N.C. Democrats to meet

N.C. Democrats will meet at the Grove Park Inn in Asheville Friday and Saturday for the 11th annual Vance-Aycock event.

The event is held annually to raise money and present candidates to the public. According to Roger Foushee, chairman of the Orange County Democratic party, it is a general party conference for initial political organization.

Among Democratic figures attending the $50-per-ticket affair will be Gov. and Mrs. Bob Scott and Wilbur Mills, chairman of the U.S. House Ways and Means Committee.

Also attending will be gubernatorial contenders Lt. Gov. Pat Taylor, State Sen. Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles (D-Guilford), State Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan and Hugh Morton, western N.C. businessman and entrepreneur.

Candidates for lieutenant governor who will attend the banquet include Jim Hung, speaker of the N.C. House, Phil Godwin and Roy Sowers, head of the N.C. Conservation department, Fourth District Congressman Nick Galifianakis, a candidate for U.S. Senator, will also attend.

Foushee, urging students to attend, said, "There is a personal element in politics. This is a good opportunity for young persons to get to know and talk to these people."

A reception sponsored by the Young Democrats Club will kick off the conference from 3 to 5 p.m. Friday. It is open to the public.

Admission to a cocktail hour, from 6 to 7 p.m. Friday is by ticket only.

Individual candidates and county organizations will sponsor hospitality rooms at around 10 p.m. Friday for talking with the public.

The Buncombe County Democratic Women will sponsor a breakfast at 9 a.m. Saturday. The breakfast is open to the public on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Two open champagne receptions will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. Saturday. Scott and Mills will be present at one reception. The Western N.C. Friends of Galifianakis is sponsoring the other meeting.

Admission to another cocktail hour from 6 to 7 p.m. Saturday is by ticket only.

Following this at 7:15 p.m. will be the banquet, with Mills as the after-dinner speaker. It too requires a ticket.

After the banquet, candidates and county organizations will again be holding open hospitality rooms.

Several Democratic leaders such as Foushee, Carl Smith from the Orange County-Chatham County district, Orange County Chief Solicitor Herbert Pierce have contributed tickets so students can attend some of the events. Foushee has indicated he will do his best to insure admission for students.

'Camp-in' to climax construction protest

by Lynn Smith

A "camp-in" this weekend at Joyce Kilmer Forest will climax ECOS's three-year fight to stop the construction of a highway through the virgin Kilmer Forest and adjoining Slickrock Creek Watershed.

Hardin Minor, an ECOS worker, urged conservation-minded students to join the protest. "Students can oppose the construction, enjoy the campout and meet other people who are interested in saving the environment," he said.

The campers will leave campus Friday afternoon and meet at Horse Cove Campground, one mile from the memorial forest.

"We need as many people as possible," Minor said. "This will be the focus for all opposition to the road."

The Sierra Club, Trout Unlimited (a fish protection group), Smokey Mountains Hiking Club and Conservation Council of North Carolina will join ECOS at a dedication assembly at 1:00 p.m. Saturday.

Minor asked students to make a special effort to attend the rededication meeting. "Gov. Bob Scott, 11th District Congressman Roy Taylor, the U.S. Forest Service and the Department of Transportation have all been invited," he said. "We need a lot of people so they can see how concerned everyone is about this type of destruction."

Guided hikes will begin after the meeting. Carl A. Reiche, a Florida conservationist, will lead a hike starting 8:00 a.m. Sunday.

Transportation has been the greatest problem in organizing the protest.

"We're having trouble getting people into drivers' cars," said Minor. "There may be enough to take a bus." Kilmer Forest is an 8-hour drive from Chapel Hill, on the North Carolina-Tennessee line.

Anyone interested in forming car or tent pools should come by the ECOS office, Suite B, Student Union or call 933-6757.

The Supremes will appear in concert Oct. 23, 8 p.m. at Carmichael Auditorium. Tickets $2.00

Fall overenrollment hurt phone company

by Ellen Gilliam
Staff Writer

Most of the student complaints filtered through the Chapel Hill Telephone Company each week concern service or billing policies, according to Gary McKelvey, phone company commercial engineer.

McKelvey, who has been with the phone company since the first of the year, explained the procedures and problems encountered by the utility with the massive fall influx of students.

After the student notifies the phone company of a desire to have his dorm phone connected, the application must be processed, wires in the campus phone plant must be connected and numbers must be sent to information services in Chapel Hill and Greensboro, McKelvey said.

Then numbers are compiled and the accounts are listed with the billing department.

McKelvey said the $5 connection fee, charged students and general subscribers alike, is intended to defray these initial expenses.

Bills are sent out at the first of the month and if payment is not made within about two weeks, notices of due payment are issued, McKelvey said.

If the payments are not made within 5-7 days following the notice, phone service is discontinued and the customer must pay an additional $5 re-connection fee to have it turned on again, McKelvey said.

An intercept, or recorded message saying the line has been disconnected, is not hooked up to the line for about two weeks following the disconnection.
