

Tar Heel wrestlers face Wolfpack in rematch at 7:30 tonight

By GEOFFREY MOCK
Staff Writer

The North Carolina wrestling team puts its undefeated record on the line against the Wolfpack of N.C. State at 7:30 tonight in Carmichael Auditorium in a rivalry that is as heated as its basketball counterpart.

The two teams battled in January and the meet went down to the last 20 seconds in the final weight-class when Carolina Heavyweight Jack Parry gained a takedown to win a 5-3 decision and give UNC a 21-18 victory.

Since that meet, State was upset by Maryland, and the Tar Heels clinched their second straight Atlantic Coast Conference regular season title, but UNC coach Bill Lam said tonight's match is no less important than the last one.

"State's whole season is riding on this," Lam said. "We expect the largest crowd of the season. I hope the crowd gets our kids going."

The meet features five nationally ranked wrestlers. At 118 pounds State sends the nation's second-ranked wrestler Jim Zenz against Carolina's Bob Monaghan in what Lam said could be the most important match of the night.

"It could be the whole meet right there," he said. "If we win there we're not assured of a victory, but we might get by."

Monaghan scored a surprise major decision over Zenz in the earlier meet, but he is still below his Wolfpack opponent in the national rankings.

"I'm ready for him and he's ready for me," a fired-up Monaghan said. "I want to prove my win wasn't a fluke."

Carolina's All-America C.D. Mock, ranked fourth in the nation at 134 pounds, takes on high school teammate Mike Donahue. Mock has defeated Donahue twice this season, but Lam said a decision may not be enough. "We need Mock to get a superior decision or a pin," he said.

State has two ranked wrestlers in addition to Zenz. Joe Lidowski has never been beaten by Norm Walker at 190 pounds, but their earlier encounter was a close 7-5 decision, and Lam said he's hoping for an upset.

Rick Rodriguez is also ranked for State at 167 pounds, and Mike Koob is undefeated in dual meets at 158, but both dropped a weight class for State's meet with Virginia last weekend, and Lam said they should stay at those weights for the Carolina match. "I don't think it helps State. We have a better chance of beating Rodriguez at 158 than Koob," Lam said.

Lam has done some shuffling of his own, dropping Joe Gallie to 142 pounds and moving Pete Pierce up a class to 150. "This gives us a better chance of winning 142. Joe should win," Pierce lost in a decision at 142 in the January meet, and Gallie was pinned by Koob.

Lam is also counting on wins by Dave Cooke at 126 and Carter Mario in the 167-pound class. "We've got to leave one at 167 for us to win," he said.

Lam said he hopes the meet is not decided in the Heavyweight class, but he expects Parry to duplicate his earlier win at Heavyweight.

One Tar Heel may not compete. Freshman Kirk Stephens was cut in a match against Maryland and has six stitches above his eye. If he can't go it will hurt us," Lam said. "He's been improving a lot."

The pressure is on UNC to complete a sweep of State, and Lam said that factor may be decisive. "I feel State has the advantage. They don't have the pressure. That could be enough to turn the meet around."
