poll From page 1 "We know that (minority support for the governor) is a weak area for us," Bass said. She said that some of the governor's decisions had been opposed by minorities, notably his decision to uphold the convictions of the Wilmington 10 defendants.

James W. Prothro, a UNC political science professor and a former consultant for NBC News on political poll-taking, said Hunt's rating was predictable. "He's fairly popular among young people," Prothro said. Among other state leaders, Republican U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms received a mixed opinion. Thirty-eight percent of the respondents disapproved of the way that Helms has handled his job, with 35.7 percent approving and 26.1 percent having no opinion.

More students get shots Student Health Services gave red measles vaccinations to 881 UNC students Wednesday, bringing the number of students inoculated this week to 1,506, SHS nurse Annie Bowling said. On Tuesday, 625 students received vaccinations.

Students are advised not to take the red measles vaccine if 1) they are allergic to eggs, rabbit fur, duck feathers or the meat of the two animals; 2) they are allergic to neomycin, an antibiotic often used in first-aid creams; 3) they are sick with more than a cold; 4) they are currently taking cortisone, a steroid that prevents formation of antibodies and makes the vaccine ineffective; or 5) they have cancer, leukemia, lymphoma or any disease that lowers the body's resistance to infection.

In an attempt to contain the red measles outbreak, about 96 Chapel-Carboro students have been suspended from school until they can provide confirmation either that they have been immunized properly or have had red measles, school officials said Wednesday.
