

Monarch height too much for lady Heels, 74-53 losers

By MARIO RANKIN
Staff Writer

No. 1 Old Dominion lived up to its reputation and ranking Wednesday night when it downed the UNC women's basketball team 74-53 in Carmichael Auditorium.

Carolina guard Aprille Shaffer did the job defensively stopping 5-foot-10 Nancy Lieberman, and the Heels' 5-8 Joni Berry supplied the offense with a career-high 25 points, but neither effort was enough to counter the inside battle, which went unanimously to ODU's 6-8 Anne Donovan and 6-5 Inge Nissen.

The towering twosome scored 18 points each and combined for 21 rebounds. Donovan added eight blocks to the tally.

Carolina played ODU even for the first 10 minutes, but the Monarchs' full-court press was more than the Heels could handle in the last five minutes of the half. ODU turned a five-point lead at 21-16 into a 32-16 lead in a matter of one-and-a-half minutes and led 40-20 at the half.

"Ultimately the game got away from us in the last five minutes of the first half," UNC coach Jennifer Alley said. "We had to do some substituting because we had Aprille and Henrietta (Walls) in foul trouble."

Lieberman, tabbed as the top woman in basketball, agreed that the last five minutes turned the game around.

"The press was by far the key," Lieberman said. "They couldn't get by it, and we built a lead."

That lead started on a Lieberman steal and layup with 3:10 remaining in the half. ODU added four more steals and 12 more points in those three minutes to put the score at 28-16.

Lieberman was held to eight points—considerably less than her 15.6 average—but compensated on defense as she set an ODU record with 10 steals.

"We have a lot of good players who can score," Lieberman said. "We do a lot to get the ball to the player who's open. I don't worry about scoring."

"Nancy was looking to pass," Alley said. "I think she thought we were going to front the big people and we didn't, so she didn't have the lob (pass) to go to."

The teams played an even second half, but Carolina was unable to cut into ODU's solid lead. Berry put on an outside shooting clinic en route to her game-high 25 points hitting 10-of-20 field goals and 5-of-5 foul shots.

Senior Bernie McGlade was the only other Tar Heel in double digits, as only four Carolina players scored. The 6-1 McGlade had 14 points and 13 rebounds.

IM rule visible, but overlooked by many

There's an entry in the intramural rulebook that's not intended to fool anyone, but every year some people overlook the regulation and find themselves—and their team—disqualified from action.

IMs & Clubs

By CHIP KARNES

It's Rule V, Section 5 Paragraph J, which reads: "No team in any division may have more than one person on its roster who is a member or has been a member of a UNC Sports Club during the academic year in the same or related Intramural-Recreation Sports activity."

"It's our way of keeping the teams more balanced," said Marty Pomerantz, assistant intramural director. "The eligibility rule has been around for a long time, but some teams are still violating it, whether they know it or not."

To make sure teams know about the rule, a clause has been added to IM registration forms requiring the signature of a team member verifying knowledge of IM regulations.

Very simply, the rule says each intramural team can have on its roster only one member of a club team of the same sport. Pomerantz described a club team as one that is funded by the University, is a member of the Sports Club Council or represents UNC against other colleges.

be a possible come-from-behind winner. Though it sits 10th in the current standings, Stacy was not even ranked last year before the dorm captured three spring sports and finished third overall.

In the Fraternity division, Delta Upsilon leads Pi Kappa Alpha by 84 points, followed by Beta Theta Pi, Chi Phi, and Pi Kappa Phi. Although winning is a necessity for piling up points, this division is sometimes decided by participating points, which indicate how much an organization gets involved in IMs. For example, 135 of DU's 408 points and 140 of the Pika's 324 points came from participation alone. Incidentally, these same teams finished in the top five last year but in different order—the Betas won in '78-'79.

However, the most mystery as to final outcome lies in the Grad-independent, Rams and Women's categories because current standings for these divisions are unavailable.

Olympics," said All-America swimmer Fritz Homans. "As for the boycott, I'm an American first and an American athlete second."

"I'm all for it (the boycott)," junior wrestler Bob Mongham said. All-America swimmer Ken Ireland's views differed somewhat from his teammate's. "It's a damn shame," Ireland said. "Politics are killing the games....I'm in favor of sending the team 100 percent."

Trackster Gary Hofstetter also has hopes of participating. "The Olympics are a political forum and always will be," the All-American said. "I just feel sorry for the athletes who have trained for five or six years for the Games."
