

Poll rates Hunt, Carter

More N.C. adults are satisfied with the performance of Gov. Jim Hunt than with the performance of President Carter, a recent Carolina Poll shows.

But more than half the respondents to the survey said they feel both are doing a good job.

In a statewide poll of 889 North Carolinians 18 or over by the UNC School of Journalism, 64 percent of those surveyed said they think Hunt has been doing a good job, and 55 percent said the same about the president.

Eleven percent said Hunt has been doing a poor job, 28 percent thought Carter has been doing a poor job, and the rest had mixed feelings of gave no answer.

Hunt's approval rating was seven points higher than the 57 percent rating he got in a Carolina Poll conducted in October 1977.

Many respondents approved of Hunt's emphasis on education in the latest poll, which was conducted Oct. 19-23, when the state's news media carried many stories on the high school competency tests.

Ethnologist Margeret Mead dies

NEW YORK (AP)—Margaret Mead, one of the world's foremost anthropologists and idol of several generations of American students died Wednesday after a year-long battle with cancer. She was 76.

She died at New York Hospital, where she had been admitted Oct. 2, no longer able to work at her permanent headquarters in the American Museum of Natural History.

She was the retired curator of ethnology there and also had occupied chairs of anthropology at Columbia and Fordham universities.

Mead, whose early fame and professional reputation were based on exhaustive field studies of primitive Pacific island cultures, always stayed in tune and in touch with the young of her own land.

She angered some political conservatives, who objected to her views on marijuana and generational conflict. She favored legalization of marijuana because, she said, banning it bred conflict between kids and their parents, and that was worse than any harm it did.

News in Brief

Bureaucrats $436 million overpaid

WASHINGTON (AP)—Carter administration officials estimate taxpayers are being billed an extra $436 million a year because 11.5 percent of the governments white collar workers enjoy rank and salaries too high for their duties.

Nearly half the overgrading is blamed on "management considerations" such as deliberate pressure on job graders by bosses.

Sheriff's term to start in January

DANVILLE, Va. (AP)—U.S. District Court Judge Glen Williams has given Caswell County Sheriff Bobby Poteat until Jan. 5 to wrap up his business before beginning a two-year prison sentence.

Poteat was convicted in October of lying to a grand jury and sentenced to prison.

Soviets let activists emigrate

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union has yielded to American pressure and given permission for Jessica Katz and her Jewish activist parents to emigrate, ending their year-long battle to obtain American medical treatment for the baby's rare digestive illness.

Committee says Ray not paid

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House assassinations committee said Wednesday it can find no evidence that James Earl Ray was ever paid to assassinate civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

"If there is a conspiracy, then there is no evidence that he, Ray, received payment," said G. Robert Blakey, the committee's chief counsel.

IRA blasts at investment hopes

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—The Irish Republican Army has set off bombs across Northern Ireland in a declared attempt to hobble a British official's search in the United States for millions of industrial investment dollars for the troubled province.

Roy Mason, Britain's secretary for Northern Ireland, is in New York trying to convince potential investors that normalcy is returning to the war-torn province. The IRA said in a statement the bombings were intended to discredit Mason's claim.

Trustees approve plans for health library addition

By THOMAS JESSIMAN
Staff Writer

The UNC Board of Trustees recently approved the final drawings for a building that would double the size of the Health Sciences Library.

"When construction is finished in two or three years," said Samuel Hitt, director of the library, "we will have one of the largest health sciences libraries in the country."

The building plans call for the addition of three floors onto the present structure, and the renovation of the three floors already there.

"When they built the library in 1970," Hitt said, "they set foundations for six floors, but they had to stop building after three. Right now, we just don't have enough room for the services and programs we are involved in."

With the expansion of the building, the floor space will double to 64,000 square feet. The book capacity will swell from 190,000 to 263,000 volumes and the building will be capable of housing up to 65 staff members.

The library expansion is made possible by funds from the sale of the University's utilities two years ago. The building is expected to cost $3.8 million, and construction should begin about March Hitt said the construction should bring some noise and dust to the area, but that the library will remain open as usual. Access to the library will become more difficult, however, and people will have to come through MacNider Hall into the library once construction begins.

The new plans call for the basement of the library to include a reserve reading room and an audiovisual center. The main floor will house the circulation services and reference services staff as well as indexes and card catalogues. The second floor will be devoted to the rest of the staff, current journals and the history room. Bound journals will be on the third and fourth floors and the book stacks will be on the fifth floor.

Hitt said the reserve reading room in the basement will be effective because students can browse and get their books without waiting. A leisure reading room with vending machines, an automated circulation service and a vertical book conveyor all are being planned for the new library.

"We service the five health schools here—dentistry, pharmacy, public health, medicine and nursing," Hitt said, "as well as North Carolina Memorial Hospital and others on campus. We need the extra space to perform all our services."
