

Israelis plan phased withdrawal

From staff and wire reports

JERUSALEM — Defense Minister Ezer Weizman and Army Chief of Staff Mordechai Gur briefed the Israeli Cabinet Sunday on plans for a phased withdrawal of Israeli forces from occupied territory in southern Lebanon.

Cabinet Secretary Aryeh Naor declined to give details of the withdrawal plan, which U.N. officials said would begin Tuesday with Israeli troops moving south one to four miles from forward positions in the eastern sector.

NEWS BRIEFS

The second stage of the pullback is scheduled to begin Friday with troops withdrawing up to three miles in the central sector.

U.N. Secretary Kurt Waldheim has criticized the Israeli plan as inadequate, and Naor said Prime Minister Menachem Begin sent a reply to U.N. headquarters.

In a tour of the region, reporters found hundreds of casings of American-made cluster bombs dropped by Israeli warplanes on guerrilla positions.

In Washington, the State Department said the bombs, anti-personnel explosive units that spray shrapnel over a wide area, were supplied under an agreement that did not provide for their use in instances such as the seven-day Israeli campaign in Lebanon.

The Israeli military command Sunday admitted that the bombs were used but did not say how many or where.

Coup attempt fails

MOGADISHU — Somali President Siad Barre said Sunday his army had quickly crushed a long-expected coup attempt by a group of disgruntled officers and the ringleaders will be punished.

News reports said a number of senior officials were killed in the short-lived rebellion. However, it was not immediately clear if they were part of the government or rebel forces, and the extent of other casualties also was not known.

Mogadishu Radio reported the ringleaders had been quickly arrested and the government is in control of the situation.

Diplomatic sources said the coup attempt had been expected for several weeks in Mogadishu in the wake of Somalia's military defeat in the Ogaden war against Ethiopia, but it had received no widespread support either from the army or ruling party and appeared doomed before it began.

UNC-TV to hold forum

Each of the eight Democratic candidates for the U.S. Senate will be given free air time later this month to discuss campaign issues.

The 30-minute programs are scheduled for broadcast on the UNC Television Network at 7 p.m. April 18-21 and 25-28. Candidates will draw lots to determine what dates they will appear.

The network has provided this type of forum for candidates for statewide office since the primary election in 1972 and will provide similar programs prior to the fall general election for all candidates for the Senate seat now held by Republican Jesse Helms.

Each program will open with the candidates making a brief statement. He then will be questioned by a panel. In addition to the eight 30-minute broadcasts, UNC-TV will provide the opportunity for Democratic Senate candidates to present brief position statements for broadcast during breaks between regularly scheduled prime time programs.

GOP endorses students

WINSTON-SALEM — The N.C. Federation of College Republicans recently approved resolutions supporting students in voting rights cases at two North Carolina universities, said Doug Markham, former president of the statewide group and a member of UNC College Republicans.

Students at Western Carolina University in Cullowhee have asked the N.C. Board of Elections to order Jackson County officials to allow students to register to vote.

A group of conservative Orange County Democrats has asked the state courts to purge the names of UNC students from voter rolls who give permanent addresses outside of Orange County when enrolling for classes.

"The College Republicans want one policy statewide," Markham said. "Residency requirements and tax and voting laws all define residency differently. There ought to be one definition."

Economy headed for trouble?

WASHINGTON — The nation faces an economic "hemorrhage" in 1980 — a stiff recession and a 10 percent or more inflation rate — unless President Carter reduces federal spending, former White House economic adviser Alan Greenspan said Sunday.

Carter is expected to announce an anti-inflation plan in a speech Tuesday to the American Society of Newspaper Editors. Aides have said the strategy does not include new programs but stresses voluntary restraint.

UNC group to consider controversial labor center

By KATHA TREANOR
Staff Writer

A planning committee of the UNC Board of Governors is to decide Thursday if establishment of the controversial Center for Labor Education and Research at N.C. Central University in Durham is a worthwhile project for the 16-campus UNC system.

