Is it sick to love a pen?

Is it crazy to love marker pens that give you the smoothest, thinnest line in town, and feel so right in your hand? Is it mad to worship pens with clever little metal "collars" to keep their plastic points from getting squishy?

Not if the pen is a Pilot marker pen.

Our Razor Point, at only 59c, gives the kind of extra-fine delicate line you'll tip over. And for those times you want a little less line, have a fling with our fine point 59c Fineliner. It has the will and fortitude to actually write through carbons.

So, don't settle for a casual relationship. Get yourself a lasting one, or two, to have and to hold... at your college book store.

$35 will buy British work permit

By GEORGE SHADROUI
Staff Writer

For $35, American students between the ages of 18 and 30 can buy a work permit which allows them to spend up to six months in Great Britain.

Since 1962 the British and American governments have concentrated in an exchange program which allows American students to live and work in Britain and vice versa. The British Universities North American Club (BUNAC) sponsors the program for American students in Britain, at a cost of $35 per student.

Andy Chapman, a BUNAC representative, was on campus recently and spoke to more than 50 students about the program.

He said students participating in the program are responsible for securing transportation to Britain and finding a job and housing. BUNAC will obtain work permits for the students.

He said every American student who participated in the program last year found a job within a week.

Chapman said the purpose of the program is to allow students to "see our culture first-hand and not from a tourist standpoint. It gives students the experience of working abroad and seeing the country while they do it."

The quota of American students going to Britain is never filled, he said. Last year more than 2,000 British students came to the United States while only 400 U.S. students went to Britain.

Students are paid in pounds.

Citizenship will not be affected by the program and a student may leave before his six-month visit expires.

Applications and information on the program are available at the International Center in Bynum Hall.

"The team is not being taught anything," said one starter. "There are no fundamentals being taught to anyone."

"I haven't learned anything since I've been here," said one freshman.

Other players charged that Doty does not motivate the team.

"We aren't playing for Doty, we're playing for our pride," one player said.

Players cited the Washington and Lee game as an example of the problem. Doty, they said, gave the team no constructive advice or strategy during halftime after Carolina fell behind 2-0.

"At halftime all he told us was 'Score goals,'" one player said. "After the game he said absolutely nothing."

All of the players expressed that they hold no personal grudges against Doty.

"Everyone likes him as a person," said one starter. "It's just that we question his ability to coach. I like the man; I respect him as a human being. He's done a lot for me."

The Tar Heels finished seventh in the nation last spring with an 8-4 record and a national playoff appearance. The team suffered no significant loss from graduation and returned four All-Americans to its starting lineup. In addition, several outstanding high school players enrolled at Carolina this fall.

Doty was an All-America attacker at Dennison University in Ohio before taking a job as teacher and coach at Tabor Academy in Massachusetts. He was named coach of the year in 1972 in his league. He came to Carolina that year and has since compiled a 33-21 record. The team finished fifth in the nation in 1976.

Grail considers new men

By CARVER CAMP
Staff Writer

The Order of the Grail, a campus honorary organization for men, currently is choosing its 1978 inductees and planning service projects for the coming year.

Sophomore, junior, and senior men were nominated last month on the basis of excellence in character, scholarship, leadership and service. The order occasionally inducts male graduate students, alumni, faculty and other members of the University community who have demonstrated these standards of excellence.

"We try to set up a broad base of people who have a lot of connections on campus," Bradley Lamb, Delegate of the Grail, stated Wednesday. "My role as delegata is to try and get together the best possible group."

The Order of the Grail was established in 1920 to promote student unity in the rapidly changing post-war community. Lamb said. The founders hoped to bring student leaders together in an organization which would serve the entire campus, promoting fellowship throughout the campus community as well as among its members.

"Our original goal was a unifying organization to integrate the fraternity and non-fraternity students," Lamb said. "The Grail permeated not only academic life but social life as well."

"One of our present goals is to reconcile campus race relations," Lamb said. "The students as a body should take more action toward achieving this goal."

The organization, which consists of 28 active members (23 of whom were inducted last year) will meet frequently for the next two weeks to process nominations, organize tapping ceremonies and plan an upcoming induction banquet.

The order infrequently performs honorary tapings throughout the year in cases of outstanding achievement, Lamb said. The Order of the Valkyries, the women's counterpart of the Grail, tapped 17 new members and eight honorary members last week. The Valkyries tops all of its new inductees once a year.

The Grail coordinates the sales of class rings and graduation announcements through the Josten Company. A percentage of the profits goes to the APO-Bernard Grail Scholarship Fund. This fund is administered to students through the UNC Student Aid Office.

In 1977, the order issued a report on prevailing opinions concerning the Honor Code. Lamb said he hopes to draw up a document at the end of this year outlining similar projects.

"We would like to compile a written document to express the beliefs of the Grail members and to address the problems of next year," Lamb said. "Solutions to these types of problems don't develop overnight — they need to be nurtured."

Lamb cited the Honor Code dispute as an example and added, "Judging from what is done in the past you can always judge the success of the future."
