Commission refuses to stop debate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Election Commission refused Thursday to stop a scheduled one-on-one debate Saturday night in New Hampshire between Republican presidential candidates George Bush and Ronald Reagan.

Sens. Howard Baker of Tennessee and Bob Dole of Kansas and Rep. John Anderson of Illinois had appealed to the regulatory agency to stop the debate, which is being sponsored by the Nashua Telegraph.

Vance says European help lacking

LONDON (AP)—Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance conceded today he had failed to win unanimous backing from America's European allies for President Carter's call for a boycott of the Moscow Olympics.

In London at the end of a tour that also took him to Bonn, Rome and Paris, Vance told reporters he found general agreement on the nature of the threat to Western security resulting from the Soviet military move into Afghanistan and on the general objectives of Western policy.

But he said, "There are differences of opinion on how to carry them out."

Siamese twins now at home

FOREST CITY (AP)—Siamese twins Fonda Michelle and Shannon Elaine Beaver left an Asheville hospital Thursday and went to their parents' home in this western North Carolina town.

The infant girls had been undergoing tests since being transferred to Mission Memorial Hospital following their birth in Rutherfordton on Feb. 9.

Doctors have said the girls can be separated surgically but have recommended that the operation be postponed at least until the twins have doubled their birth weight. That is expected to take at least six months.

Chicago firefighters locked out by city

CHICAGO (AP)—Striking firefighters tried to return to work at their regular fire houses Thursday but the city locked them out, jeopardizing a truce that had raised hopes of renewed negotiations.

Frank Muscare, Chicago Firefighters Union president, ordered the 4,350 firefighters in the nation's second-largest city back to work at 11 a.m. on the eighth day of their walkout, but strikers were not allowed inside stations.

Circuit Judge John F. Hechinger said the city had instituted the lockout because the union violated the back-to-work agreement.

Venezuelan official sees calmer market

LONDON (AP)—Representatives of six OPEC members opened a strategy session Thursday, with Venezuelan Energy Minister Humberto Calderon Beti predicting calm will return to world oil markets by June.

Beti spoke at a news conference at the Venezuelan Embassy before the start of a two-day meeting of the long-term strategy committee of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. The session was held behind closed doors and under tight security at a London hotel.

The conference was expected to take up a recommendation by OPEC technicians for regular quarterly or semiannual price hikes pegged to currency market fluctuations, economic growth rates and inflation in the industrialized world.

Students reiterate demand for the Shah

The Associated Press

Inspired by a message of support from Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the young militants holding the U. S. Embassy in Tehran vowed anew Thursday they will not release their American hostages until the fugitive shah is handed over to Iran.

The militants' reaffirmation of their tough stand raised new questions about the prospects for an early release of the hostages.

The U. N. investigative panel on Iran, whose work might be crucial to resolution of the crisis, continued to mark time in Switzerland.

Iran's president and foreign minister both insisted there is no deal guaranteeing freedom for the hostages in exchange for the U. N. inquiry. And both Khomeini and President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr reiterated Iran's demand for extradition of the ousted shah.

One of the co-chairmen of the five-member U. N. commission, Mohamed Bedjaoui, Algeria's U. N. ambassador, unexpectedly left Geneva, Switzerland, for New York on Thursday. The commission members had been scheduled to fly from Geneva to Tehran Wednesday, but U. N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim at the last minute delayed their departure until this weekend.

Waldheim told reporters at the United Nations that Bedjaoui was returning because he had urgent business in his diplomatic mission in New York, but a U. N. spokesman later said Waldheim and Bedjaoui would meet Friday.

Presumably they will discuss the obstacles that caused Waldheim to delay the commission's departure. Iran's foreign minister, Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, indicated Thursday they might now arrive even later than the weekend, telling the Iranian news agency they would be coming to Tehran early next week.

Well-placed sources at the United Nations who asked not to be identified said the delay was necessary because Bani-Sadr needs more time to marshal various groups in Iran behind a settlement of the crisis.

The commission is to carry out a fact-finding mission hearing Iranian charges of mass murder and corruption against deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and of U. S. interference in Iranian affairs, and hearing American grievances

SBI investigates phone improprieties of officials

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Bureau of Investigation will look into allegations that House Speaker Carl J. Stewart and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green made long-distance telephone calls at state expense for political purposes.

Both Green and Stewart said on Thursday that they will reimburse the state for any calls that did not involve public business.

Gov. Jim Hunt, meanwhile, said that he has a telephone billed to his re-election campaign installed in the Governor's Mansion for his use on political matters.

Wake County District Attorney J. Randolph Riley said he was "treating the allegations exactly as I would any other allegations against state employees." The attorney general's office said results of the SBI investigation will be turned over to Riley for evaluation.

