

Lawyers set to deny charges of racism

By JIM HUMMELL
Staff Writer

Lawyers for the University of North Carolina are preparing a response to charges that UNC's public radio and television stations discriminate against minorities.

A Durham-based citizen's group called the Coalition for Responsive Media is seeking to prevent the University from gaining license renewal from the Federal Communications Commission. The present license expired Dec. 1, said George Bair, director of UNC Educational Television.

"We have to submit an annual employment report to the FCC which becomes a part of our public file," Bair said. "The coalition examined the figures in October and filed a petition on Nov. 1."

The petition says the station's programming is not responsive to the tastes and viewpoints of minority groups due to discriminatory hiring. It also says all of WUNC-FM's full-time employees are white and that of the television station's 90 employees, only eight are members of minorities.

"There's no question that the University has been engaged in an affirmative action effort to assure equal opportunity to all persons," said Wade Hargrove, a Raleigh attorney who represents the stations.

According to FCC guidelines, the stations must apply for application renewal every three years. WUNC-TV is licensed under UNC-Chapel Hill.

The coalition's petition marks the first time the network has been challenged in its attempt for renewal. The station has been granted renewal every three years since its start in 1955.

"There are some alternatives in the event that the FCC denies renewal of our application," Bair said. "The stations could be run on a contingency basis, that is, on a conditional license. But if we were denied the conditional license the stations would have to go off the air. The University could not apply for another license for a year."

The present operating license expired on Dec. 1 but the stations are allowed to continue broadcasting until a ruling is made.

Lawyers for the University will have until Jan. 1 to file their petition. After the petition is filed the coalition will have 20 days to respond to it.

News in Brief

6 killed, 60 hurt in train derailment

SHIPMAN, Va. (AP)—A Southern Railway passenger train jumped the tracks on a curve and piled into a ravine in mountainous south-central Virginia early Sunday. Authorities said six persons were killed and at least 60 were injured, several critically.

N.C. cities buy Duke nuclear plant

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Duke Power Co. sold part of its Catawba nuclear plant to 19 North Carolina cities for $600 million last week after three years of negotiations.

It's the first time Duke has sold a generating plant in its 74 years. The deal may signal a new era of public power generation in North Carolina, a field that has been virtually dormant since city-owned hydroelectric stations disappeared in the early 1900s.

Tornadoes kill 4, injure 250

BOSSIER CITY, La. (AP)—A tornado ravaged this northwest Louisiana city Sunday and other twisters touched down in Arkansas and Mississippi, killing at least four persons and injuring more than 250.

Blacks vote in South-West Africa

WINDHOEK, South-West Africa (AP)—Blacks in this South African-administered territory vote for the first time Monday in elections for a bi-racial legislature. But key opposition groups have called for a boycott of the polls, contending the balloting is rigged to favor white-dominated parties.

South Africa, meanwhile, signaled it is ready to go along with U.N. demands for later, U.N.-supervised elections.

Iranian troops battle demonstrators

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Imperial troops fired into the air and used tear gas in battles throughout Tehran with thousands of anti-shah demonstrators Sunday night.

Power went out in many areas of the capital after the shooting started and the fighting continued in darkness. Power plant employees had warned they would cut off electricity if the shah's troops fired at protesters. There were no immediate reports of casualties.

More Vietnamese refugees drown

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP)—Two boats packed with Vietnamese refugees sank off Malaysia's northeast coast and in the Gulf of Thailand Sunday, drowning at least 26 and sending the known death toll from such incidents in the past two weeks beyond 350.

University OK would send F route into Carrboro

By PAM KELLEY
Staff Writer

If UNC approves an extension of the F bus route proposed by Carrboro's transportation committee, students may be able to ride the bus from downtown Chapel Hill to northern Carrboro beginning next semester, Carrboro Alderman Doug Sharer said Sunday.

The proposal would send F buses down North Greensboro and Hillsborough streets. The plan was sent to John Temple, UNC vice chancellor for business and finance, last week, but he has not yet responded to it, Sharer said.

"The route will provide much better service to people in the northern part of Carrboro," Sharer said. "For most people in that area, there is no service available now."

Sharer said the cost of the extension is estimated by Chapel Hill to be $17,300, which would be split by the University and Carrboro.

"From what we have negotiated with the University, this is exactly what we expected to come up with," Sharer said. "I expect UNC will pay half the costs."

The route would run during standard daytime hours, Sharer said. "The whole F route will be rescheduled some, but it won't mean any less service to anyone," he said. It is hoped the new service will begin by Jan. 8, the first day of registration before UNC's spring semester, he said.

"We hope to be able to recommend something to the Board of Aldermen at the Dec. 12 meeting," Sharer said. "We have to take action then to give the Chapel Hill Transportation Department time to rework their schedules."

The extension of the F route was one of the service increases proposed by Carrboro in talks with UNC and Chapel Hill last summer.
