Advice for the whole woman

Switchboard's book useful

by Beth Sluder
DTH Contributor

Whole Women Catalogue by Switchboard, Inc., Chapel Hill, 1974. $3.

Ever since the first Last Whole Earth Catalogue came out (or the last First Whole Earth Catalogue), various Whole Something-or-Other Catalogues have appeared on the scene, offering advice on everything from planting marijuana to making quilts. The Whole Women Catalogue, published by Switchboard in Chapel Hill, is such a publication. Following the traditional format of its predecessors, it is a directory of advice and information.

particularly worthwhile to women living in North Carolina.

Such a directory is long overdue; there have been few unifying threads of communication among the state's female population. This book would therefore be extremely valuable for women in isolated parts of North Carolina. However, for women in the Triangle area, particularly those already involved with the feminist movement, the Catalogue serves only as a brief summary of familiar places and organizations. In the words of the editors: "This publication is not definitive because an entire directory for North Carolina would take a lifetime to compile. Rather it is like a map, with a hint there and a clue there, to our territory."

The most helpful part of the book is its appendix, which lists addresses of both national and state organizations, including health and pregnancy clinics, legal aid societies, children's clinics, senior citizens' programs and political organizations. Individual departments and clinics are listed for each county in North Carolina, with a few brief sentences on where to go for specialized help if none is available in the area.

There are a few things that could be improved. Black women and lesbians are dismissed with only a couple of pages of nebulous interviews (B: "How would you describe lesbians?" J: "Right on women.") But worse still is the inclusion of poetry and a short 'play' on country living which adds nothing to the catalogue artistically and indeed makes it seem politically trivial.

The guy at the bookstore told me there were a lot of things in the Catalogue that would make a good parody, and he's right. Despite that drawback, the catalogue is a worthwhile effort and a handy guide of where-and-how to's, particularly for women outside the Triangle area, even those who do not support women's liberation. Buy a copy of it because the proceeds go to make the next issue bigger and better, and Tar Heel women need a good directory of information, organizations and plain old advice.

Film festival at UNC

The first North Carolina Film Festival in Chapel Hill will be held April 18, 19 and 20. Independent filmmakers and film buffs from across the state will show films, exchange ideas and attend special workshops.

Area filmmakers Chris Potter and Bryan Elsom have planned the festival. Film showings and workshop signups will be held at 8 p.m. Friday in Murphy Hall. Workshops are scheduled for Saturday and are open to the public.

Bill Richardson, coordinator of the Appalshop, the Appalachian Film Workshop in Whitesburg, Kentucky, will discuss the shop and show films made by local people at 8 p.m. Saturday and at the Ranch House. A brunch will be held at 11 a.m. Sunday at the Ranch House where awards for films entered by North Carolina filmmakers will be made. Reservations for the brunch are required and available by calling the Ranch House. Further information can be obtained at the Union desk.

De Havilland

Miss Olivia de Havilland, stage and screen actress and the winner of two Academy Awards, will speak at 8 p.m. Thursday in Memorial Hall, on her career and the making of Gone With The Wind.

Recently, Miss de Havilland returned from Paris, now her home, to complete an original television screenplay entitled The Screaming Woman.

Tickets for the de Havilland speech are $1.00 and available at the Union desk. The film Gone With The Wind will be shown at 8:30 p.m. Friday in Memorial Hall. Tickets for the movie are $.50 and are also available at the Union desk.

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS MAN.

He's Bill Wright, manager of Brendle's. And he just has to be non compos mentis. You see, he runs this fabulous store absolutely crammed with name brand stuff. And he's practically giving it away.

Like, his prices aren't just low. They're incredible!

Which is a beautiful break for you. Because you can save a bundle on things that turn you on. All those things you need to stick a bit of distraction up the campus quiet. Like audio gear. Calculators. Tapes and records. TV's. Beer coolers. Cameras. And carloads of countless other commodities.

And that brings up a question. Why is this madperson coming up with such a great deal of great deals? Well, one rumor has it that he's bustin' butt to try and win an all-expense paid trip to Tabor

City. Another story making the rounds is that he's earning tuition money for a night course on "How To Solve Macramé And Other Knotty Problems."

But whatever the reason, he's out to move merchandise. And to do it, he'll accept all kinds of bread. He'll gladly take your personal check, sans hassle. Or coin of the realm. He's into plastic, like Master Charge and BankAmericard. Hell, for all we know, he might even go for beads and wampum.

One thing for sure, this dude does peddle a pile of loot. And, as if his prices weren't reason enough to get it on, he does another number, too: he lays a double guarantee on everything he sells.

So if you aren't happy, content and satisfied with your bargain, old whatsiface will make it right. Or see that the maker makes it right. Or whatever it takes to keep you happy, content and satisfied.

And you never have to worry about being ripped off. Because this Brendle's outfit just isn't into nocturnal aerodynamics. Nosir. They'll be around until Snoopy has kittens.

So you should get yourself in gear and cut out for Brendle's with rapidity. That way, you can take advantage of Loony Bill.

Before he comes to his senses.
