In 1974, Time Magazine chose Luther Hodges as one of America's emerging national leaders, the only North Carolinian selected. Which is no big surprise because Luther Hodges is a leader. In his business career and private life in North Carolina, he has shown the ability to tackle tough problems with all the energy to see his solutions through. And that is exactly the kind of leadership it's going to take to face the problems of the future — problems such as inflation, unemployment and energy.

North Carolina needs Luther Hodges right now. And we need him where he can do the most good. In Washington, as our next United States Senator.

against what the president called the nation's top economic ill, inflation.

"But Strauss' options are limited because of political pressures on the president, said Dennis Appleyard, an associate professor in the UNC economics department.

"Measures that would curb inflation successfully would also increase unemployment," Appleyard said. "So to take strong measures would be politically detrimental to Carter."

Two months after President Gerald Ford began his "Whip Inflation Now" campaign in the fall of 1974, the American economy headed into the deepest recession since World War II. But the situation four years ago was more grim than current economic conditions, Appleyard said.

"In 1974, the economy was still in shock from the oil crisis and food and commodity scarcities," Appleyard said. But favorable industrial figures and record-setting sessions on the New York stock markets last week are rebuilding confidence in the strength of the economy, he said.

Professor Maurice Lee of the UNC School of Business Administration predicts a continuing inflationary trend.

But top Ford economic adviser Alan Greenspan said a major recession is possible by 1980 because worsening inflation will sap workers' incomes as more dollars buy fewer goods.

Expenses

Meal estimates for this academic year according to financial aid officials, were $993. The estimate for 1978-79 is $1,046.

Personal expenses for students during the 1977-78 academic year were about $500, according to financial aid office figures. This will probably increase about $20, estimates show.

"Nobody can say precisely what a particular student spends because individual decisions about purchases play a large part in the cost to the individual," Geer said.

"The cost of education in public institutions has constantly been rising, just as the cost has been rising in private institutions," he said. "The private costs seem to get more attention, but the needs of students and the burdens which students in public institutions are having to bear deserve similar consideration."

Elizabeth Suchar, director of financial aid services for the College Scholarship Service, said many families are wrong when they assume they cannot afford some expensive colleges. They think only of rising costs and do not understand that financial aid can offset high costs, she said.

Whether a student qualifies for aid usually depends on financial need, the difference between what a college costs and what a student can afford to pay, Suchar said.

"While families with annual incomes above $35,000 are less likely to qualify for aid, special circumstances, such as two or more children in college at the same time, might favorably affect their eligibility," she said.

Congress is discussing a bill to provide tax credits for college students. President Carter, who is opposed to the credits, has asked for increases in loans and grants to students.

Trustees

Parking on sidewalks or lawns will carry a fine of $10 plus the cost of repairing damage done by parking in the area. Driving on sidewalks and lawns will carry a penalty of $15 plus the cost of repairs.

Towing fees also were increased to $17.50 from 7 a.m.-6 p.m. for a standard tow and to $27.50 if dolly wheels are used. From 6 p.m. to midnight, the cost will be $22.50 for a standard tow and $32.50 for a tow with dolly wheels. From midnight to 7 a.m., the standard tow fee will be $27.50 for a standard tow and $37.50 for the use of dolly wheels.

All of the new parking and towing fines become effective July 1.

The trustees also issued a statement of their support for the Orange Water and Sewer Authority's petition to the State Environmental Management Commission to begin condemnation proceedings on the site of the proposed Cane Creek reservoir.

DTH REPORT CARD

We need to know. Sure, we know about HEW, Jimmy Carter, the Chapel Hill Board of Aldermen and a lot of other things. But we don't know the most important things a newspaper should know: what our readers think.

Tell us about it. What you like about the paper, what you don't like, and what you'd like to see it do.

Clip this survey out and answer the few questions it asks. Elaborate as much as you'd like, and feel free to expand on matters not addressed by the questions.

You can return the completed survey to the DTH offices in the Carolina Union anytime this week. There will be a special box in the lobby; just drop it in. And if you've got something you'd like to talk about or explain while you're in the neighborhood, come on in.

We need to know, and we'd appreciate your help.

1. Comment on the one thing that bothers you most about the DTH.
2. Comment on the one thing you like most about the DTH.
3. Circle the news you like to see most in the paper: campus town state national and international
4. Circle the following if you think we do a good job with them: sports features entertainment articles
5. How well do the editorials in the DTH reflect your opinions? very poorly poorly adequately well very well
6. Do you have any story ideas you'd like to see in the DTH? Elaborate.