The board approved plans for the center in October but sent the idea back to the planning committee after state legislators complained the project would benefit labor unions.

University officials asked for a second delay in February to request a study to determine if the program is necessary.

Board member Harley Shuford, president of Century Furniture Co. in Hickory, said the proposed center would be "a step toward the University supporting organized labor."

One of the most outspoken critics of the center is Bill Treadaway, executive vice president of Printing Industry of the Carolinas Inc., who has attacked the center as being pro-union.

Supporters of the center are trying to dispel beliefs that the center would be pro-union by demonstrating what they say are the benefits of locating the center at traditionally black NCCU. The program will also foster employer-employee relations in North Carolina through training, proponents say.

The project is to be an adult-education training project to help union and non-union workers understand the industrial enterprise system, NCCU Chancellor Albert Whiting said.

Whiting acknowledged that the easiest access to the work force is through the unions but said the center itself would not be union-oriented.

People's Alliance spokesperson Bob McMahon criticized business interests and other proponents of the plan saying corporate executives favor management but not the work force.

"The People's Alliance believes that state's institutions should be run for all our people," McMahon said. "When the boards that make the decisions are composed of a wealthy few, then democracy becomes a sham."

The state spends large sums of money on programs for management and business training courses. The same should be done for the workers by establishing centers such as the proposed NCCU project, McMahon said.

State AFL-CIO President Wilbur Hobby proposed the labor center last year, saying courses offered through the program could be taught by NCCU faculty.

If approved Thursday, the center could offer courses in labor law, occupational health and safety, pension reform, labor economics and communications skills.

McMahon said he is pessimistic about the center's chances of approval.

Mayor must pay $70,120

Cates fined in illegal arrest incident

From staff reports

HILLSBOROUGH — A Superior Court jury Friday ordered Hillsborough Mayor Fred Cates to pay an Orange County family more than $70,000 in punitive damages for the mayor's role in the illegal arrest of a family member more than three years ago.

The suit stems from the arrest of Geary Blackwood in December 1974 at the home of his parents in Carrboro by Cates, Hillsborough police Sgt. Larry Biggs and Carrboro police Patrol Officer Larry Edwards.

An Orange County grand jury, the week after Blackwood filed suit for false arrest, charged Blackwood with raping Cates' daughter. Blackwood was acquitted in 1976.

Cates, Biggs and Edwards earlier were found liable for trespassing on the property of Blackwood's parents near Chapel Hill the night of the arrest and for unlawful imprisonment of Blackwood. The jury ordered Biggs and Edwards to pay nominal damages to the Blackwoods.

Hillsborough attorney Lucius Cheshire, one of Cates' lawyers, said the mayor plans to appeal the jury's decision. The Blackwoods' lawyer, Lonnie Coleman, said the decision was a hallmark in legal efforts to protect the sanctity of the home.

Cates has been mayor of the Orange County seat for more than 10 years. He announced last month his resignation effective July 1, saying his political differences with members of the Hillsborough Board of Aldermen had nothing to do with the civil suit the jury decided Friday.

The suit originally also sought damage from the towns of Carrboro and Hillsborough, from Cates' daughter for slander and from the mayor for slander, assault and battery. The suit against the two towns was later dropped.

In instructing the jury before deliberations began, Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey said damages could be awarded only if jurors found the defendants had acted with malice or wanton disregard of the rights of the plaintiffs.

Anybody who takes a Red Cross swim course knows how tough it can be. There's a good reason. We believe swimming is a serious business. Last year alone, we taught 2,399,301 Americans not all across the country. Incidentally, most of the teaching—as with almost everything American Red Cross—is done by dedicated volunteers. A good many of the youngsters not only are learning to keep themselves safe. Thousands upon thousands of them are learning to become lifesavers. And the life they save—may be your own.

Red Cross is counting on you.
