CGC to consider bill Tuesday

Allotment process may improve

By ROBERT THOMASON Staff Writer

The Rules and Judiciary Committee of the Campus Governing Council approved a bill Tuesday which it says will streamline the process of funding campus organizations.

The bill, drafted after approximately three months work by the CGC Budget Review Committee, will be considered by the CGC at its meeting Tuesday. If passed, it will provide guidelines for the funding process this year and in subsequent years.

The provisions of the bill are designed to make CGC members more familiar with the various organizations requesting funding.

The bill states as its general philosophy that "the student activities fee should be used primarily for the funding of programs, services and events of benefit to the student body at large."

To meet this end, the bill requires that organizations requesting money complete a budget request form that is more detailed than forms in the past.

The form requires the organization to list the CGC Finance Committee. The Finance Committee then would assess the total funds available through the student activities fee, compared with the total of budget requests from all organizations. Should the total of all requests exceed the available funds, the Finance Committee would determine, after meetings with officers of the organizations, where reductions would be made The Finance Committee then would prepare a budget summary for the CGC and submit it at least 48 hours before the meeting at which the budget is considered. The summary would indicate the amount each organization requested. the previous year, the amount received, the amount requested for the upcoming year and the appropriation to that organization. The Finance Committee would set time limits for budget hearings, under the new bill, limiting the hearings to one evening session. The Finance Committee would determine randomly the order in which organizations are heard. Currently, the hearings are conducted in alphabetical order.
