

South Florida too much for Heel booters, 4-1

by David Zucchini
Sports Writer

There's a world of difference between a first-rate college soccer team and a mediocre high school team.

This obvious difference showed clearly on Fetzer Field yesterday afternoon as the Carolina varsity and freshmen soccer squads split a doubleheader with the University of South Florida and New Hanover High of Wilmington.

Coach Frank Nelson's freshmen capped off an undefeated season with a 7-0 bombing of New Hanover, but the Carolina varsity ran into a superbly disciplined South Florida team and fell to a well-played 4-1 defeat.

Forwards Sean O'Brien and Garvin Turner combined for two goals each to lead the Golden Brahmins, whose speed and passing ability made them the most potent outfit that the Tar Heels have faced all season.

O'Brien put South Florida ahead early in the first period with a crisp, flat shot that UNC goalie Nick Jones snared with a perfectly timed drive. The ball slipped from Jones' outstretched fingertips as he lay flat in front of the Carolina goal, however, and O'Brien tapped it in for a 1-0 USF lead.

Midway through the initial quarter, the quick-moving O'Brien was trying to maintain ball control while surrounded by three Tar Heel defenders. He broke through with a surprising burst of speed and booted the ball the entire length of the penalty area for the quickest point scored against Carolina this year.

Some brilliant defensive maneuvers by fullback Arden Sterling prevented at least two more second period scores, but Turner came up with two unassisted South Florida goals to lower Carolina's season record to 5-3-1. The Tar Heels host Maryland Monday afternoon.

The Tar Heels kept up with the victors in shots on goal, 23-27, but couldn't penetrate the well-stocked USF defense. The lone Carolina goal came on a penalty kick by forward Kip Ward, who looped in a well-placed shot in the final quarter to save the Tar Heels from a shut-out.

In the freshman victory, forward Rick Culberson finished up a season-long scoring barrage with two first-quarter goals as the Tar Babies bombed hapless New Hanover.

Culberson headed in a Steve Dawson corner kick just after the game got underway and added his second goal a few plays later, connecting on a long unassisted bomb for a 2-0 UNC lead.

Forwards Vernon Grizzard and David Gershenson contributed two more first period scores on assists from Dawson and Larry May to knock Wilmington out of the contest before the second period was underway.

Jim Holleman opened the third period by slamming in a John Stephens assist and Stephens came back later in the quarter with the Tar Babies' sixth score.

Forward Charles Felts finished up the Carolina scoring deluge with an unassisted fourth quarter goal.

Brown is steady

by Don Harrison
Sports Writer

On a fine veteran defensive unit which has had its moments of inconsistency are a lot of guys you probably won't read much about, but their performances are vital.

One of them is the 6-1, 200 pound Tar Heel left defensive end, Gene Brown.

Gene, a red-shirt junior, speaks ungrudgingly about his lack of fame, saying "I play football for one reason, because I enjoy it. I'm just another cog in a very good defensive unit."

"Speaking of inconsistency," says Gene, "the only two times we've looked bad is when our pass rush wasn't effective."

Gene is referring to the Tulane game in which the opposition threw four touchdown passes enroute to a 37-29 win over the Heels, and the 35 points William and Mary tallied in a losing effort.

"I thought our defensive unit played real well in the Notre Dame game even though we lost 16-0. Our offense just couldn't get moving," Brown says.

Defensive ends in big-time collegiate football usually run taller, and heavier than 6-1, and 200 pounds, but Brown replies, "Our defensive scheme is set up to make things happen quick, and I concentrate on intelligence and quickness."

"In fact our whole team on the average is not that big. Just look at Ricky Packard's play week after week. He's one of the quickest linebackers I've ever seen in action."

Packard is 5-11, and 185 pounds. Two weeks ago for his performance in the Wake Forest game he was voted the outstanding defensive lineman in the ACC.

Gene is from Norfolk, Va., where he played prep football at Maury High School. Maury is a member of the strong Eastern District Conference in Virginia.

Carolina recruits Gene's home area heavily every year because of the caliber of teams that compete in the area.

In his freshman year, Gene played the 'Monster Man', which was the rousing linebacker when Carolina employed that particular defensive strategy. He was red-shirted his sophomore year. Last year he saw backup action behind Judge Mattocks before Judge quit the team.

"Judge was a great defensive end, and had tremendous potential, I don't know why he left the team," Gene adds. Mattocks was voted all-ACC defensive end in 1969.

Harriers prepare for ACC meet

by Dan Collins

The Carolina cross country team gets its third crack at Duke this Monday when the squad travels to Raleigh to compete in the all-important conference meet.

The meet is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. and all conference teams are expected to be in the competition.

The squad has been futile twice earlier this season in their attempt to knock off their conference rival and chief enemy. The two Carolina losses have left Duke in the drivers seat and the Tar Heels in the back seat, a situation viewed not too happily by Coach Hilton and his charges.

In the two team's last meeting at the state meet in Raleigh it was close, but still not bananas—and one feels that McAfee, Widgeon and company must be at least somewhat frustrated.

Frustration is the word that comes to mind when the team thinks of how much greater balance they could display with top runner Tony Waldrop.

The top two runners, Reggie McAfee

Howie still holds the edge

With the DTH prediction contest only three weeks from closing its second season, the race for the top spot is growing tighter.

Assistant sports editor Howie Carr, at one time three games in front of the pack, is now only one game ahead of Associate Editor Lana Starnes.

Starnes, the early-season leader, has evidently recovered from her slump.

During the last two weeks she has posted records of 8-2 and 9-2.

DTH editor Harry Bryan, after suffering one of his worst weeks of the year, is now a distant third with a 53-27 overall mark.

Sports writer Al Thomas continues to maintain his fourth-place position with a 52-28 record. Thomas rallied last week for a 9-2 score, however, and is closer to overtaking Bryan than at any time since the second week of the contest.

Sports editor Mark Whicker has been sporadic in his predictions throughout the eight weeks, and is now tied with sportswriter Dan Collins for fifth with a 50-30 record.

"King" Nyle has staged a breathtaking rally during the past two weeks, moving from deep in last place to only two games behind Whicker and Collins.

Gene started the Virginia game last year, and ever since has held the starting position.

My job is to keep anything on my side of the line turned in so our pursuit can bottle it up," says Gene. "Whether I contain, or rush depends on the situation. If its third and long, then I go straight for the passer, and if its third and four, I still have to worry about the possibility of a run, and if I see its a pass, then I go in after him."

It seems that with each game, one unit will play good football, and the other unit makes a lot of mistakes. When asked about this Gene replied, "that's the kind of team we have, when one phase of the game is going bad for us, the other unit picks up the slack."

Gene takes some of the blame for the few occasions the defensive secondary has been burned. "When we don't have an effective pass rush, you've got to expect to be burned on those pass plays sometimes. We've worked hard on the pass rush all week. This is the weekend both units are going to play the kind of ball we're capable of playing."

Too Far Out

Some people say Union Grove United Methodist Church is too far out to attend. We think the drive is worth it. Saturday, Nov. 13 from 12:30 - 7:00 is our harvest festival with an old fashioned auction and right delightful home cooked food. Take N.C. 86 North nearly 8 miles, turn left and follow the signs. It'll be cosmic. Rev. Bill Braswell and all the loving people welcome you to the celebration of life each Sunday at 11:00. We are all one in Christ. Come join us.
