Lowenstein was killed in New York recently. Chairman of the county party, Andy Little, also told the precinct delegates that the county party needed to raise $6,000 to $8,000 to promote Democratic candidates in the November race. To match the Republican financial strength from the Congressional Club, North Carolina Democrats need to step up their fund raising efforts, Little said. "The only way we're going to be able to maintain any lead in this state is to get on firm financial ground," Little said.

lost money or broke even.

An estimated 4,500 people attended the concert given by Sister Sledge, Mass Production and Skyy. "We were going up against a lot of competition," said James Alexander, a member of the Union Concert Advisory Board. "It could have been easily sold out." "Still, this is the first major rhythm and blues concert to be a success on this campus," Alexander said. Terrell said he views any losses incurred Saturday as money that went toward buying a giant concert for the school.

And it was a gigantic concert. After Bonnie Raitt played for more than an hour, the crowd was in the right mood to receive Georgia's Atlanta Rhythm Section. As the Stars and Bars were displayed on the upper level of the stadium, the crowd listened and applauded a tape of the theme from Gone With the Wind. As the bands played on, people listened, drank and went outside to buy food from one of the many concession stands.

There was even pizza for a dollar a slice. "When you're drunk, you'll pay anything," one customer said.

As the afternoon wore on, the aluminum cans began to pile higher and higher, and the University police had a huge, happy crowd on their hands.

"We've had one nudist," an officer said. "He got so drunk, so high or whatever, he just stripped naked."

"It's wild, it's wild, it's really wild," another officer said of the crowd. "We've got them dropping out like flies. I don't know whether it's the heat or what."

But police said this year's crowd was better behaved than ones in the past. No arrests were made as a direct result of the concert, police said.

There were still plenty of people around at 5 p.m. when the Beach Boys finally appeared. For many, this group was the big reason for coming to "Chapel Thrill '80."

"I grew up in Los Angeles listening to them, and I've got to see them one more time," Tim Hansen of Jacksonville said.

The Beach Boys had the audience on its feet through most of the concert, singing the songs that have made them... a legend. They seemed enthusiastic about playing in Chapel Hill.

"It always feels great to play outside," Carl Wilson said. "We love it. It's a beautiful day and we feel like lucky ducks to be able to do this."

"It's a lovely time of year, and this place is beautiful," Al Jardine said. There is a place in all of our hearts for the Carolinas.

"People can forget exams for four hours, forget Iran, Afghanistan and the draft, but Monday morning it starts all over."

News In Brief

BOG approves student fee increase

The UNC Board of Governors approved a student fee increase for the academic year 1980-1981 at its monthly meeting last week.

Included in the measure is an increase of the health service fee from $115 to $130 and a student activity fee increase of $23 to $30.50 for undergraduates and $19 to $26.50 for graduate students.

The increase was passed by the University Board of Trustees at its January meeting despite opposition from then-Student Body President J.B. Kelly. The board said the increase was needed to offset inflation.

Families barred from visiting hostages

Militants holding Americans at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran said Sunday they would not allow hostage families to see their captive relatives, and Iran maneuvered in its diplomatic and economic war with the United States.

Iranian officials faced increased friction from domestic forces as well, while unrest continued on major university campuses and 70 people were reported killed in three days of clashes in rebellious Kurdistan.

A spokesman for the embassy militants said they had decided not to allow hostage families to visit the embassy, but might reconsider that decision if Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini asked.

Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh told a Tehran news conference that Khomeini favored visits by the hostages' "immediate families" but did not say whether the revolutionary leader planned to force the issue.

Costa Rica offers asylum to refugees

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—Costa Rica on Sunday told Cuba it was willing to grant permanent asylum to all 10,000 Cubans still trying to leave the Communist-run island-nation, a Costa Rican Foreign Ministry spokesman said.

He said Costa Rica had made its offer known in a message to Cuban President Fidel Castro. The message also appealed to Castro to let evacuation flights resume immediately.

About 700 of the Cubans were evacuated last week before Castro cut off the flights on Friday. The Cuban leader said the refugees should be flown directly to the countries taking them in instead of using the Costa Rican capital as a staging area.

Half of those flown here last week went on to Peru later. The rest remained here.

There was no immediate word how the Cubans reacted to the Costa Rican offer.

Committee funded the AIS program.

MIMM was refused funding for next year because of its narrow focus, Hubbard said.

The Undergraduate Zoology Colloquium, which was requesting funding from Student Government for the first time, was refused financial assistance because it is primarily departmental, Hubbard said.

The Victory Village Day Care Center was denied funding for two reasons, she said. First, the center receives the majority of its funding from other means and its requests from CGC were just for enhancement of its services and were not vital. The organization also was considered narrow in scope since it only provided services for students with children.

are alumni of the University. In other business, the council voted to accept recommendations made by the ad hoc Committee on Research which suggested creation of a Research Policy Committee and an Office of Research Support.

Thomas L. Isenhour, chairman of the ad hoc committee, said the Research Policy Committee would consider matters concerning research before the Faculty Council, originate studies of research support and advise the Faculty Council on ways to promote and facilitate research.

He said the Office of Research Support would be charged with acquiring and distributing research funds, promoting efficiency in research-supporting operations and acting as a liaison between faculty and campus agencies involved in supporting research.

The council also voted to accept a report by the ad hoc Faculty Committee to Review the Trustee Policies and Regulations Governing Academic Tenure, which recommended that the Committee on University Government develop a proposal that will allow the Faculty Hearings Committee to hear appeals and make decisions with respect to allegations of procedural irregularity in tenure decisions.
