

Swimmers like odds

By LINDA ROBERTSON
Staff Writer

Although the UNC women's swimming team may be a longshot to hit the jackpot and win the AIAW National meet, the Tar Heels are odds-on favorites to finish as one of the top teams in the country as they compete in the national championships today through Saturday at the University of Nevada at Las Vegas.

"Florida is picked to win and Texas is also awesome, but we haven't seen enough of the other teams to predict how they'll do," said assistant coach Duffy Hickey. Carolina will also have to contend with West Coast powers Stanford, UCLA and Arizona State, as well as rival N.C. State and the surprising University of South Carolina.

The women's only dual meet losses this season came at the hands of N.C. State and U.S.C. Last year the women placed fifth in the nation, well ahead of the Wolfpack's eighth and South Carolina's tenth place.

N.C. State took the Atlantic Coast

Conference crown this year, but assistant coach George Kennedy said, "We have a much better chance of beating them at the AIAWs. While they have the depth to win a dual meet, we have more national caliber talent."

Ten women from the UNC squad qualified during the season. For three seniors, Las Vegas will be their final college meet, although the AAU Nationals and Olympic trials loom in the future for many UNC women.

Senior co-captain Bonnie Brown is a three-time All-American sprinter in addition to holding ACC and UNC records in the 50 and 100 free and the 100 individual medley. She will swim her specialties as well as competing in four of the five relays.

Co-captain Lauren Dupree has also been an All-American since her freshman year and will swim in the distance events, the 500 and 1650 free.

California native Janis Hape will be close to home for her final AIAW appearance. The two-time All-American will swim the 200 breaststroke.

Freshman Gayle Hegel has the best shot at an individual title, according to Hickey. The ACC record breaker will spend a lot of time in the pool this week, competing in the 50, 100 and 200 breast, the 200 and 400 IM and relays.

All-American sophomore Barb Harris—"wonder woman" according to Hickey—will probably swim the 50, 100 and 200 free, the 50 and 100 fly and in relays.

Freshman Cynthia Chilcott won't have much time for the slot machines either.

Her events include the 50, 100 and 200 back, the 400 IM and the 400 medley relay.

Carolina's other talented freshman, Liz Mesmer, will see action in the relays and possibly the 200 free.

Yet another All-American, sophomore Cindy Shirey, adds to UNC's strong contingent in the 400 IM and relays. Veteran All-Americans Nance Thompson and Nancy Hudock will both swim the 800 free, with Hudock also in the 500 free and Thompson in the 400 IM.

Schuler leads Heels

The UNC baseball team broke open the game with eight runs in the second inning and went on to post a 12-5 win over Massachusetts Tuesday at Boshamer Stadium.

The Tar Heels sent 12 men to the plate during the eight-run explosion.

Greg Schuler paced the 19-hit Tar Heel attack by hitting four doubles and knocking in three runs. He set a school record for most doubles in a game.

P.J. Gay and Lloyd Brewer had three hits each. Gay had a single, double and triple and scored three runs.

The Tar Heels had nine extra-base hits in the game: six doubles and three triples. Carolina bats made an easy winner of pitcher David Kirk, who improved his record to 4-0. Kirk, who said he wasn't as sharp as he had been in his other games, scattered nine hits and gave up four earned runs. He walked three and struck out three while pitching his third complete game of the year.

For Massachusetts, Doug Aylward hit a two-run homer in the first inning.

Jim Lewis, the first of four Massachusetts pitchers, took the loss after lasting only 1-2/3 innings.

The Tar Heels, now 12-8, meet Eastern Connecticut at 3 p.m. today in Boshamer Stadium.

Fencers 13th in NCAA tourney; Schulman takes 6th in sabre

From Staff Reports

The North Carolina men's fencing team, which surprised Maryland and Clemson by taking the championship of the Atlantic Coast Conference during Spring Break, finished in a tie for 13th at the NCAA tournament held last weekend at Penn State.

Stan Schulman, a senior who was closing out his UNC career in the competition, was the top Tar Heel finisher. Schulman was 15-8 in his sabre bouts and that was good enough to tie him for sixth place and earn him honorable mention All-America honors.

"I had confidence going in," Schulman said, "I would have liked to have done better and, looking back on a couple of earlier bouts in the tournament, I can see where I could have."

Two other Carolina fencers were also in the competition. Mark Kuschke made it to the finals of the foil, but placed out of the top 20. Epee man John Hodde was eliminated in the first round.

"We placed the highest of any team with only two men in the finals," UNC coach Ron Miller said. "Most of the teams that finished ahead of us in the tournament were ones we had beaten or lost closely to during the regular season."

"I thought we'd do a little better as a team," Schulman said. "But since we got only two out of three men into the finals—we did well. Considering we had two men and not three in the finals that's (a tie for) 13th pretty good."

Two other ACC teams were in the national tournament and both finished ahead of Carolina. Clemson tied for 5th in the competition while Maryland was 11th. The tournament was won by Wayne State.

Looking ahead to the future, Schulman says his graduation won't spell doom for the team. "We'll be fine next year," he said. "Coach Miller had five freshmen fence a lot, and they should be real good."
