Swimmers take second

By LINDA ROBERTSON Staff Writer

The UNC men's swimming team close, but not quite close enough to beating N.C. State in the Atlantic Coast Conference meet.

Although the Tar Heels did not win, they had the Wolfpack worried for the first time in 10 years. N.C. State scored 496 points to UNC's 408 and third place Clemson's 305 to win its 10th consecutive championship at Carmichael Pool on the State campus.

On the first day of competition, UNC jumped out to a 31-point lead after the first two events. State held just a 133-105 advantage after the first round, prompting Pack coach Don Easterling to say, "We came in a little tight, and Carolina came in to swim."

Ken Ireland led Carolina swimmers with three individual wins and two relay victories. Ireland opened the meet with a win in the 500 free, two seconds ahead of teammate Bob Omainsky.

The junior also successfully defended his ACC championships in the 100 and 200 back, and swam fast splits on his legs of the 400 and 800 free relays. Ireland qualified for the national meet in the 200 back (1:49) and his qualifying time of 50.61 in the 100 bettered the old conference record of 50.67.

Freshman Roger Vredeveld was UNC's other individual champion in the 200 I.M. (1:52.94). He also placed second in the 100 back, third in the 200 back and swam the third leg on the winning 800 free relay.

Dave Hansen anchored both winning relays and took second and fifth in the 200 and 100 free, respectively."We swam very well, but the whole problem was the diving," Hansen said.

Jose DeJesus was second in the 200 I.M. and raced to a national qualifying-time with his second in the 400 I.M. Other highlights of the meet included Arnaldo Perez's second in the 100 fly, Mike Amaya's third in the 100 breast, Mark Welker's third in the 200 free, and Keith had only nine points on 4-of-13 shooting. The Duke center fell midway through the first half and hurt his back. From that point on, Gminksi had trouble reaching for passes and getting up and down the court quickly.

A key advantage for the Tar Heels was the mismatch of Vince Taylor trying to guard Virgil. Virgil, though only one inch taller than the 6-5 Taylor, posted low early in the game and got several baskets over the Duke guard.

Carolina finishes the regular season 20-6, 9-5 in the ACC. Duke, after getting off to a 12-0 start, ends up 19-8, 7-7 in the league.

North Carolina won a draw Sunday morning in Greensboro to receive the No. 2 seed in this year's Atlantic Coast Conference tournament, which runs Thursday through Saturday at the Greensboro Coliseum.

With the Tar Heels at No. 2, N.C. State, which finished the year with an identical 9-5 conference record, receives the No. 3 seed.

In Thursday action, The Tar Heels meet No. 7 Wake Forest at 1 p.m. Top-seed Maryland plays No. 8 Georgia Tech at 3 p.m. State will face Duke at 7 p.m. In the final game of opening day at 9 p.m., No. 4 Clemson squares off with No. 5 Virginia.

Track takes 3rd in ACC title meet

From Staff and Wire Reports

GREENSBORO-Clemson gave Maryland a close call Saturday in the Atlantic Coast Conference indoor track championships, but when all events had been completed, the Terrapins owned their 25th straight

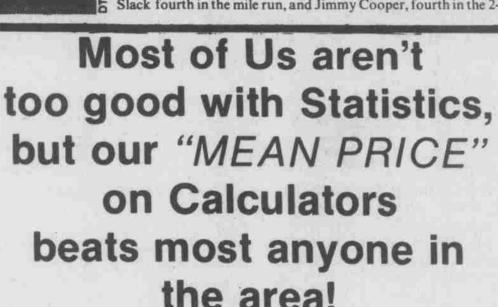

North Carolina, on the strength of a first-place finish by high jumper Lee Shuler, came in third. Shuler's 7-1 effort was good enough to defeat defending champion Mike Corbin of Maryland.

Shuler, who went to Western Guilford High School, missed on two early attempts at 6-8, and failed to set a personal best of 7-21/2, but edged Scott Wall of N.C. State for the win.

The Tar Heels finished with 601/2 points, well back of the Terrapins' 134 and Clemson's 104. Georgia Tech was next with 421/2 followed by Virginia, Duke and Wake Forest.

"I can appreciate a tight meet as long as we win," Maryland coach Frank Costello said. "We had to overcome some adversity, and Clemson fought us to the wire."

Other top finishers for Carolina included Phil Farris, second in the 60yard high hurdles; Kevin Lockerbie, second in the 1,000-yard run; Doug Slack fourth in the mile run, and Jimmy Cooper, fourth in the 2-mile run.

Wrestlers finish unbeaten year

By GEOFFREY MOCK Staff Writer

North Carolina paid tribute to five senior wrestlers and then proceded to whip Georgia Tech 32-12 Friday night in Carmichael Auditorium to complete the most successsful season in Tar Heel history.

In a brief pre-meet ceremony, UNC coach Bill Lam praised Joe Galli, Carter Mario, Arnold Warkins, Charlie Quaille and Norm Walker as important factors in Carolina's rise to national prominence in wrestling.

