

State women prevail 85-68

By MARJO RANKIN
Staff Writer

N.C. State forward Trudi Lacey scored 26 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to lead the Wolfpack to an 85-68 win over the UNC women's basketball team Wednesday night in Carmichael Auditorium.

The win marked the 12th straight time the Wolfpack has defeated UNC. The last Carolina win came in 1975.

UNC center Henrietta Walls battled Lacey for scoring and rebounding honors as the 6-foot-1 freshman had 23 points and 14 boards and earned high praise from Wolfpack coach Kay Yow.

"She (Walls) had a great game," Yow said. "I hate that she gets fired up for N.C. State, but anytime you move into double-figures and go over 20 points, you've had an outstanding game."

After falling behind 6-0, the Tar Heels started to pass to Walls underneath and she responded with the first seven Carolina points to bring UNC within three at 10-7 with 16:07 remaining in the half.

The Wolfpack soon caught on to that game, however, and cut off the inside passes.

"The passers flattened their passes," UNC coach Jennifer Alley said, "and once we threw a couple away or State got a hand on them, then the girls got hesitant to do it."

Junior guard Aprille Shaffer took up the slack and hit a 16-foot jumper at the 12:14 mark to pull the Heels to within one at 14-13, but from there State scored seven straight points to pull out to a 21-13 lead with 10:30 left.

Carolina cut the margin to four but could not get no closer as the Pack streaked to a 41-29 halftime advantage.

N.C. State continued its scoring pace in the second half and the closest UNC could get was eight when senior forward Bernie McGlade hit two straight layups to make it 56-48 midway through the half.

The Pack wasted little time negating Carolina's rally and at one time led by 19 points, 79-60.

"I feel we lost it on the board," Alley said. "We were coming down and getting one shot. State was playing man-to-man but we were taking 14-, 16-, and 18-foot shots."

McGlade said part of the problem was a lack of patience on offense.

"We tried to rush it a little bit," the Tar Heel captain said. "We weren't taking our time and being sure of receivers. State is a good team; you can't take chances with them. You've got to be sure of what you're doing."

McGlade scored 15 points and was the only Tar Heel to join Walls in the double-figure column.

Wolfpack senior Genia Beasley followed Lacey in scoring with 19 and Ronnie Laughlin added 10 points and nine rebounds.

Heel wrestlers pin Blue Devils

The North Carolina wrestling team took nine of 10 weight classes from the Duke Blue Devils on its way to a one-sided 44-3 victory Tuesday night in Carmichael Auditorium.

Bob Monaghan started the rout with a 22-7 superior decision over Bert Govin in the 118-pound class. After a close first period Monaghan broke the match open with a 10-point second period and Govin never threatened again.

Dave Cooke followed with a 21-2 defeat of Tom Jarrett at 126 pounds. C.D. Mock extended Carolina's lead to 16-0 with a third-period pin of Bill Nugent.

The wins kept the lightweights' dual meet-record perfect and raised their combined record to 15-0.

Two other Tar Heels kept their dual meet marks unblemished as well.

In the 158 class Jan Michaels won his fifth dual meet with a pin of Lee Cox at 3:20 into the match.

Carter Mario stayed unbeaten in the 167 class with a first-period pin of Ted Van Dyke.

Joe Galli broke a three match losing streak at 150 pounds with a 5-3 defeat over Blue Devil captain Robbie Smoot.

Galli broke a tie with a reversal early in the second period and then successfully rode out the period. Smoot escaped in the third period, but Galli turned back Smoot's attempts to tie the match with a takedown to win.

"It feels good to get a win," a relieved Galli said. "I've been in a slump, and I've had problems with minor injuries and my confidence. Sometimes you need a little win to get going. I've been working hard so I hope it might work out okay."

Kirk Stephens gave Carolina a fourth pin at 177 while Norman Masterson and Norm Walker added decisions.

Carolina's lone defeat was in the Heavyweight class where Jack Parry was decisively by Christian Holjes, 9-5.

The victory raised UNC's record to 5-0 overall, 2-0 in the Atlantic Coast Conference. The Tar Heels meet Clemson Jan. 30 in Charlotte.

Kappa Psi fraternity shoots for fourth bowling title

Have you ever found professional bowling coverage on TV and quickly switched to another channel? You're not alone. As a matter of fact, bowling ranks fairly low in America's favorite spectator sports, somewhere in between seeing paint dry, and watching dust gather on your grandmother.

IMs & Clubs

By Chip Karnes

But for those who refuse to be spectators and actually go bowling, there really is a sport behind rolling a polished ball towards rows of wooden sticks. And if the Kappa Psi team can manage to knock down more pins than the other teams in this year's Fraternity Division, they will capture their fourth straight I.M. bowling championship.

"We're a small frat with only 30 to 35 brothers," says Kappa Psi President and team member Parks Thomas, "so we have a lot of the same guys playing many different sports." Teammate Ray Burke adds, "Having everybody active in intramurals keeps us busy, but I think it helps out overall."

And amazingly enough, the Kappa Psis have placed well against organizations two or three times their size. In three years, they have placed consistently in the top 10 fraternities and last year reached playoff positions in five sports, including championships in badminton and bowling.

"We like bowling best, but we have to bowl well as a team to win," Thomas says, "so we have a little competition between the guys who want to bowl to pick the four to be on the intramural team."

The average score per member for the Kappa Psis is around 160, but this number can be misleading. "We can't depend on everybody to bowl an average game," Burke says, "so the team has to have at least one guy who is having a hot night with a score of around 180 to take up the slack if somebody isn't quite up to par."

"Also," Thomas adds, "a lot depends on where you get the strikes and spares. You could have 120 in the eighth frame and still finish out with 170 or more."

Thomas compares bowling to golf, saying both require a lot of timing, and a lot of practice to get this timing right. But unlike golf, and at least at the Carolina Union, bowling doesn't necessarily call for a lot of money.

"We can help each other learn a lot in just an hour at the Union," Thomas says, "and bowling is a lot cheaper here on campus." A five-man team can roll a lot of games on the Union lanes for $2 an hour, as compared to commercial lanes, which charge as much as $1 per game.

But while consistency is the key for both amateur and professional bowlers, only a team can give the moral support needed to stay that way. "Sometimes we talk about what to do better to help somebody get back into the game after a bad frame," Thomas says.

And whether or not the Kappa Psis will be fortunate enough to repeat their past performances and succeed in the March all-campus playoffs, Burke will keep with the sport anyway.

"There's just nothing better after a tough exam," he says, "than just going down to bust up a bunch of them pins."

NOTES: The first meeting of the UNC Water Ski Club will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 29 in Room 213 of the Carolina Union. The club is open to all UNC students regardless of experience. For more info call 967-2882.

The UNC Men's Bowling Team defeated both North Carolina Central University (75-12) and N.C. State (54-36) last weekend. The women's team bowed to NCCU (58-32) but beat the State women (56-34).

Fencers sweep pair from Duke

From Staff Reports

The UNC fencing teams took easy wins over the Duke Blue Devils Tuesday night in an Atlantic Coast Conference meet held at the Women's Gym.

The men did not fence well, but still managed to run their record to 5-2 with a 20-7 win over the Devils.

Strong performances in foil and sabre, where the Tar Heels won seven of nine bouts in each, were the keys in the win for the men.

The women remained undefeated by winning the A team match 14-2. The women's B team also won, 9-7. The women are now 6-0.