Green said one of his staff members made a political call from a state telephone, but that the state had been reimbursed for the expense. Stewart, denying any wrongdoing, said he had requested an investigation already under way by the state legislative services officer.

"The entire circumstances are unfortunate," Green said. "The truth is, however, that one of my staff members did in fact make what appears to be an obvious political call on a state toll line. We have already made reparation for that call."

"We will, of course, cooperate with any investigation," he added. Stewart said he "asked my staff to identify any questionable calls, and we'll be glad to reimburse the state."

Stewart said government officials return calls on state telephone lines without knowing whether the original call was for political or non-political purposes.

Stewart, of Gastonia, is opposing Green for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Hunt, asked about the calls at a news conference, said he uses a campaign telephone credit card for his political calls and also has a campaign WATS line installed in the mansion.

Hospital dietary workers confer with management

By CHARLES HERNDON
Staff Writer

After several meetings and a week of negotiation, N. C. Memorial Hospital dietary workers and the dietary management apparently have resolved some of the workers' complaints, a hospital spokesman said Thursday.

Spokesman Bob Wilson said meetings between a group representing the workers, the United Workers Organizing Committee, and NCMH food service director Thomas Chegash have cleared up some of the workers' complaints.

"We feel this would conclude the matter of the protests," Wilson said. Last week, about 35 workers presented the hospital and the dietary management with a list of varied grievances and demands.

Wilson said he did not know if negotiations were complete, but he said that open meetings between Chegash and the employees would continue. "We will continue to meet with workers individually and in small group meetings if necessary," Wilson said.

He also stressed that the grievance procedures previously available to workers, including weekly management-employee meetings and a regular grievance forum, would remain in effect. Workers had charged that these procedures were not effective in meeting their needs.

Both the hospital and the workers had compromised, Wilson said. Most of the complaints were considered and changes were being made to meet some of the demands, he said.

In response to charges that the hiring practices and job opening advertisements were misleading and discriminatory, Wilson said that advertisements and job descriptions would be worded more clearly and would be more available to workers and applicants. Although he did not say that the hospital had misled job applicants or those already on the job, he did say that attempts would be made to improve the communication of the requirements.

Workers complained that all supervisors were making the same wages despite seniority. But Wilson said that it was established in negotiations that workers were being paid on a state wide pay scale which could not be altered.

Workers also were told that an in-service training program would be initiated in March. One of the workers' demands was to re-establish a "training program leading to job advancement for dietary workers." The program was canceled last November. Hospital spokesman John Stokes had said that the program had been planned long before the workers' complaints.

Wilson said that many of the workers' complaints were unjustified and not addressed at the meetings. Many of the workers simply were not aware that some of their demands were already hospital policy.

Negotiations are expected to continue until all the issues are resolved, Wilson said. Some of the issues raised by dietary workers are being studied by hospital management.

was not on tour but said that since he would not have to bring a backup group to the Chapel Thrill '80, there is a chance that he may perform.

He suggested that contacting James through his agency might be difficult and gave the committee his son's New York address.

"Tell him you had spoken with me, and that I'd said he would be interested," Taylor said. "And add that you understand he wouldn't be on tour, but that you'd like him to perform by himself. Also, of course, mention the money."

Another problem in the way of the concert is an injury James sustained several years ago, Taylor said. "James cut his hand which severed a nerve cutting off the feeling in a couple fingers," he said. "This hurts his guitar playing—maybe that is why he is not going on tour."

Although James was born in Boston, the Taylor family later moved to Chapel Hill, where he lived for twenty years.

"There is no doubt Chapel Hill has a pull on James," Taylor said. "I know he has some very positive feelings about North Carolina."

However if a substitution for James must be found, his father suggested his other recording-star son, Livingston Taylor.

"Liv and Jon Edwards did a show in Boston a while ago," Taylor said. "And boy was it a bang-up job." Taylor added that his other son Alec and his daughter, Kate also sing, though only Kate sings professionally.

The new facility also will not require as much parking as originally thought, he said, which means that University construction will be confined to a smaller area. Visitors to the center will be able to park in existing campus parking lots and other lots that will be built adjacent to the center.

"The whole bottom line is that we are going to be able to keep a much more natural site than we thought originally," Rutherford said. "We don't believe the person in a house (on Mason Farm Road) will even know it's there."

Rutherford said the University is preparing to present its design to the Town Council in May. The deadline for special use permit applications is April 4. If the University presents its project in May, the council will vote on the coliseum July 14. The University plans to begin construction in January 1982 and open the center for the 1984-1985 basketball season.

For the record

In a recent story, The Daily Tar Heel incorrectly reported that the Franklin Street branch of PTA Thrift Shop closed because of financial problems. The shop closed because it was moving its business to its new building in Carrboro. The story also incorrectly identified Frances Davis as the assistant manager of the store. Angela Howell is the assistant manager. Davis is a clerk. The DTH regrets the error.