The seniors made the occasion memorable. Galli, wrestling in the 142-pound class for only the second time this year, won a 10-2 major decision over Pat O'Bryan. Galli, who will wrestle at 142 pounds in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament this Friday, said he was first opposed to dropping to 142, but is convinced now that he is a better wrestler at that weight.

"I'm quicker and moves come easier," Galli said. "I didn't like the idea at first, but coach Lam convinced me that it was for the best." Galli's win followed pins by Dave Cooke and C. D. Mock, giving the Tar Heels a 22-0 lead over the Jackets.

Decisions by freshman Pete Pierce and Jan Michaels extended the lead to 28-0 before Mario took to the mat against Rick Bortles in the 167-pound calss. Mario was aggressive from the start, but Bortles was effective in countering until Mario scored a takedown, with 2 seconds left in the period. Mario went on from there to win an easy 9-0 major

"Bortles was a strong wrestler," Mario said. "We had all kinds of momentum and that helped me." Watkins and Walker wrestled well in losing decisions. Wrestling at 177, Watkins fell behind 8-2 and despite a strong third period he could not threaten. Walker led 8-6, but was reversed with 18 seconds left in he match and lost 9-8 on riding time.

The win gave the Tar Heels a perfect 12-0 season and increased their win streak to 25 matches in a row. They noe have their sights set on the ACC tourney which starts Friday in

Lam has put the wrestlers through extra workouts in the last month to prepare them for the tourney. "We're in good shape," Lam said. "Our first goal was to go undefeated, but that won't mean much unless we can win the conference."

The UNC baseball team opened its season successfully this weekend, winning two games against The Citadel in Charleston, S.C.

Carolina edged the Bulldogs 4-3 on Saturday and won 4-1 Sunday. A game against UNC-Wilmington scheduled for Friday was rained out. On Saturday, a homer by Dwight Lowry to lead off the second inning was the key blow for the Tar Heels, Mark Ochal, a junior college transfer for Carolina, was the winning pitcher

Sunday, Shayne Hammond, a freshman from Cerro Gordo, pitched a two-hit complete game. Carolina got a run in the second, two in the third and one in the seventh. The Heels will go to High Point on with eight-inning relief help from James Parks.

Wednesday before coming home to face Elon on Thursday. The UNC gymnastics team finished its regular season Saturday with a victory over the University of South Carolina and Georgia College in a meet held at Columbia, S. C. Carolina placed first, second and third in the all-around standings. Diana Cates was first,

Tia Walker second and Tiffany Terranova took third. Cates and Walker were first in the vault while Walker won the competition in the balance beam. Cates was first in the uneven bars and in the floor exercise while Terranova finished second in the beam.

The win gives the Tar Heels a 9-1 dualmatch record for the year. The gymnasts will begin the state tournament on March 1.

Women cagers fall to State—again

By MARJO RANKIN

RALEIGH-N.C. State's women's basketball team extended a few of its winning streaks Saturday night in the Raleigh Civic Center: • The Wolfpack won its fifth straight N.C. AIAW Tournament championship.

• It beat the Tar Heels for the 14th consecutive time in the process. · It extended head coach Kay Yow's state championship string to seven-five at N.C. State and two at Elon College.

The 81-59 rout was also the third time in UNC coach Jennifer Alley's three years at Chapel Hill that N.C. State has beaten her team in the state championship game. That's one string Alley would rather not think

"I don't know what it takes to get motivated to play N.C. State," Alley said. "I tried everything I know this week I was shocked; I didn't think the fourth time around would be the same type of game as the first three." The Pack soundly has beaten UNC 89-66, 85-68 and 90-63 this year.

The Tar Heels got to the championship game with an 83-59 win over Duke in Friday's semi-final. That game saw UNC's freshman center Henrietta Walls score 18 points, grab 12 rebounds, block four shots and There was nothing strong or solid about UNC's performance

Saturday, however. Walls got into early foul trouble and spent most of the night watching the action from the bench. She finished with four points. Shaffer was unable to match her shooting performance of the previous night and missed all six field goal attempts. Her single point came on a technical-foul free throw.

McGlade was the only consistent Tar Heel in the tournament, a factor that led to her selection to the all-tournament team. She had 20 points and 13 rebounds against the Wolfpack. Freshmen Kathy Crawford and Deanna Thomas added 14 and 11 points.

After the Pack jumped out to a 4-0 lead, UNC came back and played it an even game for the next four minutes, pulling within two several times UNC's Crawford hit a layup with 13:53 remaining in the first half to put the Heels within two for the last time at 13-11.

From there the Pack scored 12 straight and held Carolina scoreless for almost seven minutes. After taking a 39-21 halftime lead, the Pack came out and scored 21 points in the first seven minutes of the second half while holding the Tar Heels to a single free throw. With 13:12 remaining in the game, State held an invincible 60-22 lead. Junior guard Aprille Shaffer also had a strong performance, scoring 16 points on 6-of-7 from the field and 4-of-4 free throws. Senior forward Bernie McGlade came through with another solid performance with 10 points, 11 rebounds and six assists.
