchino Sports Writer

Coach Marvin Allen's Carolina soccer team ran its season record to a 2-0 Friday afternoon with a 4-1 conquest of Belmont Abbey in a game played at Belmont, N.C.

Forward Dan Atrial paced the Tar Heel scoring attack in the tumultuous, hard-fought game with two goals and chipped in with an assist on another score.

Junior forward Anson Dorrance scored once for the Tar Heels as did senior Arden Sterling. Sterling connected from his fullback position, an uncommon occurrence in soccer.

Dorrance, a Greenwich, Connecticut, native, was the Carolina pacesetter on offense. According to fullback teammate John McCallie, Dorrance's play was superb and "held the team together."

McCallie, who along with Bill Isherwood is directing a rapidly progressing Tar Heel halfback corps, described Belmont Abbey as a "hack team" that played a rough, aggressive brand of soccer.

Belmont Abbey offered much stronger competition than did Appalachian State, the Tar Heels' opening game opponent. Carolina demolished the outclassed Mountaineers 9-0, but it was feared that the Tar Heels might sputter defensively upon coming face to face with more potent offenses.

The UNC defense, however, held up well against Belmont Abbey's hard-nosed attack. Fullbacks Sterling, Tim Morse, and Jim Smith combined to form a concentrated, cohesive defensive wall for the second consecutive game and have teamed with freshman goalie Nick Jones to limit Tar Heel opposition to a single goal in two games thus far this season.

"We didn't play as well as we should have," remarked Morse, the UNC team captain. "The defense is improving steadily, however, and the halfbacks again looked very good."

The Tar Heels have a veritable rubymine of talent, led by Widgeon, McAfee, sophomore Tony Waldrop, Pat Grady, Mike Caldwell, Lennox Stewart, Mike Garcia, Bruce Hafemeister and Roy Helm.

Waldrop, the state cross-country champ as a freshman last year, is the subject of an interesting question: At what level should he psychologically "peak?" Coach Joe Hilton hopes that his top level hasn't been reached yet.

Cross-country is one of the most unpretentious sports events at Carolina — no grandstands, no fanfare — just a gathering of runners, a gunshot, a duel among runners and the clock, and a finish.

The Gamecocks are led by Jim Shaper and Larry Schmedia. This is the first meeting between the Tar Heels and Virginia Tech.

The 1972 UNC cross country team opens its season at 3:00 today against South Carolina and Virginia Tech on the five-mile track at Finley Golf Course.

The course record of 24:46.1 held by Duke's Ed Stenberg is in danger today because, as co-captain Larry Widgeon says, "The team is in great shape."

Another reason could be national junior-college champion Reggie McAfee, who has transferred to Carolina.

The Gamecocks are led by Jim Shaper and Larry Schmedia. This is the first meeting between the Tar Heels and Virginia Tech.

With two solid victories behind them, the Tar Heels have combined a free-wheeling offense with a young but effective defense to produce a squad that looks much smoother than last year's team at this same point.

If Carolina continues to show the same successful pattern of play, the Tar Heels should make it three in a row this Tuesday, when they travel to Williamsburg, Virginia, for a non-conference game versus William and Mary.
