Applications due at Y for co-president post

Candidate applications for Campus Y co-presidents and members of the executive board are due by Thursday.

A meet-the-candidates session will be held at 3 p.m. Friday upstairs in the Y Building.
 Any participant in Campus Y programs may vote in the elections Feb. 21 in the Y office, according to Jerry McConnell, Y co-president.

ELECTION '78

CGC candidates

Editor's note: Two candidates for Campus Governing Council seats in contested districts could not be reached Monday and thus were not included in a story on these contests in the Daily Tar Heel Tuesday. The candidates were contacted Tuesday afternoon, and their stands on the issues follow.

In District 11 (Morrison) Gary Mason and Jimmy Everhart are competing for the CGC seat.

Mason, a senior from Rocky Mount, is a double major in history and political science and will return for the next academic year.

Mason said his top priorities include operating the textbook department of the Student Stores on a non-profit basis with the Student Aid Office handling the revenues and rescinding the $2.50 student fee increase with all students receiving rebates.

"I also oppose funding the Carolina Gay Association with student fees," Mason said. "I think it offers nothing of value to the University community as a whole. I'm not denying its right to exist, only its right to student fee appropriations."

In District 13 (Alexander, Connor, Grimes, Mangum, Manly, Ruffin and Winston) Michael Davis, Tom Buske and Meg Milroy are the candidates.

Davis, a freshman from Cullowhee, is in the UNC Marching Band and the Men's Glee Club. He said he thinks the district should be more united so it would have a greater impact on the CGC.

"There is a lot of apathy and non-communication in the district," Davis said. "Usually, most of the representatives have been elected from Upper Quad, and they haven't paid much attention to the students in Henderson Residence College."

He said he thinks requiring faculty proctors is a good idea but that he feels changes need to be made to the so-called "rat clause" to make it more effective.

Davis said he thinks the Carolina Gay Association does not reach enough students to warrant the appropriation of student fees.

"The importance of the CGC is to divide up the money it has. It must find out what the students want in order to appropriate the money where it needs to go," he said. "The people in there now are voicing their own opinions too much and not asking others for their opinions."
