

Annex plans approved by town council

The Chapel Hill Town Council Monday approved plans for an annex to the UNC General Administration Building on Raleigh Road.

The council voted 6-2 to grant a special use permit to the University for a 20,000-square-foot annex to the existing building. The University also plans to build a 228-space parking area at the Raleigh Road site.

The General Administration Building houses the headquarters of the UNC system.

Council member Bev Kawalec, voted to deny the permit. She said she felt UNC should be required to build a sidewalk in front of its property because many cyclists and joggers use Raleigh Road.

"Observing the area, it is clear people are using both sides of that road every day as a bike and pedestrian path," she said.

But the approved special use permit does not require the University to build a sidewalk unless the town or another property owner builds one on another part of the road.

In other action, the council granted a request from UNC's Olde Campus Residence Council to close a section of Raleigh Road for Olde Campus Day events on March 22. The section from Cameron Avenue to South Road will be closed from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Sharon Lawrence of the Olde Campus Council, said 500 to 900 students are expected to attend the activities which will include booths, a strolling minstrel group and a band.

Several council members expressed concern about noise problems that could be created by the festival. But council member Jonathan Howes said there are no private residences near the carnival area that would be disturbed by noise.

"It (the area) is wholly circumscribed by the University campus," he said.

The council also approved the closing of portions of Franklin and Henderson streets for the annual Apple Chill Street Fair scheduled for April 22.

The council also voted to grant a special use permit to developer Roger Messer for the expansion of his planned Laurel Hill condominium development on Parker Road. In December, the council approved Messer's plan to build 30 units, but Messer later requested a permit to expand his project.

The Laurel Hill development had been before the council for more than a year. Messer recently filed four lawsuits against the town, including one challenging the constitutionality of the town's special use process.

The Town Council also approved another condominium project, developer Roy M. Spratt's Esseola Townhouses. Spratt originally had requested a permit to build apartments. The council in November granted a special use permit for the apartments, one of the few recent projects proposed in Chapel Hill. But Spratt later requested a change to condominiums. He said it was impossible to finance the construction of rental units in the current money market.

In response to complaints that town parks are becoming popular sites for late night parties, the council also voted to restrict their nighttime hours. Under the new ordinance, town parks will be closed from midnight to 6 a.m.

The council also accepted the nominations of two UNC students for a Transportation Board vacancy. The Transportation Board nominated Warren Collier and David McCann for the open seat, which previously was occupied by UNC student Marcie Dean. The council is expected to make the appointment later this month.

Suggestions by BSM on job requirements

By KERRY DEROGHI
Staff Writer

The Black Student Movement formally adopted Monday night three recommendations it considered important in the selection of a candidate for the senior appointment in the Curriculums of African and Afro-American Studies.

The group will not endorse a candidate for the job, however.

"These are suggestions we look for in a candidate," BSM Off-Campus Coordinator Stella Jones said. "However we are confident the search committee will make a sound and good decision."

The members unanimously voted in favor of a single appointment as opposed to a joint appointment. A professor with a joint appointment would work in the Curriculums of African and Afro-American Studies as well as one other department.

BSM President William Bynum said that the joint appointment was not in the best interest of the department. "I feel a single black could more focus on the direction the department should take," he said.

The BSM also decided that the appointee should have an extensive background in Afro-American studies as well as background in African history studies.

The group's final recommendation was that the candidate have an extensive background in the administrative workings of a curriculum in order to enhance the program's future.

Group president Bynum plans to submit the resolutions to Lee Greene, chairman of the selection committee, within the next few days. Greene, who is also acting chairman of the Curriculums of African and Afro-American Studies and an English department associate professor, had said earlier that it might be too late for the BSM's suggestions to significantly change the selection process. However, Greene said Tuesday he would definitely examine the recommendations when they were given to him.

"I'll read over them," Greene said, "but I don't know what we'll do with them. I'll have to see them."

Greene has said that several candidates are still being considered for the position. He has not set a date for the appointment, but he said plans are progressing as scheduled.

Campus housing applications for summer sessions ready

Anyone who wants to live in University housing this summer may pick up housing brochures Monday in Carr Building.

Residence halls will open for the first summer session at noon May 18, and for the second summer session noon June 29.

The dorms open during the summer session will be Connor and Winston for coed undergraduates; Ruffin and Alexander for female undergraduates and Grimes and Mangum for male undergraduates. Craige will house coed graduates, undergraduates and married couples.

The rates per summer session will be $149 for single rooms and $103 for double rooms. Single rooms are very easy to obtain in the summer, one housing department official said.

Inauguration Thursday

Students are invited to attend the inauguration of Bob Saunders as Student Body president and Peggy Leight as Residence Hall Association president

7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Old Well Room of the Carolina Inn. A reception will follow.
