

Smith attorneys say evaluation subjective

By JIM HUMMEL
Staff Writer

DURHAM—Prosecution briefs filed in U.S. Middle District Court on Friday state that "deficiencies in procedure" were the cause of sex discrimination in the University in the refusal to rehire Mary Carroll Smith, a former UNC assistant religion professor.

"Numerous procedural deficiencies are apparent in this case and were the fault of both the University and religion department," the briefs say. Among the deficiencies listed are evaluation contradictions and insufficient time for the department to form an opinion about Smith's teaching performance.

Smith originally was hired in 1973 and was denied a contract renewal by the religion department a year later when she requested promotion to associate professor, which brings tenure with it. Smith filed a lawsuit in 1976 charging University officials with age, sex and religious discrimination in their consideration of her promotion.

Elisabeth Petersen, Smith's attorney, writes that the department used "hiring criteria" in their reappointment evaluation. Petersen also charges officials with viewing her client "in personal terms, not professional ones."

Lawyers for the University say that Smith was not rehired due to her performance and the fact that her knowledge of Sanskrit and India Studies was so specialized for the religion department. Petersen argues that this is not true because Smith was "given a merit raise of $1,000 based on her performance that year." (1974).

The prosecution's briefs go on to say "the only deficiency alleged is based entirely on subjective evaluation of the plaintiff's conversation... and training which was not considered a deficiency when hired."

Referring specifically to sex discrimination, the briefs say, "There were flawed procedures and no safeguards against discrimination. It (the reappointment review) totally disregarded her good teaching record and evaluations, although it stressed these for males."

Last month a U.S. Middle District Court jury in Greensboro said University Officials did not practice age or religious discrimination when they denied reappointment to Smith. Under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, however, only a judge can determine if sex discrimination was a factor in Smith's case.

Judge Eugene Gordon last week received briefs filed by Eddie Speas and Betsy Bunting, lawyers for the University. Having received the plaintiff's statement, he must now make a decision.

"We still have a chance," Smith was quoted as saying. "It's very important for women to bring this type of case to a federal level."

The decision will have no effect on Smith's teaching status at the University because she left to take a position at Vassar College in New York. The decision, therefore, will only determine damages in the case.

Nicaraguans claim Venezuelan help

MANAGUA, Nicaragua—President Anastasio Somoza's government, claiming near-victory against rebels in the north, said Sunday that Venezuela had thrown its military support behind the insurgents, sending warplanes to back a rebel attack in the south.

The Information Ministry statement said Venezuelan planes based in Costa Rica had provided support for a rebel attack on the key Nicaraguan post of Penas Blancas, on the Costa Rican border.

Costa Rica quickly denied the Nicaraguan claim. There was no immediate comment from Venezuela.

National guard headquarters in Managua, meanwhile, said its forces completely had retaken the northern city of Leon, the country's second largest.

At least 11,000 die in Iran quake

TEHRAN, Iran—A devastating earthquake that struck a farming region of northeast Iran Saturday killed more than 11,000 persons and destroyed entire cities and villages, the official Pars news agency reported Sunday.

The quake, which U.S. seismologists measured at 7.7 on the Richter scale, was the most powerful in recent Iranian history, officials at the Tehran Geophysics Institute said. U.S. scientists said it was also the strongest in the world so far this year.

The news agency said only 2,000 of the 12,000 residents of the city of Tabas survived, and most of these were seriously injured. Tabas and its surrounding villages were at the epicenter of the quake, 400 miles southeast of Tehran.

The agency said 40 nearby villages were demolished and 60 others badly damaged.

The quake, which was felt in two-thirds of the country and caused buildings to shake, hit at 3:38 a.m. EDT Saturday.

Kaplan -- Hodges' fund-raisers legal

CHARLOTTE—Broadcast executive Stan Kaplan says his fund-raising activities for unsuccessful Democratic U.S. Senate hopeful Luther Hodges Jr. were all legal.

There have been published reports that Kaplan, an owner of Sis Radio Inc. of Charlotte, is one of the targets of an FBI investigation involving the possible submission of false statements to obtain one or more loans and other alleged violations of election laws.

Kaplan obtained loans of $65,000 and $20,000 from the Bank of North Carolina for the campaign of Hodges, former chairperson of the board of North Carolina National Bank. Hodges lost to state Insurance Commissioner John Ingram in a Democratic primary runoff for the U.S. Senate nomination.

Asked if he ever received a loan and gave the money to friends to contribute to the Hodges campaign, Kaplan said, "I did no such thing."

