

Readers do Kesey novel

The UNC Reader's Theater will present an adaptation of Ken Kesey's novel One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest at 7:30 and 9 tonight and Thursday in rooms 202-204 Carolina Union.

The adaptation, written by Owen Page and Dace MacPherson, involves one man's struggles in a mental hospital. The focus is on McMurphy, who shows the patients how to continue living and to oppose the tyranny of the Big Nurse.

The cast includes Mark Kogan as McMurphy, Owen Page as Chief Bromden and Celeste Ford as Big Nurse. Other cast members are Scott Allen, C.W. Casey, Mark Fox, Susan Gravelly, Susan Hite and Tim McMains.

"What I really want to show is the struggle between how society expects man to act and how man really does act," said MacPherson, director of the show.

UNC women to sing tonight

The UNC Women's Chorus presents music from many eras in a concert at 5:15 today in Hill Hall auditorium.

The chorus of 30 voices will perform selections by Purcell, Brahms, Gershwin and others, according to conductors Dean Johnson and David Stuntz. Lois Strother is piano accompanist.

Is it sick to love a pen?

Is it crazy to love marker pens that give you the smoothest, thinnest line in town...and feel so right in your hand? Is it mad to worship pens with clever little metal "collars" to keep their plastic points from getting squishy?

Not if the pen is a Pilot marker pen. Our Razor Point, at only 79¢, gives the kind of extra-fine delicate line you'll flip over. And for those times you want a little less line, have a fling with our fine point 69¢ Fineline. It has the will and fortitude to actually write through carbons.

So, don't settle for a casual relationship. Get yourself a lasting one, or two, to have and to hold...at your college book store. Pilot Corp. of America, 30 Midland Ave., Port Chester, New York 10573.

Bond

Bond said, "Two years later, we discover a man who knew the words to our hymns but not the numbers on our paychecks."

Bond blamed Howard Jarvis and Allen Bakke for the two most detrimental blows to the civil rights movement in the 1970s. He said Bakke's lawsuit turned the Constitution around. "Until 1954, this noble document had slammed the school doors in our faces," Bond said. Bond said the Bakke decision would insure "only the male and the pale" will receive the best education and jobs, and called reverse discrimination "a laughable notion that implies that 13 percent of the population will force the other 87 percent to have the worst jobs and the worst schools."

Bond called Jarvis' Proposition 13 "social arson at the grassroots" and said it is "the first battle in a war between the haves and the have-nots."

He said the poor and the blacks sit on their doorsteps and "wonder why their American dream is a nightmare."

Bond often quoted statistics during the course of his speech. He said that, on the average, a black man with a college education annually earns $110 less than a white man without a college education. He also used statistics showing that although a minority of blacks believe in voting, a majority believe they had shown their political activism by signing a petition.

"The food Andy Young eats doesn't feed their stomachs," Bond said about blacks and the poor. Twice as many blacks are unemployed in 1978 as were in 1968, Bond said. Blacks comprise 20 percent of the people who have been unemployed for 15 weeks, 30 percent of those unemployed for 27 weeks and 34 percent of those who have been jobless for a year. However, blacks comprise only 20 percent of the work force.
