Nixon asked, ordered to testify

WASHINGTON — The Senate intelligence committee agreed Wednesday to ask Richard M. Nixon to testify about intelligence community abuses after a member charged the former president with an "enormous, unrestricted, paranoid fear about the American people."

Almost simultaneously, U.S. District Judge Lewis Smith ruled that Nixon must submit to sworn depositions in connection with a damage suit filed against him and other White House officials, charging illegal wiretapping.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Select Committee on Intelligence, said the panel in closed session had voted to question Nixon on the so-called Huston surveillance plan "and a number of other matters."

The committee revealed Wednesday that for 20 years prominent Americans — including Nixon and Nobel Peace Prize winners Linus Pauling and Martin Luther King Jr. — had their mail illegally opened and photographed by the CIA.

Church, who disclosed the program, said letters to and from such senators as Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and himself also were scrutinized. Church said the intercept snared one letter addressed to Nixon in June 1968, while he was campaigning for the presidency he won that November.

Two years later, Nixon approved, then revoked, a mail intercept program, according to evidence thus far made public without knowing it already was in existence.

Judge Smith ruled the Nixon must give sworn depositions at his San Clemente, Calif., home or at some nearby location. The testimony is sought by former White House national security staffer Morton H. Halperin, who is suing Nixon, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and other White House officials for allegedly tapping his home telephone from 199 to 1972.

Mrs. Ford commends on attempts

WASHINGTON — First lady Betty Ford said Wednesday she was her husband to continue traveling but wishes he would be more cautious and "just stay away from the people."

Meanwhile, a White House spokesman said Wednesday President Ford took the advice of Secret Service agents who told him he should not shake hands with crowds outside the San Francisco hotel just before a woman fired a gun from across the street.

The decision may have saved Ford's life, said Press Secretary Ron Nessen.

Nessen said that as Ford was walking out of the St. Francis Hotel Monday, Secret Service agents made a spur-of-the-moment request that he not shake hands with crowds outside the hotel. Ford "always" takes such on-the-spot advice from his guards, Nessen said.

Sara Jane Moore, 45, was standing in a crowd across the street, and Nessen said she was part of "one of the crowds the Secret Service suggested the President might well pass up."

During a briefing with a delegation of the Women's Stock Broker Association, Mrs. Ford said that "perhaps there should be some curtailment" of her husband's handshaking and closeness to crowds in view of the second assassination attempt against him in California.

"Of course I want him to travel," she told reporters. "No, I don't think he's in danger."

She was asked if she had discussed with President Ford the harrowing episode of

Monday. "Well, of course I've talked to him about it," she said. "I'm his wife."

Asked exactly what she had advised him, she replied: "Just stay away from the people — keep going."

OPEC to raise oil prices

VIENNA, Austria — Leading oil producers agreed Wednesday to raise oil prices Oct. 1, but most of them said it would be a "modest" hike that would keep world inflation from soaring out of control.

Iranian Minister Jamshid Amouzegar told reporters after a five-hour meeting of oil ministers of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) that they hoped to reach a decision on the exact size of the increase today.

Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi Arabian oil minister, said there were sharp differences of opinion over the size of the increase.

"The differences are greater than I expected," said Yamani, who went into the meeting publicly favoring a continuation of the oil price freeze that OPEC agreed upon nine months ago.