Federal court jury convicts Hawke

RALEIGH—A federal court jury Sunday convicted Jack Hawke Jr. and Herbert L. Caudle of two charges each stemming from their part in obtaining a federal loan for a firm headed by Caudle.

Hawke, a prominent North Carolina Republican, and Caudle were found guilty of willfully making a false statement to the U.S. Economic Development Administration about a feasibility study that was instrumental in the EDA's approval of a $650,000 loan to Brevard Wood Products, Inc. of Brevard County, Fla. Caudle is president of the company.

Hawke was convicted of conflict of interest charge involving his ordering consultant Albert D. Levy of Maryland to turn over certain information to Caudle. Caudle was found guilty of giving federal officials incomplete financial information in obtaining the loan.

Dollar decline could aid U.S. trade

WASHINGTON—The International Monetary Fund urged patience Sunday for those who are worried about the dollar, saying the decline should benefit the U.S. and world economies although it may take a few years.

The IMF said the steep plunge in the dollar's value, and the gains made by other currencies, will help to narrow the huge U.S. trade deficit while easing the trade surpluses of countries like Japan and West Germany.

Gov. Brown aide, Spock to speak on solar energy

By PAM HILDEBRAN
Staff Writer

Solar energy a way to lessen heating and insulating costs and get a tax break in the process?

Solar advocates say the answer is yes, and the Solar Energy Forum at 7:30 p.m. today in 100 Hamilton Hall, will examine how and why solar energy is important now.

Keynote speaker for the event will be Wilson Clark, assistant to California Gov. Jerry Brown for issues and planning and author of Energy for Survival.

Clark, founder of the National Energy Institute in Washington, D.C., and energy-policy adviser to President Jimmy Carter, will discuss the merits and possibilities of installing solar energy.

Other speakers for the forum will be Dr. Benjamin Spock, pro-energy conservation activist and well-known author of Baby and Child Care; Dr. James Bresse, director of the N.C. Energy Institute; Hugh Wells, executive director of the N.C. Utilities Commission; and Leon Neal, chairperson of the N.C. Solar Association. David Orr, UNC professor of political science, will moderate.

"Hopefully, we will be able to inform people of how feasible solar energy is now and not just for the future," said Terri Andrewlavage, one of the forum's coordinators.

Andrewlavage said students attending the forum will benefit substantially from it.

"A lot of these people will soon be thinking about buying a home and wouldn't think about how solar energy could cut heating and insulation costs," Andrewlavage said. "Also, the fact that solar energy is a national question is important, and students have a right to know."

The forum is sponsored by the UNC departments of City and Regional Planning and Urban and Regional Planning, the UNC Institute for Environmental Studies and UNC Student Government.

The forum is free and open to the public.

men at night, we will drop the extra six men."

Edmonds said police will not arrest anyone for public display of alcohol, but they will arrest people for drinking or putting an alcoholic container to their lips while on public property, which includes sidewalks and streets.

The crackdown also includes stricter enforcement of littering laws. If police see a person put refuse anywhere but in a trashcan or dumpster, that person probably will be arrested.

"We have no quotas to fill on Friday and Saturday nights, but we will arrest anyone that we see drinking alcohol in public or littering," Edmonds said.

Edmonds said he thinks the crackdown is working.

"We are seeing less public consumption than we expected, especially around the fraternity houses," he said. "If people are aware that we will arrest them for public consumption, they are less likely to do it."

Truth In BIKE Advertising

PART 2 — "Dealer Prep Vs. The Clean Machine Prep"

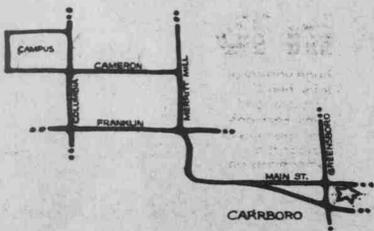

Every new bike arrives at the dealer's in a box. Beyond simply assembling your new bike and handing it over, the amount of "dealer prep" is up to each dealer.

At The Clean Machine we do everything we can to make sure your new bike is as near-perfect as possible. This includes all the following:

- true the wheels (off the bike)
- adjust the hubs
- adjust the crank
- grease the stem
- align the dropouts
- adjust the brakes
- remove & grease the brake cables
- adjust the headset
- dish the wheels
- grease the seatpost
- align the derailleur
- test drive it

Then we hand it over.

When you shop at The Clean Machine, we don't hand you a line. We hand you a bike.
