

Net victories prove costly for women

by Kevin Barris
Staff Writer

Despite gaining two victories, the trip to Virginia over the weekend by the UNC women's tennis team may prove to be very costly, as yet another Tar Heel netter was injured.

Carolina demolished Mary Baldwin 9-0 Friday in Staunton, Va., then beat Virginia 7-2 Saturday morning to up its record to 12-1 on the season. The Tar Heels, however, may have lost the services of freshman Suzanne Bowen for the upcoming week as she sprained her ankle in her fourth court singles match against UVA.

Bowron was trailing 2-0 in the first set when she suffered the injury and was forced to default. The Cavaliers' only real victory in the match came in the no. 1 doubles match where UNC's Beth Hamilton and Jane Preyer fell to Sherry and Kerry O'Donnell 8-6. The teams played pro-set matches in the doubles due to the poor weather conditions.

The injury to Bowen comes at a time when three other UNC players, who are normally in the top six, are hobbled by injuries. Carolina has only two dual matches left this season (against UNC-G and Duke), but will be competing in two tournaments during the next two weeks.

Camey Timberlake, Beth Hamilton and Nina Cloaninger have seen limited action in matches so far this spring. Timberlake and Hamilton should be back in form soon, but Cloaninger may not see action in singles the rest of the year.

Cloaninger suffered a severe knee injury last year and will probably undergo corrective surgery this summer.

The Tar Heels host UNC-G Tuesday before traveling to Columbus, Miss. to compete in the Southern Collegiate Tennis Tournament.

Carolina will be the host and defending champions when the North Carolina Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (NCAIAW) Tournament starts April 17. UNC edged Duke for the team title last year, while Hamilton and Preyer won the doubles championship.

Women win state golf title

The UNC women's golf team this past weekend won the first annual North Carolina Women's Collegiate Golf Tournament held Friday and Saturday in Durham.

Duke's Jan Disque took medalist honors for the two-round event, but Carolina outdistanced Appalachian State in team competition by 21 strokes, 737 to 758. UNC-Greensboro placed third at 769, Duke fourth at 794 and St. Mary's ended up fifth, 869.

Sally Austin paced the Tar Heels with a fourth place finish overall. She notched a 176 and was followed in fifth by teammate Kathy Sinopole at 179. Other UNC entrants were Mindy Moore (181) and Jean Newton (201).

Playing in the second flight, Maura Stokes captured the division and Susan Dillingham had the second low-net score for the first flight.

UNC Coach Pam Robinson's golfers were 9-0 going into the competition.

Austin shot an 87 Friday and 89 Saturday for her 176. Sinopole had an initial round of 87 but turned in a 92 the final day for her 179.

Stickmen romp 24-3, halt five-game skid

What pops into your mind when you hear that Carolina outshot back-to-back opponents by a combined mark of 127-50? You figure that the Tar Heels won both of the games.

However, on Saturday the visiting Retrievers from the University of Maryland-Baltimore County, ranked number one in Division II, copped an exciting 12-9 decision.

On Sunday, the Tar Heels swamped outclassed Virginia Tech by the score of 24-3. The win halted a five-game losing streak for Carolina. UNC's record is now 3-5.

Against UMBC, Carolina outshot the Retrievers 53-36, won twice as many faceoffs and still lost the game. "We had the opportunities," said UNC Head Coach Paul Doty, "but we just didn't shoot well."

The Tech game gave UNC a chance to play everyone, and it was a welcome relief from some harsh defeats. The Tar Heels outshot the Gobblers, who are in their first year of competition, 79-14. Paul Wingate and Dan Cox led the way with three goals each, while Tom Cox and Ken Miller chipped in with two goals and two assists apiece.

UMBC's midfielders controlled the flow at the outset, giving the Retrievers a 4-0 lead. UNC, hustling and controlling faceoffs, battled back to a 7-4 halftime deficit.

Cutting off UNC's shooting angles on offense, UMBC held the Tar Heels at bay in the second half until the home team put on a patented surge. An unassisted tally by John Donato brought UNC within one at 10-9, but UMBC countered with two late goals to make the final score 12-9.

UNC goalie Chuck Weinstein thought the key to the game was falling behind early and letting up on defense.

"We regrouped but it was too late," he said. There were too many one-on-one situations against me because our midfielders failed to put enough pressure on their attackers."

Also, UNC's All-American Bert Fett was held scoreless for the first time this season.

Terps sidetrack Heels, 5-2

It was a so-so weekend for Carolina's baseball team. The Heels won a couple of games, something they hadn't been able to do for a while, but they also picked up another conference loss.

UNC broke its five-game skid with an 11-1 romp over Towson (Md.) State on Friday. UNC threatened to go on a winning streak Saturday with a 5-1 win over conference foe Virginia, but a 5-2 loss to Maryland Sunday ended these hopes.

The Tar Heels are now 1-3 in Atlantic Coast Conference (ACC) and sport a 12-11 overall record.

Carolina's problem against Maryland was its inability to get hits with men on base.

"We simply couldn't drive runs in," lamented UNC Coach Walter Rabb. "And that was the key to the game." The Tar Heels stranded 11 runners.

Bill Paschall started the game for Carolina. He gave up three runs on six hits in getting pinned for his first loss of the season against four wins.

Paschall's counterpart for the Terps, Bob Ferris, also allowed the Heels only six hits. Even so, the big righthander was in frequent trouble.

In the very first inning, Carolina loaded the bases with two walks and a single. Ferris, unperturbed by the situation, picked Chris Knepp off first base, struck out Win Barkley and got Lindsey Ethridge to fly out.

Ferris, who was recruited by Carolina coach Walter Rabb, ran his record to 5-0.

The Heels got their only runs in the eighth inning when Lindsey Ethridge drove in Mike Wilkerson with a double. Ethridge later scored on a ground out.

In the win over Towson on Friday, Carolina banged out nine hits. Leftfielder Ronnie Merritt led the way, going four for five. Each of his hits drove in a run.

Freshman Clay Johnson pitched seven innings of scoreless ball for UNC.

This was Johnson's first taste of varsity play. He had previously pitched two complete games for the jayvees.

The Heels picked up one run in the third inning, two in the fifth and three in the seventh.

However, UNC's big inning was the eighth, where they added five more runs. The Tar Heels loaded the bases with walks to the first three batters. A passed ball, an infield hit by Ronnie Merritt, an error, and Win Barkley's single got the runs across.

On Saturday, Carolina picked up its first (and only so far) conference win. Mike Merritt picked up the victory, his second of the year against three defeats.

Staying ahead of the hitters all day, Merritt allowed the Cavaliers only three hits. "It was my best effort of the year," he beamed.

Ron Merritt, Mike Wilkerson and Lindsey Ethridge all had two hits for UNC. Virginia opened the scoring with a run in the fourth. The Heels responded quickly with one in the fifth, two in the sixth, and one in the seventh and eighth for the 5-1 win.

Hilton pleased with fieldmen

In the past, the Tar Heel thinclads have relied more heavily on their runners than on the field event men to produce points on a meet. But the Carolina team showed some outstanding performances in both categories Saturday at the State-Record Relays in Columbia, S.C.

UNC Coach Joe Hilton said that he was generally pleased with the performances in Columbia and the progress his team is making as the ACC championship nears April 19. "Our performances were better in the field events this week and they (field event men) seem to be progressing well," he said.
